New Girls' High School Building To Cost $493,000

WITNESSES BARE PLAN TO HAMMER STOCK EXCHANGE

Letters Will Be Produced To Back Up Charges Made by Wall Street Executives.

New York, September 27.—H. K. Pomeroy, chairman of the New York stock exchange law committee, and E. T. Tefft, chairman of the committee on quotations and commissions, today appeared before the grand jury to support charges made yesterday before that body by Seymour L. Cromwell, president of the exchange, that certain legislators had threatened reprisals against the exchange unless personal favors were granted.

It was understood that Mr. Pomeroy told the jurors of a meeting in June, 1921, with two legislators. Following the examination, Mr. Pomeroy said this meeting was to discuss the return of wires to bucket shops.

While it was learned that certain of the charges made by the exchange officials were based on telephone conversations, it also is understood that they have produced or will produce letters from the legislators as evidence. Mr. Cromwell will go before the jury again tomorrow.

The grand jury's investigation grew out of an address made by Mr. Cromwell last Monday before the American Bankers' association, at Atlantic City, in which he made the charges against the legislators, without giving their names.

100 Lives Lost as C. B. & Q. Train Goes Into River

Thirty-seven Bodies Recovered From Swollen River That Weakened Bridge.

Casper, Wyo., September 27.—Thirty-seven bodies are said to have been recovered from the day coaches and sleeping car of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy passenger train number 30 that plunged through a bridge into the Big Muddy river near Lockett, at about 10 o'clock tonight, according to Dan McLain, of Denver, who says that he is the only person who escaped from the Denver sleeper.

Mr. McLain declared that in his opinion at least 100 lives were lost.

According to the report, two day coaches, one sleeper, one baggage and one mail car crashed into the river, which was swollen by rains that swept parts of Wyoming this afternoon and night.

PIN IN THROAT OF TOT REMOVED WITHOUT INJURY

Philadelphia, September 27.—William W. Johnson, Jr., five months old, whose parents rushed him here with an open safety pin lodged in his esophagus, will return to his home in Concord, N. C., tomorrow with his happy parents and without the pin.

After two days' observation during which an X-ray photograph was taken and studied, Dr. Chevalier Jackson, of Jefferson Medical College hospital, today removed the dangerous obstruction by means of a bronchoscope. The child, it was said, suffered no permanent injury as a result of swallowing the pin last Sunday.

To The Churches

Do you realize that every Sunday there are strangers in the city who would like to go to "their own" church? Then, too, there are newcomers who are making their homes here and almost the first thing they want to know is "their own" church. A notice in the Church Department of The Constitution would bring those people to "their church." Nowadays, the church that wants to do the most good must make itself known. It can be done in the church advertisements of The Constitution.

10 PORTABLE SCHOOLS WILL BE PURCHASED

Consolidation of City and County Systems Meets With Favor—No Definite Action Taken.

Award of the new Girls' High school building contract for $493,000; consolidation of the city and county school systems, and purchase of ten portable schools to house overflow attendance were recommended by the building and finance committee of the Atlanta board of education in session Thursday afternoon.

Successful bidders for the new Girls' High building were Griffin Construction company, general contractors, bidding $412,250; McGaughey Electric company, electrical contractors, bidding $21,234; Loftis Heating and Plumbing company, $35,782 for heating and $24,032 for plumbing. Approval of the full school board, bond commission, general council and Mayor Sims are necessary to award the contract.

Can Be Ready Next September.

Actual construction of the new building can begin about January 1, when grading now in progress on the Rosalia street site will have been completed and, by rushing the work, the school can be made ready for occupancy by September, 1924, committee members stated.

The committee's recommendations were made with the approval of A. Ten Eyck Brown, supervising architect for the bond issue schools, and Edwards and Sayward, the architects for the Girls' High school.

Approval of the plan to merge the city of Atlanta and Fulton county school systems was given by the committee informally when it developed that Willis A. Sutton, Atlanta superintendent, J. W. Simmons, Fulton superintendent, Mayor Walter A. Sims and members of the county commission, county board of education and others interested, had expressed favor for the plan.

No definite action toward consolidation was taken but it was stated that resolutions of formal indorsement will be submitted to the two school boards at their next meetings and to city council and to the Fulton county commissioners at their next meetings.

Merger Plan Favored.

The merger plan had received the indorsement of the two school boards which went out of office last year and has been suggested from time to time for several years. No united effort, however, has been made to secure the charter amendments and

JURORS AT ODDS IN FLOGGING CASE

Recess After 31 Hours of Vain Discussion Until Morning — Other Cases Are Postponed.

Macon, Ga., September 27.—The jury deliberating on the case of Dr. C. A. Yarbrough, charged with riot in connection with the flogging of W. O. Barnett, late tonight took a recess until tomorrow morning without reporting a verdict. At 11 o'clock the jurors had deliberated for 31 hours.

Rumors Are Rife.

The jury at no time has had any communication with Judge Will Gunn, of the city court, other than to send by bailiffs requests for medicines, or other small items. Attorneys watching the progress of the deliberations said that this was one of the most unusual features of the case, as usually juries unable to agree send for the presiding judge within a few hours or ask for instructions regarding certain points.

Case Is Postponed

Macon's flogging trials today were brought to an abrupt ending for the present. City Solicitor Moore at the opening of court announced to Judge Holmes Johnson, of Grays, who came here to sit in the J. F. Alexander case, that one of the state's chief witnesses, Melton Britt, had disappeared and that as a result the state would be unable to go to trial at this time. Alexander is charged with participation in the flogging of Ollie M. Berry.

Apology Offered.

Wilse Birdsong, former deputy sheriff, who yesterday interrupted Attorney Wallace Miller while he was arguing for the state in the trial of Dr. Yarbrough, was permitted to apologize when he appeared this afternoon in city court in answer to a rule charging him with contempt of court. Judge Will Gunn accepting the apology told Birdsong all persons in court must curb their passions.

Birdsong's commission was revoked immediately after the incident yesterday by Sheriff Hicks.

DEFENDS CONDUCT OF DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

DENIES INFLUENCING PROBE APPOINTMENTS

Chairman Lankford and Attorneys Will Take Testimony of Grover Edmondson in Savannah Today.

Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Brown, testifying Thursday before the legislative committee appointed to investigate his department, made full denial of any charges of undue political activity, either by himself or by employees of his department, of any irregularities or mismanagement in the affairs of the department, and swore that he had always, as an officeholder of the state, followed the law and lived up to his oath of office to the best of his ability. He denied entirely that political considerations governed his selection of men to fill positions in his department.

At the conclusion of the Thursday afternoon session, Senator George Lankford, chairman of the committee, announced that there would be no further meetings until Monday, October 8. Any citizen of the state who has evidence to present which he thinks will be of value to the committee in drawing up its report must file request, under the committee ruling, by October 5. All such requests must be made in writing and addressed to the chairman. Under terms of the resolution authorizing the investigation, hearings must be concluded and the committee must finish its report by October 22. This is within the 65 days since adjournment of the legislature, allowed in the resolution.

Go to Savannah.

Chairman Lankford, attorneys for both sides and the official stenographer will meet Friday in Savannah to take the testimony of Grover C. Edmondson, former editor of The Columbia Sentinel, who has been subpoenaed as a witness and who is reported ill in a Savannah hospital. This committee also will secure documentary evidence which Mr. Edmondson has said he has in his possession, as well as papers belonging to Charles E. Stewart, member of the house from Atkinson county, who has charged Mr. Brown with being "a liar, thief and perjurer," and who told the committee he could not substantiate these charges without certain documents, which were in the care and keeping of Mr. Edmondson, who is acting as private attorney for Mr. Stewart.

Commissioner Brown was on the stand practically all day Thursday. Immediately after the committee reconvened after the noon recess he answered the charges, made by Mrs. Alice Louise Lytle, editor of the Columbia Sentinel, and repeated, with some variations, while she was on the stand as a prosecution witness in this inquiry, that she had seen Mr. Brown in close conference with President George H. Carswell, of the senate, and Speaker W. Cecil Neill of the house, shortly before the personnel of this investigatory committee was announced just before final ad-

Entire Family Escapes Death Through Dream

Adairsville, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—A dream saved the lives of an entire family here this week.

How the vision in the night prevented several members of the C. J. Ward family from eating calcium arsenate, placed by mistake in the flour bin, when a son-in-law rushed to their home early in the morning under the influence of the noctural premonition, was related here today after the poison had been found mixed with the flour.

Several days ago members of the family became violently ill after eating a simple breakfast. Medical attention was given them and the attack ascribed to some article of food. Biscuits were eaten at the meal.

There happened to be none cooked at the two other meals during the day, other bread being utilized.

That night William Stoner, a son-in-law, had a startlingly vivid dream that there was poison in the flour bin at the home of his father-in-law. As soon as he awoke he rushed to the Ward home, dashed into the house just as the family was sitting down to breakfast, and recounted the vision.

Mrs. Ward made a sudden exclamation.

She rushed into the kitchen and picked up from the pantry floor an empty sack. She thought it had contained flour and had poured it into the bin two days before.

On it were the words "calcium arsenate—poison."

Now a new flour bin is in use and dreams are admitted by the family to be useful and desirable at times.

U. S. COMMANDER DEFIES JAPANESE IN RESCUE WORK

San Diego, Cal., September 27.—According to information received here today, through headquarters of the eleventh naval district, Lieutenant Commander William A. Glassford, aboard the United States destroyer Tracey, defied the orders of Japanese authorities by anchoring in Yokohama harbor soon after the earthquake and tidal wave and remaining there to aid in rescuing American and other foreign victims of the disaster.

LEAGUE COUNCIL REFERS 2 POINTS TO HAGUE COURT

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Geneva, September 27.—The council of the league of nations after a two hours' debate tonight agreed to submit two questions covering the general aspect of the league's competency in international complications to the permanent court of international justice at The Hague. This was brought about by the action of the smaller states who sent a collective note to the council relative to an interpretation of the covenant.

The council also provisionally decided that two other questions shall go before a special commission of eminent jurists, rather than to The Hague court, because they are deemed to be of a political, rather than a legal nature. One concerns the right of states to adopt coercive measures, while the other endeavors to secure the fixation of a country's responsibility for crimes committed in its territory.

Members of the council tonight tried to induce Signor Salandra, the Italian member, to consent to The Hague court's passing upon whether other matters, such as incidents affecting national honor, are to be excluded, but Signor Salandra was obdurate; he said he did not want such incidents to go before the permanent court, and was not sure that he wanted them to go any where.

The French are seeking to act as conciliators, believing that eventually Italy will agree to a full examination of the covenant.

Utter Praise for U. S.

M. Lebrun, a former member of the French cabinet, who helped Lord Robert Cecil draft the proposed pact of mutual assistance, said tonight the world should realize that its chief aim was reduction of armaments, which was only possible in most countries when their security was established. He emphasized that Great Britain, France and Italy must ratify the pact before it can be made operative in Europe.

The disarmament commission decided definitely tonight that in view of the divergencies of opinion to its contents, including the clause authorizing supplementary defensive alliances, all the governments should be requested to send in their opinion about the pact to the league. Hence any action on the pact has been deferred until next year.

The assembly of the league held meetings today, both morning and afternoon, considering chiefly humanitarian problems and measures to organize relief for countries in distress. Dr. Nansen, who will soon tour the United States, was praised for his heroic efforts in this direction.

The leadership of the United States in the opium fight was the subject of warm tributes, many of the delegates laying stress on the deep importance of the proposed opium conference. The general view was that the world must arrest through the cooperation of all nations the rapidly spreading poisoning of the human race.

NEW CABINET IS NAMED IN HAITI

Port au Prince, Haiti, September 27.—The Haitian ministry today resigned in a body, and President Borno named a new cabinet, composed of Mm. Dominique, Magloire, Delva, Theard and Vieux. The resignations were not due to a political crisis nor to a common cause, it is understood, but arose largely from personal reasons.

GERMANY ORDERS RUHR OFFICIALS TO RESUME WORK

ALLIES GET NOTICE OF RUHR SURRENDER

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duesseldorf, September 27.—A Berlin dispatch received here announces that the German government has issued orders to the officials in the Ruhr to resume work and cease passive resistance.

ENTENTE GETS FORMAL NOTICE.

Berlin, September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Chancellor Stresemann this morning notified the entente ministers of the German government's decision to cease passive resistance in the Ruhr and the Rhineland.

STRESEMANN GRINS AND BEARS KAHR CALL.

Berlin, September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—A state of emergency has been proclaimed by both the Stresemann government and the Bavarian government, presided over by Premier von Knilling, and for the moment the situation in Germany is a complicated and uncertain one. No indication is manifested around government quarters tonight, however, to take an unduly tragic view of the turn of affairs created by the latest exchange of amenities between Berlin and Munich and the appointment as dictator in Bavaria of Dr. von Kahr, who, during his days as premier of that state, was the especial bane of the Berlin chancellor.

Although Herr Stresemann and his assistants were visibly nettled at the precipitate manner in which the Bavarian action was carried out, the Berlin government heads tonight professed the belief that they once more have become the victims of Bavarian idiosyncrasies and seemingly realized their own ability correctly to appraise Munich psychology despite their past experience with Bavarian diplomacy.

Scout Secession Talk.

The talk of revolt and secession by Bavaria is scouted in official circles in Berlin, where the impression is given that the two governments are in complete accord with respect to common aims and that their proclamations in no way collide. At the chancellory it was stated that Herr Stresemann was convinced Premier von Knilling was sincerely desirous of cooperating with the central government in the present perturbed internal situation, but that the Bavarian premier naturally was forced to take full cognizance of the conflicting currents which complicate the Bavarian situation, and which in no event could be controlled by the Berlin government.

The central government's proclamation takes precedence over the Bavarian manifesto and also establishes that General von Lossow, of the reichswehr, who has been appointed military commander in Bavaria, has superior authority to von Kahr, in that he represents Dr. Gessler, who has been virtually created military dictator for all Germany by the terms of the government's proclamation.

Von Lossow Is Superior.

The two governments, it was added, are closely cooperating, and the political leaders here are confident Chancellor Stresemann's adroitness as a negotiator will avoid any ruffling of Bavarian sensibilities.

There are about twelve thousand government troops permanently garrisoned in Bavaria, and they are at the immediate disposal of VonLossow and Von Kahr. They are augmented by the Bavarian police, and it is believed these can be relied upon in an acute emergency.

There is, nevertheless, partially concealed satisfaction in political quarters in Berlin over what is termed the predicament in which Von Knilling and Von Kahr now find them-

TAX DISTRIBUTION ON EQUABLE BASIS URGED AT HEARING

The Macon Meeting Sees Many Plans Championed—Sales Levy Upheld as Best Solution.

Macon, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Views of Macon and Bibb county citizens on the solution of Georgia's tax problems were presented to Governor Clifford Walker and members of the special tax commission at a public hearing in Macon this afternoon. The remedies suggested included different methods by which the tax situation could be met, but there was a unanimous opinion that an immediate reform and betterment of the state's tax laws should be made looking toward a more fair and equable distribution of tax burdens.

The recommendations, together with suggestions from other parts of the state which the commission has visited, will form the basis for recommendations which will be made by the commission to the general assembly at the special session to consider tax problems, which Governor Walker has called for November 7.

Favor Sales Tax.

A number of speakers, including Dr. W. J. Little, representing the Bibb County Medical society; W. T. Anderson, editor of The Macon Telegraph, and Attorney Jesse Harris, spoke in favor of a sales tax. The sales tax, it was argued, would distribute the tax burden in a fair and equable way upon the rich and poor alike, and would go far toward a solution of the problem. The successful operation of this tax in Canada was pointed out as demonstrating its practicability and efficiency.

E. B. Weatherly, of the Southeastern Portland Cement company, R. B. Small and several others spoke against the sales tax. Mr. Weatherly declared that the sales tax would place a burden on the man of small means. He favored a state income tax such as that levied by the federal government, with provision for an increase as the incomes grew larger. He also favored a heavy inheritance tax with no exemptions and said that these two measures would greatly relieve the situation. He declared himself in favor of no occupation tax except that levied by municipalities.

New Measures Urged.

R. B. Small and several others declared that a strict enforcement of the present ad valorem system would meet the situation without the aid of the new laws suggested. The speakers who argued in favor of the present system were in the minority, however, the majority opinion being that new remedies should be brought to bear on the situation.

In speaking for the sales tax, W. T. Anderson cited the gasoline tax as demonstrating the value of such a measure.

"The sales tax is an ideal solu-

Rule of "Follow the Leader" Bared as Secret of War Success.

San Diego, Calif., September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—More complete exposition of the "Destroyer doctrine" which officers are trained to "follow the leader," occupied a large share of today's session of the naval court of inquiry investigating the disaster in which six vessels trailed the U. S. Delphy to destruction on the rocks off Honda, Cal., some time ago.

A declaration that this doctrine of "do and dare and follow the leader" was responsible for the success of American destroyer squadrons in the World war was drawn from one defendant witness today by Admiral William V. Pratt, presiding member of the court "in order," the admiral explained "to forestall any misconception of the spirit which motivates the officers of a destroyer's squadron" in racing full tilt behind their flagship wherever it may lead.

Commander William S. Pye, division chief in the squadron that was wrecked, testified that at one point on the voyage down the coast from San Francisco, he had noted that the Delphy was steering a course that would lead them into danger, but he had hardly reached the conclusion that the course was dangerous before she signalled a swerve into safer waters.

It was difficult to check the navigation of the leading ship, he said, but he was satisfied from the data available to him that night that her navigators knew where they were going.

SOLONS FILE TEST IN OWN BEHALF

Walton Extends Martial Law to Murray County on Written Request of Officials.

Oklahoma City, Okla., September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The way was cleared for the special state election called by Governor Walton for October 2 when the Oklahome supreme court today reversed the action of the Oklahoma county district court in granting an injunction restraining the state election board from proceeding with plans for the referendum.

The fate of five constitutional amendments, including a $55,000,000 soldiers' bonus proposal, and an initiated bill to legalize special sessions of the legislature upon call of a majority of members, is bound up in the proposed election.

With only five days remaining before the date set for the vote, some doubt existed tonight as to whether the polls would be opened October 2.

No ballots yet have been printed, but all other election material has been ordered, according to W. C. McAllister, secretary of the election board. Ballots could be printed and distributed throughout the state in time for an election Thursday in the event the remaining legal technicalities are surmounted, it was said.

The one remaining barrier is certification of the supreme court mandate to the district court and then the serving of formal notification on the election board that the injunction has been dissolved. It was indicated that this would be done promptly, the attorney general, who was the losing party in the friendly suit, having agreed, it was understood, to waive certain rights permitted him so that no further delay would ensue.

Waltonite Asks Rehearing.

The decision of the supreme court today on the five constitutional amendments had no bearing on the initiated bill which would allow house of the legislature to convene without the governor's call.

The fate of this measure rests on the action the supreme court takes upon a request for rehearing filed by a citizen acting for Governor Walton after the court has held that the measure should be placed on the ballot.

If the court denies the petition for rehearing promptly the measure will go on the ballot.

"Impossible To Draw Tax Law With One Hand and Play Politics With Other," Says Carswell.

Macon, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Declaring that it is impossible to draw a tax measure with one hand and play politics with the other, George Carswell, president of the state senate, tonight at a banquet in honor of the state tax commission and Governor Walker, declared the five-mill tax limit to be a curse from which Georgia will not recover for fifteen years. Mr. Carswell added that such an utterance might sound unwise for a man who intends to run for office, but he emphasized that it was true nevertheless.

Blame for the failure of the legislature to pass needed laws was placed by Mr. Carswell on the business men of Georgia.

"If you business men will refuse to contribute to the Atlanta lobbyists who make their living by harrassing the lawmakers of the state and infest the legislature, then you will have done a service to the people of Georgia.'"

Mr. Carswell said no perfect tax ever existed, or will exist, and added that it is impossible to make a popular tax, saying the popular measure is "one that makes the other fellow pay."

Governor Walker, in his address, said he had addressed himself to the business men of the state since his nomination as governor, "because I know that the responsibility of the tax system lies upon the business men—the owners of real estate and tangible property."

The governor said he was glad the crisis which now faces the sanitarium at Milledgeville has arisen, for it will awaken the people of the state to the urgent need of tax reform. "The state sanitarium will not close in spite of its wretched condition," said the governor, who stated that Governor Dorsey once told him it would be necessary to drive the ship of state on the rocks in order to awaken the people to the deplorable financial system under which it is operating.

TEXT OF U. S. NOTE ON ARMS TREATY IS MADE PUBLIC

Explanatory Paragraphs Indicate That Government Is in Accord With Convention Aim.

Washington, September 27.—The state department made public today the American note to the league of nations in which the United States declined to become a party to the proposed arrangements for a traffic convention through ratification of the convention of Saint Germain.

The purport of the communication was disclosed at the Geneva sessions of the league a few days ago, but attached to the text as made public today was an explanatory statement saying that the note "did not indicate that this government was less anxious than other powers suitably to control the traffic in arms."

Dealing with objections to the convention, the note said:

"While the application of the convention to certain designated areas or zones, extending in effect the Brussels convention, may fulfill a useful object, the plan of the present convention is much broader. The distinctive feature of this plan is not a provision for a general limitation of armament, but the creation of a system of control by the signatory powers of the traffic in arms and munitions, these signatory powers being left free not only to meet their own requirements in the territories subject to their jurisdiction but also to provide for supplying each other with arms and munitions to the full extent that they may see fit.

Would Need Splendid Laws.

"There is particular objection to the provisions by which the contracting parties would be prohibited from selling arms and munitions to states not parties to the convention. By such provisions, this government would be required to prevent shipments of military supplies to such Latin-American countries as have not signed or adhered to the convention, however desirable it might be to permit such shipments, merely because they are not signatory powers and might not desire to adhere to the convention.

"It should be observed also that the acceptance by the United States of an agreement of the nature and scope of the convention of Saint Germain would call for the enactment of legislation to make it operative, and particularly for the imposition of penalties applicable to private arms-producing concerns as a means of establishing an effective control. This government is not in a position to undertake to obtain the enactment of such legislation.

"Finally, it may be observed that the provisions of the convention relating to the league of nations are so intertwined with the whole convention as to make it impracticable for this government to ratify, in view of the fact that it is not a member of the league of nations."

Objections Are Fundamental.

In explanation of the fact that the American communication made no suggestions for modification of the arms traffic convention, the state department's statement accompanying the making public of the note, said:

"The objections made by the government to the ratification of the convention of Saint Germain dealt with matters which were believed to be fundamental and which did not

Attention was called in the statemen to President Harding's action in expressing to Secretary Weeks last April the hope that the policy of the war department would be "not only to making no sales of war equipment to any foreign power, but that you will go further and make certain that public sales to our own citizens will be attended by proper guarantees that such supplies are not to be transferred to any foreign power."

"I would readily waive aside any financial advantage that might attend such sales," President Harding's letter continued, "to make sure that none of our surplus equipment is employed in encouraging warfare any place in the world."

Cannot Interfere in Business.

The state department's announcement pointed out that the executive branch of this government was "not in a position to intervene in transactions which are wholly within the law; but not desiring to encourage other powers to arm themselves for conflict, which is deemed contrary to the spirit of the country, this government in addition to adopting a strict policy with regard to the sale of surplus government army stores, has replied to the recent inquiries which it has received that it does not encourage the shipment of war material to the troubled areas of the world."

"This stand," the statement continued, "has been taken, although this government is not unmindful of the fact that intending purchasers would no doubt resort to other markets to supply their wants. It may also be added that under present conditions the department would not favor the flotation of a foreign loan in this country from which the proceeds would be utilized for armament."

BALLOT BOX WILL DECIDE IN OKLAHOMA

required number of signatures was filed with R. A. Sneed, secretary of state, he ruled the measure had been regularly initiated and directed that it be placed on the ballot at the special election. This decision was appealed to the supreme court at the instigation of Governor Walton and the court upheld the secretary of state in a decision handed down last Friday. The rehearing then was asked. Governor Walton contends many of the signatures on the initiative petition were forgeries. He would not comment tonight on the proceedings.

OFFICIALS OF SULPHUR REQUEST STATE TROOPS.

Oklahoma City, Okla., September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Troops of the Oklahoma national guard were ordered into Murray county tonight by Governor J. C. Walton in response to an appeal from citizens of Sulphur who charged local authorities with neglect in apprehending the perpetrators of numerous mob outrages there recently.

"Under the present reign of Ku Klux Klan officers in this county, conditions are deplorable and are becoming worse," the governor was told by the committee from Sulphur, which included Scott Ferris, son of former Congressman Scott Ferris, of Oklahoma, and the mayor of the town.

"Persons who are not members of the Ku Klux Klan," they declared, "are totally unsafe in person and in property and unless relief is accorded us and martial law is established in this county there will be trouble and possibly bloodshed."

The petitioners, in a written statement to Governor Walton, detailed several acts of violence in the county and said that numerous threatening letters had been received by citizens, but that officers have done nothing.

Editor Is Threatened.

They declared that the editor of The Sulphur Democrat had been threatened with personal violence by the sheriff for publishing articles relating to the latter's office; and that the governor and numbers of citizens had been libelled by an anonymous circular distributed recently throughout the county "by parties well known and confessed Ku Klux Klansmen."

Prosecutions of numerous crimes cannot be made, they asserted, because they have been committed by members of the klan.

Governor Walton said a military court would be set up at once to investigate the charges. He added that he would request Representative Murray Gibbons, speaker of the house of the ninth legislature to direct the inquiry.

Questioned as to Speaker Gibbons' eligibility as a citizen before the military court, the governor pointed out that "he easily can be made a member of the national guard."

Murray county is in the southern part of the state.

The statement of the delegation, which called upon Governor Walton at his residence, was made public by the executive as follows:

Statement Given Out.

"The conditions of this county are in a deplorable condition and are becoming worse. One of our citizens recently was flogged and the officers are wholly incapable or are unwilling to find the guilty parties. Several of our citizens have received anonymous letters and have appealed to our officers but the officers are doing nothing.

"A notice was mailed to Emmet Hendrix demanding that he leave the county within a week. He did not leave and at the expiration of said week his home was burned. The officers have done nothing and since that time other threatening letters have been received by numerous citizens and no arrests have been made of the authors of said letters. We seriously contend that the civil authorities of this county are unwilling or unable to find the perpetrators of these outrages.

"A number of our citizens and the governor of our state have been criminally libelled by the publication and distribution of an anonymous circular over our city and county between the hours of midnight and 2 o'clock a. m. Some of the parties that perpetrated this act are well known and confessed Ku Klux Klansmen. There is not the least hope of bringing them to justice under the present reign of the Ku Klux lan officers in this county.

Sheriff Uttered Threats.

"The sheriff of the county by threats of personal violence threatened the editor of the Sulphur Democrat for the publishing of facts relating to his office. Under these conditions the people who are not members of the Ku Klux Klan are totally unsafe in person and in property in this county and unless relief is accorded and martial law is established in this county there will be trouble and possibly bloodshed.

"The press has been muzzled by this Ku Klux Klan tyrannical sheriff. Other facts, requests and details now are on file in your office.

"Numerous felonious crimes have been brought to the attention of this sheriff and other officers of this county and they have done nothing. In our opinion there is no doubt that these crimes have been committed by members of the Ku Klux Klan and for this reason prosecutions cannot be made."

C. H. Parks is the sheriff of Murray county.

Twenty-three citizens of Sulphur, the county seat, signed the petition.

PYROTECHNICS FADE AS SOLONS FILE SUIT.

Oklahoma City, September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The pyrotechnics that have kept Oklahoma aflame since Governor J. C. Walton opened his war on the Ku Klux Klan, and state legislators in turn instituted a drive to impeach the executive, began to fade out tonight with a long court battle in prospect.

The first move to test in the courts the legality of the special session of the lower house of the legislature, called by members who hold it is their right to investigate the official acts of Governor Walton was taken in state district court here late today. Sixty-seven house members applied for a temporary injunction restraining Adjutant General B. H. Markham and all members of the Oklahoma national guard from interferring with meetings of the house.

No order was issued by the court during the brief proceedings and by agreement of all parties, hearing on the petition was set for next Tuesday before Judge J. I. Phelps.

Solons Go Home.

Meanwhile, the house members who gathered here yesterday and attempted to convene, only to be dispersed by military authorities acting under instructions from the governor, began to leave for their homes to await the outcome of the court fight.

A pledge was signed by the legislators that should the courts finally decide they have authority to meet as an impeachment body, they will convene at any time upon call of Representative W. D. McBee, of Stephens county, one of the leaders of the legislators. No further attempt will be made to convene, it was agreed, until the issue is decided in the state supreme court, and then there remains the possibility that the case will go through the long stages of final settlement in the United States supreme court. A temporary injunction, if granted by the district court, will not be made the basis for another attempt to assemble, the legislators decided.

Expressing satisfaction with the situation, Governor Walton declared today "the fight is over so far as the house is concerned." The executive will be represented in the action by Attorney General George F. Short and his assistants.

May Relax Iron Rule.

There were indications tonight that within the next few days the governor would modify his martial law regulations and retire the greater part of the troops now mobilized.

No relaxation in the investigation into cases of mob violence will follow, however, it was made plain.

The injunction petition filed by the legislators declared that the action of Adjutant General B. H. Markham in dispersing them when they gathered at the capitol yesterday and in continuing through force and arms to prevent an assembly "was and is without authority of law, and was and is an invasion of the constitutional and civil rights of these plaintiffs."

The legislators denied in the petition that they have been guilty of any offense against the laws of the state or the nation and disclaimed intention to commit any breaches of the peace.

The petition related that the house members were dispersed when they assembled "in good faith" to determine whether impeachable offenses had been committed by any officers of the state subject to impeachment. The legislaters set out that the session was called in the belief that "many of the guarantees of the constitution of the state have been and are being abrogated by executive action and the liberties of the citizens destroyed, and that numerous acts of the grossest corruption . . . . have been and are being committed."

GERMANY ORDERS RUHR TO RESUME WORK

selves, and which is viewed here as retribution for the leniency which permitted Adolf Hitler and kindred super-patriots to gain a dangerous ascendency over the more moderate nationalists led by Dr. Von Kahr.

The chancellor has notified the entente of the government's decision to cease passive resistance in the Ruhr and the Rhineland.

ALL ALLIED RULES IN RUHR IN FORCE

Paris, September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—All orders and regulations issued by the allied authorities in the Ruhr will be maintained, it was said in official circles tonight, until the situation in Germany clears and it becomes known to just what extreme the passive resistance has ceased in consequence of President Ebert's proclamation. Today's dispatches from Berlin gave no basis for any conclusion as to what turn events may take, and the allies can only continue to wait and watch.

Former Chancellor Cuno's reparation offers are regarded by the allies as having been superseded by the later developments, is learned, and the Germans will be expected to make entirely new proposals. If they decide to do so, then the allies are ready to turn the reparation clock back to January 11 and consider the whole situation anew, provided they are assured earnest co-operation from the German government.

STREET FIGHTS RAGE IN DRESDEN.

London, September 27.—Dr. Gessler, minister of defense in the Stresemann cabinet, has been appointed military dictator of Germany by President Ebert to counteract the Bavarian revolutionary movements, says a Central News dispatch from Berlin.

Street fighting between communists and sections of the less extreme radicals is reported from Dresden where the parties were holding meetings and processions, a Berlin dispatch to the Central News states. It adds that one man was killed, five fatally wounded and 20 others injured.

DISORDERS FOLLOW DICTATORSHIP ACTION.

Duesseldorf, September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The miners in the Gelsenkirshen, Recklinghusen and Wanne districts, the heart of the Ruhr mine fields, declared a general strike today as the first action in protest against the Berlin government's decision to give up passive resistance, and also against the exploitation of the district by the French. It is estimated that 6,000 miners had quit work up to noon with thousands of others expected to follow.

The report on the miners' action received at French headquarters here caused some alarm, as it was feared the strike might be followed by general rioting, necessitating severe repressive measures. The French report says the movement was prompted purely by the communist factions which have mustered an unusually large following.

Aside from this movement of the miners the population of the occupied territory is apparently calm, taking the Berlin decision philosophically. As evidence of this there is cited an offer by the director of the Duesseldorf branch of the reichsbank today to furnish for the expenses of the army of occupation a sufficient number of marks to equal 15,000 francs daily. The French also announce the resumption of the telegraph and telephone services at Mayence.

MEETINGS PROHIBITED IN BAVARIA.

Munich, Bavaria, September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Dr. von Kahr, the Bavarian military dictator, has prohibited meetings of the followers of Adolph Hitler, the fascist leader, and all other political gatherings.

The reichswher troops have been reinforced by contingents from lower Bavaria.

Gessler demanded that Dr. von Kahr authorize the holding of the fourteen meetings the Hitlerites had called. Dr. von Kahr, however, declined to accede to this demand, maintaining the prohibition upon these and other meetings.

Calm prevails in Munich today.

An official communique stated that at a meeting held this morning Dr. von Kahr and General von Lossow, commander of the Bavarian reichswher, declared they would execute the orders of the Bavarian government without question.

TAX DISTRIBUTION URGED AT HEARING

tion," Mr. Anderson said. "By a sales tax, you pay as you go and there is the great advantage. I believe a sales tax would accomplish a fair and equable distribution of the tax burden."

Mr. Anderson pointed to the good results of the sales tax in Canada and said the measure was receiving careful consideration in other countries. He said he favored a combined income and sales tax and that there should be income tax that would reach every man and work to levy taxes in a fair and just way. Mr. Anderson declared that there should be no exemptions in the income tax. He said that mortgages should be free from taxation, except for the registration fees and gave figures showing that taxes on mortgages operated in an unfair way toward a man who was trying to build up a business or industry.

Walker Asks Support.

Governor Walker and the members of the commission gave careful consideration to the arguments presented. The governor asked that full support and cooperation be given the commission and that the people of the state cooperate in giving the methods that would be suggested to the general assembly a fair trial.

"It is probable," the governor said, "that the legislature will be asked to appoint a budget committee which will see to it that the system is handled in a fair manner. The tax system never has been, and probably never will be perfect, but the members of the commission have been selected for their peculiar fitness in tax matters and are in a position to make the best recommendations possible under the conditions."

The governor emphasized that there was no politics in the commission, that the members were imbued with an earnest desire to remedy the tax situation in Georgia.

Speakers Questioned.

The governor's talk was warmly applauded and the support and cooperation of the gathering was pledged.

State Senator T. S. Mason, chairman of the commission, presided. An opportunity was given to each man present to ask questions about tax matters and members of the commission frequently questioned the speakers to gain a clearer view of their suggestions.

Judge Harris, who represented barber shop owners of Macon, declared that the occupation taxes should be removed as they operated in an unfair way. He was an advocate of the sales tax.

H. R. DeJarnette, of Eatonton, pointed out that it was the uniformity of rate in the ad valorem tax, which taxed all things alike on the same rate, that worked in an unfair way.

Dr. W. J. Little advocated the abolition of the ad valorem tax of the state and the substitution of the sales tax.

Walter DeFore, Macon attorney, spoke in behalf of the Macon Federation of Trades. He argued the advisability of an income tax, with no exemption in so far as it is profitable to the state.

J. Clay Murphey, Macon real estate dealer, was one of the speakers who favored the exemption of mortgages from taxation.

Must Consider Farmer.

W. C. Stokes, of Jeffersonville, clerk of the superior court, emphasized the necessity of considering the special needs of the farmer in the construction of new tax laws. Mr. Stokes said it was also important that full consideration be given to the new system of taxation which are being worked out in other states.

Governor Walker declared that the farmer, as all other citizens of the state, would be given full consideration in the system which would be worked out. He pointed out that there were men on the commission intimately acquainted with farm affairs and that one of the special problems would be to work out a fair and just system on the taxation of land and tangible property.

SAVANNAH PREPARES FOR HEARING.

Savannah, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Governor Clifford Walker will tomorrow make his first official visit to Savannah since assuming office, coming with a party of seventeen, the recently organized tax commission for the state, from Macon where hearings were held tonight, to hold hearings on various phases of the tax question here. The hearings will not be open to the public, it is said, except as individuals or concerns or organizations wish to appear to bring to the attention of the commision matters touching the subject in hand. The Savannah board of trade, through the young men's dynamo, will be hosts to the governor and his party at a dinner at 2 o'clock tomorrow at the DeSoto, at which probably three hundred will be present.

The half dozen other civic organizations and luncheon clubs, and about fifty members of the legislature from the Savannah "zone" counties will be present. Already there are a score or more leading citizens from various parts of the section in Savannah awaiting the coming of the governor and commisioners to lay before them various matters relating to the tax problem.

SOUTHEASTERN FAIR WILL OPEN OCTOBER 6

The Southeastern Fair will open at noon Saturday, October 6, and according to President Oscar Mills, practically every exhibit will be in place and everything will be in fine shape on the opening day.

People who attend the fair this year are promised the greatest exhibition of the kind ever staged in the south, and from what the railroad people say, and from the information that comes to General Manager R. M. Stripling, the attendance will be the biggest in the history of Atlanta fairs.

The finest line of attracions has been secured for the midway; the free acts that will be staged in the Hippodrome will be unsurpassed; the display of fireworks, especially the "Burning of Atlanta" by Sherman's army, will undoubtedly excel anything ever shown in the way ot pyrotechnics in the southeast; the horse races, trotting, pacing and running, will equal any of the events staged on the northern and eastern tracks, while the agricultural, livestock and machinery exhibits will be the finest ever seen here.

Final touches are now being placed on the fair grounds. Every road inside the grounds, as is every sidewalk, is paved with concrete. There will be no mud in event of rain and no dust should it not rain.

Special arrangements for parking cars inside of the grounds have been completed and the parking will be so done that any person desiring to leave any time during the day or night will be able to get away instantly. There will be no blocking as has been the case heretofore. Outside the grounds there will be a checking arrangement for automobiles, but those who come inside the grounds with their machines also will be provided with excellent facilities.

WALKER WILL SET DATE FOR HEARING IN BARRETT CASE

Governor Walker, when he returns from the tour of the special tax commission on Saturday, probably will set a date for hearings on an application for extradition against members of the firm of Barrett & Co., Inc., of Augusta, now in receivership, it was stated at his office Thursday.

Requests for extradition of Frank H. Barrett, Julian Barrett and Thomas Barrett, Jr., were made by Governor McLeod, of South Carolina. The documents attached to the request sets forth that these three, with Thomas Getzen, did obtain property by fraudulent pretense. The specific instance set forth in the case is charged by C. R. Lybrand, of Aiken county, S. C., who says they represented to him on March 22, last, that he should not do business with any other cotton factors, inasmuch as the firm of Barrett & Co. Inc., was the "largest and financially strongest" in the south.

This representation, the complaint charges, was made by the defendants, when they knew it to be false, and as a result of it the plaintiff, Lybrand, delivered to them 3,000 bales of lint cotton, which transaction resulted in a total loss to him of $13,077.

Attorneys for the Barretts have announced they will oppose extradition.

Atlantans Asked To Give Clothing To Aid Japanese

Friday, October 5, has been officially set aside by municipal officials of Atlanta and local officers of the Salvation Army as "Bundle Day," when an effort will be made to secure a whole carload of ready-made clothing, sewing materials and notions, to be sent to sufferers from the recent earthquake in Japan.

A special appeal will be made to Atlantans to respond in the most hearty manner in order that the donation to the stricken people of the Flowery Kingdom may be in keeping with the way this city extends a helping hand to other communities when misfortune and calamity causes desolation and suffering.

Attention of citizens is called to the fact that winter is rapidly approaching and that as it requires something like thirty days for a package to travel from Georgia to Japan. The people who wish to add to the offering that is to be made must act promptly, in order that relief be afforded children whose clothes were destroyed.

The King Hardware company, one of the largest commercial institutions of the city, has offered its ten branch stores to be used by the leaders of the movement as receiving depots, and housewives who wish to contribute clothing or materials to the cause, are invited to leave their bundles at the nearest store of the company. Those who wish to do so may send or bring their packages in earlier than "Bundle Day," and they will be received by the hardware company and turned over to the proper authorities. Those who are unable for any cause to send bundles to any of the stores or to the Salvation Army, are asked to notify the social service department of the army, and trucks will be sent to houses for bundles.

The appeal for clothing is made largely for the relief it will bring to suffering little ones in the stricken land, and it is believed that the response of Atlanta people will be a most generous one.

The ten branch stores of the King Hardware company are located as followed: 814 Peachtree street; near corner of Gordon and Lee street; near West End; 135 Whitehall; 122 Decatur street; 252 Peters street; 202, 431-772 Marietta street (three stores); 145 North Moreland, near "Little Five Points."

Mrs. Justiss Will Probably Face Jury Early in October

Solicitor John A. Boykin indicated Thursday that the trial of Mrs. Ollie Justiss, charged with the murder of L. W. Turner last Saturday night, will be set for the second week in October.

Although investigators are still working on the case, practically all evidence necessary for the trial is already in the possession of the state, it was asserted at the solicitor's office. Mrs. Justiss was indicted Tuesday.

"Cat" Nibbling Toes Of Awakened Farmer Proves To Be Rattler

Athens, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—R. J. Thompson, well-known Walton county farmer, early one morning felt something moving about the foot of his bed. He thought it was the cat. The next instant the animal bit him.

Mr. Thompson lighted the lamp to run the cat from the room but discovered he had been bitten by a rattle snake which had crawled into the house. Medical attention prevented serious developments.

MERCHANTS PLAN WAR ON PEDDLERS

Concentrated efforts to eliminate unfair competition at hands of irresponsible peddlers and itinerant merchants will be made by the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association during the next six months, according to the program of activities outlined to the membership Thursday nigh by Secretary C. V. Hohenstein.

Mr. Hohenstein, at the first fall meeting of the association, assailed the peddlers as being detrimental to sound business. He pointed out that they are required to pay only a small license fee, have no rent to pay, and do not bear their burden of taxes.

"Atlanta, of course, is not the only city suffering from this evil," he said. "Other large cities have this same unfair competition, and to eliminate the practice here we will study the methods used in other localities in combating the peddlers."

The principal address of the evening was delivered by Rabbi David Marx, his topic being "Business Fellowship." He was introduced by Samuel Rothberg, former president of the association.

President T. H. Latham presided. Vice President A. L. Myers, chairman of the membership committee, reported a total addition of 70 new members recently.

Members of the Atlanta Florists and Horticulturists' club, which recently affiliated with the retail merchants, were present for the first time. Rolynd Lyons, of the H. G. Hastings company, spoke briefly in behalf of the florists' division.

The program concluded with a symposium conducted by F. E. Kamper, on the budget system for retail stores.

Particulars Bill Is Not Necessity, Says Court Rule

Litttle Rock, Ark., September 27. Judge Jacob Trieber in United States district court here today denied a motion of the United States government asking modification of a recent order requiring the government to file a bill of particulars in its suit for $3,000,000 against James Stewart company of New York, original contractor for the building of Camp Pike.

Great importance is attached to the decision because of the bearing it may have on eleven similar suits against war time contractors totalling $58,000,000 which the government has filed in various parts of the country.

Judge Trieber in denying the motion, ruled that the government would not be required to fill a specific bill of each irregularity charged in the suit but that the complaint must set out a general course of discrepancies charged by the government in order to allow the defendant a basis on which to prepare its defense.

Man Pinned To Tree By Bull's Horn, Kicks His Way to Safety

Savannah, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Frank Cleary, a local cattleman, is in a hospial today as a result of being gored through one hand by an angry sharp-horned bull who objected by self-defensive methods to being slaughtered. Mr. Cleary attempted to throw the bull by twisting his horns, but his hands slipped and the animal pined him to a tree and drove a horn through his hand and into the tree. The pinioned man kicked the animal in the face, staggered him, and leaped a fence, suddenly realizing his injury. He drove his truck to town, but has been in bed since.

TO MAP FARM PLANS AT MEET IN ATHENS

Athens, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Fifteen county agricultural agents and a large number of farmers from counties in this section will meet in the court house Friday morning at 11 o'clock for the purpose of mapping out a farm program.

District Agent T. L. Asbury, whose headquarters are in Augusta, will attend the meeting and aid in developing the program. Division heads at the State College of Agriculture, led by Dr. J. Phil Campbell, director of extension, will be present to discuss the program and help in shaping it to conform to the needs of this section.

The meeting in Athens Friday is one of a series being held throughout the state this week under auspices of the State College of Agriculture.

JAMES G. GRAY DIES AT PRIVATE HOSPITAL

James G. Gray, 51, of Brunson, S. C., died in a local hospital Thursday. He is survived by four daughters, Miss Sallie May Gray, Mrs. George Harryman, Mrs. George Rowe, all of Atlanta, and Mrs. Frank Lenhardt, of Toccoa, Ga.; three sisters, Mrs. J. J. Hendley, Mrs. Hattie Williams, and Mrs. Daisy Auld, all of Atlanta, and one brother, Miles Gray, of Atlanta. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the chapel of Barclay & Brandon. Interment will be in West View cemetery, Rev. L. O. Bricker officiating.

M'PHERSON OFFICERS WILL ADDRESS LEGION

"Fort McPherson day" will be observed by Atlanta post, No. 1, of the American Legion at its regular weekly luncheon meeting at 12:30 o'clock today in the Kimball House. Major General Shanks, Major General Johnson, Colonel Kimbrough and Major Whitee will be among the leading army officers to address the meeting. In addition a splendid program of music will be furnished by the Fort McPherson orchestra.

Post No. 1 also will hold a meeting at 8 o'clock in the American Legion headquarters. Following the business session Harl Smith's jazz orchestra will entertain the members.

New Deputy Marshal.

Athens, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—T. L. Allen, of Paulding county, has been appointed U. S. deputy marshal for this district and has assumed his duties in Athens, the headquarters. Mr. Allen succeeds Dr. J. A. Whiting, who recently resigned. The new deputy was recently in the government service as prohibition agent. He lives at Dallas, Ga.

Lee Kinney Is Held.

Athens, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Lee Kinney, wanted by state and federal authorities here, was arrested late Wednesday by Bailiff H. D. Huff, of Clarke county, and is now in jail pending trial. Kinney is charged with stealing an automobile and operating an automobile without a license tag. The federal autnorities want him for violation of the prohibition law.

1923 Farm Income To Show Increase Over Last Year

Minneapolis, Minn., September 27. Estimates by the department of agriculture "give every reason to believe that the 1923 farm income will exceed that of 1922 from a half billion to a billion dollars, which will mean an increased return of from $1 to $2 an acre," E. T. Meredith, of Des Moines, former secretary of agriculture, said in an address here today.

"In my opinion," Mr. Meredith said in speaking before the convention of the American Specialty Manufacturers' association, "business will, therefore, continue at its present fair rate. The September 1, 1923 report of the department of agriculture shows that the index finger of farm prices on that date stood 22.1 per cent higher than a year ago, and 25.5 per cent higher than two years ago."

BRIBERY ATTEMPT LAID TO VIOLATOR OF TRAFFIC LAWS

Albert Reed, negro, Thursday in police court drew a fine of $6 for violating the traffic ordinance and was bound over to the state courts under a charge of attempted bribery.

Reeds' plight started, first out of violating the traffic ordinance, in that he had no tail light on his automobile. Then he offered Patrolman Burks and Howard the sum of $3 for his liberty.

Reed is still out his $3, which the police are holding as evidence until his trial in the higher court.

FAIR WEATHER TODAY STATES FORECASTER

Fair weather with no noticeable change in temperature will be Atlanta's weither program today, according to C. F. von Herrmann, local meteorologist. He stated Thursday that fair weather would continue to prevail in Atlanta for the next few days with low temperatures.

War on Mosquitoes.

Valdosta, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Sanitary Engineer Clarkson is in Valdosta starting work of draining the large area northeast of the city which has long been a breeding place for mosquitoes. Dynamite will be used to blast out the canals which will drain the section to Mile Branch, just north of the city.

Is Your Account Appreciated or Tolerated?

"Dead Beat" Is Gone
"Slow Pay" Is Going
"Prompt Pay" Is Here

Co-operation among Atlanta Retail Credit Men, through the medium of their interlocking credit record system, has practically eliminated the "dead beat"—the man who knowingly and willfully buys beyond his means, or who evades the payment of his just obligations.

The same instrument will now be used by Merchants and Professional Men, members of the Associated Retail Credit Men of Atlanta, to eliminate slow and undesirable accounts, and to impress upon all charge customers alike the necessity of meeting their bills promptly when due.

This is a condition forced upon merchants and all others who are behind this campaign, regardless of their desires. Always an imposition, it is now no longer a possibility. The business situation calls for cash when due.

The merchant who sells you merchandise upon regular or specifically arranged terms, has a right to expect and demand payment when due, just as much as his own employee has a right to his pay on payday.

"Open accounts" are payable not later than the tenth of month following purchase. Not that special terms can not be arranged for specific purchases, for they can, but the only desirable customer these days is the man or woman or firm or corporation that pays on the day agreed upon.

Let us be plain. If you have been taking your time in paying your bills because you felt the merchant was either unable or unwilling to enforce his terms, take heed. Pay last month's purchases now—the account is past due. Your future credit standing depends not upon how can you pay, but how do you pay.

WARD DEFENSE GOES UNDER FIRE

White Plains, N. Y., September 27. (By The Associated Press.)—Opening with a vigorous attack on the long address to the jury yesterday by Isaac N. Mills, chief of the defense staff, Attorney General Carl Sherman today began summation of the prosecution's case against Walter S. Ward, charged with murdering Clarence M. Peters, of Haverhill, Mass.

Mr. Sherman characterized Mr. Mills' address "a pitiful demonstration against conclusive and damaging evidence" and said it was intended as a smoke screen to camouflage the inability of the defense to disprove the state's testimony.

The attorney general said there has been ample evidence to convict Ward since last year, when he recommended prosecution after the first indictment was handed down.

Mrs. Ward Present.

Mrs. Ward, the defendant's wife, came to the courtroom before the session opened carrying a half dozen handkerchiefs in one hand and a packet of letters in the other, from which several other handkerchiefs projected.

After asserting that Ward has asked for a jury trial Mr. Sherman told the jurors that they should not be persuaded by sympathy. Ward, he said, was on trial for his life as he deserved to be.

"There is just one issue: did Walter fire a bullet that killed Clarence Peters?" asked the attorney general. "There is no doubt that he did. He surrendered thinking he could put across his plea of self-defense. There is nothing circumstantial about his belated surrender and about these guns you have seen."

Mr. Sherman asked the jurymen if they did not want to know the details of the blackmail plot Ward has alleged he was implicated in. Allan R. Campbell, one of the defense attorneys, objected to Mr. Sherman saying that Ward had paid $40,000 to the blackmailers to preserve his secret but Justice Wagner told the attorney general to continue.

No Proof of Plot.

Mr. Sherman contended that Ward was asking the jury to believe that he was blackmailed without offering any proof and he asked the jurymen if they would not like to see the letters Ward said the blackmailers wrote to him. He said that no one had ever heard of "Ross" and "Rogers," the two men mentioned by Ward as accomplices of Peters.

Then, denying the defense assertion that Peters was a gunman, hired by the blackmailers, Mr. Sherman said that the murdered man had had no gun.

"If the state has convinced you that Ward planted that gun you must believe him guilty of first degree murder," he declared. "He killed a man twelve years younger and much smaller than himself."

"He says he drove a mile up the road, turned around and came back, picking up the gun. Isn't that incredible? Isn't that impossible?"

Cucumber Shipments.

Valdosta, Ga., September 27.—(Special.) — Cucumber shipments from the many Lowndes county fields will begin next week. The shipments next week will be by express, but the following week the cucumbers will begin to move in car load lots.

East Point Will Hold Annexation Meeting Tonight

Stating that annexation of the three suburban communities of East Point, Hapeville and College Park will be welcomed by Atlanta, Mayor Walter A. Sims Thursday declared that in his opinion, "annexation will mean more to the residents of the three cities than it will to Atlanta at this time."

Citizens of the three towns will decide whether or not they are to become part of the greater Atlanta which lies so near them, at a special election to be held on Tuesday next. Interest in the result of the election is at fever heat, although it is in East Point that the greatest activity centers. This is because it is generally admitted that the sentiment in favor of annexation in College Park and Hapeville is practically unanimous, the only opposition of any moment having developed in East Point.

East Point Is Key Note.

East Point is, in another sense, the key point for the entire proposal, inasmuch as a defeat there would mean defeat in all three places, no matter how unanimously the College Park and Hapeville people voted for annexation. East Point lies between Atlanta and the other two towns, and the bill authorizing the election provides that if the nearest town elects to remain a separate corperate entity, the other two must also remain separate.

There will be a great mass meeting at 7:30 o'clock Friday night at Jefferson Park, East Point, when every voter will be urged to cast his ballot for annexation. Speakers from Atlanta will take part in the program, as well as prominent citizens of all three towns chiefly affected, and a large crowd is expected to be present.

From Atlanta's standpoint, said Mayor Sims, the chief benefit to accrue if annexation wins on Tuesday, will be the additional population of more than 20,000 which will be brought within her limits, to aid her in the march toward half a million population.

Towns Will Benefit.

On the other hand, the three towns will benefit in material way on four important points, if they join the city. They will get better water supply, better sewerage and sanitation, better school facilities and better fire protection.

Mayor Sims also laid particular emphasizes upon the fact that each of the three will get full representation in the city government. If they come in, each one will be a separate city ward, with full quota of membership in city council, and with full recognition in all city governmental affairs.

"They are not coming in as proteges, but as an integral part of the city," he said, "and as such will share equally with the rest of the city in all expenditures of city money, they will help to frame city ordinances, and help govern the entire city."

Reports from active workers in East Point received Thursday indicated that the opposition is fast lessening. This has chiefly emanated from a few manufacturing interests that feared a possible increase in total taxes if their plants should be placed within the limits of the city.

All Atlantans who feel an interest in the proposal, are urged to attend the meeting in East Point and are assured of an interesting evening and enjoyable entertainment.

MOTHER OF GIRL KILLED IN CRASH FIGHTS FOR LIFE

Columbus, Ga., September 27.—While funeral arrangements were being made by other members of her family for Miss Nannie Key, 20, who was instantly killed in an automobile accident near Chipley late yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Madison L. Key, mother of the dead girl, was lying at a city hospital here in a serious condition.

There were seven in the big touring car, which was operated as a taxicab. The machine was running between 30 and 35 miles an hour and ran into a reversible curve. Going under a railroad trestle, at such speed, the driver was unable to control the car and a rear wheel caught on one of the trestle supports throwing the occupants clear of the machine.

Miss Key suffered a broken neck and a badly crushed head, death resulting instantly. Mrs. Key was thrown 15 feet from the car, landing in a ditch. It is feared she was injured internally. Four others were hurt in the smash.

Funeral services for Miss Key will be held Friday.

Holder Will Aid Stone Mountain Highway Project

Prospects of a highway from the town of Stone Mountain to the town of Grayson, passing the great Confederate memorial and making it easy to reach from the east and the west, took a bright turn Thursday when a delegation of citizens from Gwinnett, Walton and DeKalb counties appeared before Chairman John N. Holder of the state highway board and obtained his pledge of cooperation.

Chairman Holder promised to introduce in the highway board, at its next meeting, October 5, a resolution requesting the federal authorities to make the Grayson-Stone Mountain road a federal aid project. He expressed confidence that the board would pass the resolution and that the federal authorities would comply with the request.

"Of course, I cannot speak for my colleagues on the highway board," Chairman Holder said, "but I am thoroughly convinced of the public necessity for a highway running past the memorial, and will present my views to the other members of the board as strongly as I know how. Also, I am satisfied that if the board requests the federal authorities to make this a federal aid project, they will do so."

Federal aid would mean that half the cost of the highway would be paid by the federal government. The other half would have to come from the counties of DeKalb, Gwinnett and Walton, with as much financial assistance from the state highway department as its funds would enable it to give.

The distance from Grayson to the town of Stone Mountain is thirteen and a fraction miles. The road runs directly past the steep side of the mountain where the memorial is being carved. It is already a fairly good road, but not up to standard of improved state highways, being in need of some better grades and widening and a smooth surface. At Grayson the road taps a state highway running from Monroe to Lawrenceville. At Stone Mountain (town) it taps the paved boulevard running from Decatur to the town.

Four Towns Represented.

In the delegation appearing before Chairman Holder were prominent citizens of Monroe, headed by E. M. Williams and Orrin Roberts; a number of the leading citizens of Loganville, headed by C. A. Webb; of Snellville, headed by Professor L. P. Green and T. A. Pate; and of the town of Stone Mountain, headed by Dr. J. Cheston King and Steve McCurdy.

All of these citizens made speeches urging the necessity for an improved highway running past the memorial. Without exception they declared their towns are swarming every day with tourists from the east who are hunting the way to the mountain. As the existing highways now stand, it was pointed out, there is no improved highway leading to the mountain from the east, and people from that direction must come all the way to Atlanta and double back.

Lack of Highway Hurts.

It was further pointed out that a large volume of tourists from the east come into the state through Hartwell and Athens and then branch off down the eastern boundary routes to Florida because there is no highway taking them directly past the memorial.

"Georgia is not so poor that it cannot build a highway to the most glorious work of art in all history," declared Dr. King. "We have simply got to have this link from Grayson to Stone Mountain put in shape," declared Mr. Pate.

Mrs. C. M. Sanders, of Monroe, delivered a very eloquent and effective plea for the highway, in which she described the memorial as "the supreme handiwork of mankind, which will make our state the Mecca of the world for all time to come."

legislative sanction that would be necessary to effect the change. It was indicated by board members Thursday that such an effort would be made before the next session of the Georgia general assembly next June with the view to legalizing "the consolidation in order that it may become effective by the opening of schools in September, 1924.

Superintendent Sutton told board members Thursday that it would be impossible to operate the Atlanta school system much longer with its present revenue, which is fixed by law as 26 per cent of the total income of the city of Atlanta. He said that the schools' income actually amounts to the same sum that would be raised by a school tax of about six mills.

The county schools have been operated with special school taxes of 7 1-2 mills which have been found inadequate and the county commissioners last week voted a special county-wide school assessment of an additional mill to make up a prospective deficit of about $70,000 and to provide for buildings to house the rapidly growing school population.

Richmond county, Superintendent Sutton said, is operated under a consolidated city-county system and its school revenue amounts to a school tax of 14 mills.

City Will Not Profit.

W. L. McCalley, chairman of the finance and building committee of the school board, said Thursday that he did not expect the county school board would appropriate to Atlanta schools any of the $250,000 to be raised by the special county-wide one mill school tax. Although the tax is assessed against city as well as county property, he said, the law does not compel apportionment of the money to any municipal school system within the county.

The city of Atlanta cannot, under the present law, benefit by any general county or city school tax. Should the two school systems be consolidated, the county could levy a tax up to five mills for the entire system to supplement local school tax assessments and the fixed revenue of the city of Atlanta's schools.

Under present conditions, the city school system is so hard pressed for funds that it cannot even pay this year for the ten portable school buildings, to cost $23,950, which are necessary to house the overflow of children from the Marietta street and Roach-Mitchell schools. The buildings are to be bought under an agreement to pay for them next year. They will house about 800 pupils.

SAUNDERS CASE IS POSTPONED

Memphis, Tenn., September 27.—Hearing of the receivership suit of Clarence Saunders against the Piggly Wiggly corporation, scheduled for resumption today before C. L. Mariliott, federal master in chancery, was postponed until tomorrow because of the engagement of Saunders' counsel in the trial of a case in federal court.

With the appointment yesterday by Judge J. W. Ross, of a special receiver for approximately $1,500,000 stock of the Piggly Wiggly Stores, inc., alleged to have been pledged by Saunders, and his associates, E. W. Bradford, R. L. Jordan and R. F. Carr, and the issuance of an injunction restraining the institution of new suits against the two Piggly Wiggly corporations, the way was cleared for resumption of the receivership hearing without the fear of complications through the filing of additional litigation and dealing in the stock alleged to have been pledged.

COTTON FARM AID SUCCESS IN FLOYD

Rome, Ga., September 27.—(Special.) — Floyd county's "revolving fund"—every penny of the $20,000 which went last spring to buy calcium arsenate and better cotton seed for the farmers of the county—will be returned within the next few days to its subscribers. Because of this $20,000 and the purposes to which it was put, Floyd county will produce, it is estimated, at least twice as much cotton as would otherwise have been possible. Yet it has cost the subscribers nothing except the interest on the money for less than 12 months.

Thus ends in complete success a venture which attracted more than state-wide attention and one that few even among those who backed it believed could prove entirely successful.

Early in the year, Rome bankers and merchants held a conference to determine what should be done to assist the farmers of the county, who were faced with a discouraging prospect. Little cotton had been made the year before and few farmers were able to buy either high grade seed or the calcium arsenate necessary to the successful raising of a crop of cotton.

Led by the bankers and encouraged by progressive business men of the city and county, the business interests of Rome raised $20,000 to be used in the purchase of cotton seed and calcium arsenate. Both were to be sold to farmers at just what they cost. The Georgia-Alabama Warehouse company agreed to store both the seed and the poison and to distribute it free of charge.

With the fund thus raised, 120,000 pounds of calcium arsenate and a carload of the best seed of early-maturing cotton were purchased. These were distributed to farmers, who were thus able to buy for cash in small lots at quantity prices.

Now, that the deal has been completed, there is still on hand a small quantity of arsenate and some seed. The two together represent only a very small part of the initial outlay, however, and even these will be disposed of without trouble at the beginning of another cotton season. And every cent of the money, the $10,000 that the merchants subscribed, and the $10,000 that the banks put up, will be repaid.

The benefits accruing from the transaction are many and varied, its promoters point out. Farmers are raising the best crop of cotton in northwest Georgia; they have been helped over a period of extreme depression; they have been taught the value of calcium arsenate in cotton raising, and of good seed; and what is even more important, Rome business men declare, Floyd county farmers have been made to feel as they have never felt before that Rome is interested in their welfare. This alone, promoters of the plan declare, would have made the transaction worth many times the trouble which has proven its only cost.

New York Exhibits.

Rome, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Two railroads that traverse Georgia did much to advertise the state's natural resources at an exposition of chemical industries held last week in Grand Central Palace, in New York city, according to C. H. Stone, of this city, who is just back from the eastern metropolis.

The Central of Georgia and the Southern are the two roads that had Georgia exhibits at the exposition, according to Mr. Stone, who says that the displays were a revelation not only to people from other sections of the country, but to Georgians who saw them. Northwest Georgia and Floyd county were very favorably represented, Mr. Stone says.

Physicians Meet.

Rome, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Fifty-eight delegates, the largest atendance in the history of the organization attended the regular semi-annual meeting of the Seventh District Medical association, which was held in Cartersville Wednesday. The business of the meeting was conducted largely in the forenoon, a number of papers on subjects of importance being read. The visitors were then entertained at a luncheon at the Cherokee club as guests of the Bartow county medical society, with the wives of the physicians and a number of young women of Cartersville acting as hostesses.

Advertise Fair.

Rome, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Ten automobiles loaded with Rome business and professional men left the city this morning for an all-day tour of northwest Alabama to boost "Alabama Day" at the Floyd county fair which will be celebrated next Wednesday. In the party were representatives of the local chamber of commerce, the Floyd county farm bureau and the local bankers' organization.

Boost Retail Trade.

Rome, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Special committees from the chamber of commerce are at work to make certain that every retail merchant in the city attends the chamber of commerce retailers' meeting at Carnegie hall tomorrow night when plans for the advancement of the retail business in Rome and the betterment of retail conditions will be worked out.

Enter Cars in Parade.

Rome, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—The Rome Woman's club, the oldest woman's organization in the city, has announced that it will enter ten decorated automobiles in the floral and industrial parade which will take place here Thursday of next week as one of the features of the Floyd county fair. The parade, its promoters expect, will be more than twice as large as anything of its sort ever staged in Rome before. More than fifty new automobiles will be entered by either the dealers or owners who have just bought them.

Textile Editor Brands Bulletin On Labor Tricky

Charlotte, N. C., September 27.—Characterizing as "a tricky and underhand use of statistics" the recent announcement of figures of the children's bureau of the department of labor, since the annulment of the federal child labor law, David Clark, publisher of the Southern Textile bulletin, made public today a "letter of protest" which he had written to Secretary Davis, of the department of labor.

Mr. Clark pointed out that "the periods selected for comparison were the first six months of 1922, when there was unemployment and idleness in almost every industrial section, and the first six months of 1923, which composed a period of unusual industrial activity," and declares that "there is no evidence that there was a greater increase in the employment of young people of fourteen to sixteen years of age than of older persons nor is there any evidence that there was any employment in violation of state laws or outside of the limits of the recent federal child labor law.

Use "Was Underhand."

"It was a tricky and underhand use of statistics, which conveyed to the public the idea that child labor had increased 35 per cent since the federal child labor law had been declared unconstitutional and yet there was no evidence whatever that any of the increased employment was due in any way to the cancellation of the federal child labor law," said Mr. Clark's letter to Mr. Davis.

"An examination of the statistics shows that the larger part of the 35 per cent increase was in states that have restrictions as high or higher than the federal child labor law. It was a contemptible piece of work and we are informed that government funds paid for the publicity."

Charging that the statistics made public are misleading, Mr. Clark said "We might compare the tourists in Florida during the first quarter of 1923 with those present during the second quarter and state that there was a 90 per cent decrease in Florida tourist business. It would be just as logical and fair as the recent comparison showing 35 per cent increase in child labor."

ARMED MEN STRIPPING ABANDONED VESSEL

Los Angeles, September 27.—Sixteen armed men, believed to be from Santa Barbara, have taken possession of the liner Cuba, wrecked on San Miguel island, 35 miles from that city, September 8, and have begun salvage operations, according to reports brought here by three Los Angeles men who paid a visit to the scene.

Those aboard the Cuba threatened to kill those who sought to board her, according to the latter.

It is reported the armed men have already taken blocks, radio sets and aerials, nautical instruments, mahogany doors and panels, glassware, galley gear, linen and parts of the cargo to the value of more than $100,000.

They are said to declare their right to this procedure under a statute of international admiralty law which reads:

"The person who finds property lost at sea or cast upon the shore is protected against interference, although he has no title against the real owner, unless that property has been abandoned completely."

The salvagers assert the Cuba has "been abandoned completely." Lloyds of London, also is said to contend it is the legal owner of the wrecked steamer.

FAMOUS VIOLINS COMING TO AMERICA

London, September 27.—A famous Stradivarius violin known as "the Betts Strad" is going to America, according to the Daily Mail.

The instrument, together with twenty other old violins, has been bought by the American, expert, J. C. Freeman, from H. C. Waddell, Glasgow, meat packer. The purchase price for the lot is understood to have been 56,000 pounds.

Falsone Suicides.

Tampa, Fla., September 27.—Joseph A. Falsone, president of the Falsone Motor company, of Tampa, committed suicide Thursday morning by shooting himself just after announcing his intention of going to his office. Relatives of the dead man were at a loss to account for the rash act, declaring his business and domestic affairs to be free from any causes of despondency. He was 50 years of age and the father of eleven children, all living.

Suggest Changes In Hunter Street Viaduct Ordinance

Property owners who have protested against the present plan for building the Hunter street approach to the Spring street viaduct will withdraw their objections if a new ordinance is adopted to govern the work which will correct alleged weaknesses in the present ordinance, the streets committee of council will be told at its session in the city hall at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

That proposal for a solution will be one of three to be considered by the committee. City Attorney James L. Mayson is to recommend that the entire project be abandoned because of opposition by property owners and Chairman Claude L. Ashley, of the streets committee, is to advise that the city fight the project through the courts to sustain the present ordinance.

Edgewood Widening and Paving.

The compromise proposal of property owners and council members, that the street be widened eight feet by cutting both sidewalks four feet and that the county pay the city's one-third share in the cost of paving, also will come up for removal.

Want Natural Stone.

The park committee in special session at 2:30 o'clock will act on the construction department's request for use of $7,500 of natural stone deposited in a knoll in the James L. Key golf course. If the request is granted, the street committee will immediately authorize that it be quarried; if the request is refused the street committee will have to appropriate $7,500 to buy stone to be used in street paving and repair work. It has only $12,000 for the purpose.

The Hunter street approach problem is expected to bring on a sharp three-cornered fight among advocates of the three courses that have been suggested for the city as a result of an injunction obtained by property owners to stop the work which has been in progress for several weeks.

Oppose Enforcement.

Property owners protested against enforcement of the present ordinance, which fixes special tax assessments for benefits to be derived by property owners from the approach and fixes the amount of indemnity to be paid to property owners who will be injured.

The assessment and indemnity apportionments have been attacked as unfair, with Victor Lamar Smith, of Smith, Hammond & Smith, representing the interests making the attack.

Mr. Smith Thursday gave The Constitution the proposal of the interests he represents for solution of the problem. He would have the present ordinance repealed and the project handled in two new ordinances. The first would create a special taxing district and name the property owners to be benefited by the approach. The second ordinance would fix the amounts to be assessed against the benefited property owners, after the total amount necessary had been ascertained. Public hearing would be held before each ordinance was adopted.

Smith's Proposal.

"We propose that the ordinance adopted July 2, 1923, shall be repealed and these new ordinances adopted," Mr. Smith said. "The first step should be to condemn all strips of property needed for the approach.

"These condemnation proceedings will determine in each instance the value of the easement in short order, by the award of the three assessors selected.

"If the parties are satisfied with the award, the money is paid, and the matter ended.

"In case the city or the owner is dissatisfied with the assessment, an appeal to the superior court lies. If either party is dissatisfied with the decision rendered on the appeal, such party can move for a new trial, and if the motion is overruled, can carry the case to the courts of last resort for final disposition, the city to appeal and except if requested by the underwriter's counsel, who shall be associated with the city's counsel.

"Such an appeal, however, will not delay the work. For if an appeal is taken the city has the right to pay the amount assessed and go on with construction.

Could Advance Money.

"Should the city not be in position to put up the money in any instance, owners benefited by the building of the approach will advance to the city the money needed, taking credit therefor on their final assessments.

"If, on appeal, the assessment is lowered, the property owner is required to refund the excess; if the amendment is raised, the city is required to pay the property owner the additional amount. In this case the benefited owners will make another advance to the city of the amount needed, taking credit therefor as before.

"There will be no trouble in getting from the benefited property owners the needed amounts mentioned. They will be underwritten by an ample number of responsible owners contemporaneously with the passage of the ordinances by the city as herein suggested, and we are quite sure that most, if not all, of the defendants in the condemnation proceedings will waive payment until the condemnation cases are all concluded.

"The ordinance to be passed, referred to above, will be one creating the taxing district, after due notice, and naming the property owners deemed benefited, but providing that the amount of each assessment will be fixed by a subsequent ordinance enacted when the total amount required is ascertained and after adequate hearing and determination and due notice to each benefited property owner of the correctness of the amount of his assessment; such notice, hearing and determination to be provided for in the ordinance creating the taxing district.

"By this plan all legal difficulties will be met and the proposition practically underwritten by the benefited owners in the taxing district."

Advises Dropping Project.

City Attorney James L. Mayson will advise the street committee to drop the project entirely on the ground that litigation will prove too costly.

Mr. Ashley, who is chairman of the committee, will advise that the city go ahead with the fight to sustain the present ordinances and to test the legality of the charter amendment which gives the city authority to create special taxing zones for such projects as the Hunter street approach. The Pryor street and Central avenue viaduct plans are based on prospects of invoking the special tax zone law to raise the funds.

The Edgewood paving and widening project, which resulted in a deadlock at the last meeting of the street committee between property owners favoring and opposing the plan, is believed to have been adjusted, so far as the property owners are concerned, by the compromise which will be submitted to the street committee by the special committee created at that meeting.

The original proposal was for the street to be widened to the full width of 80 feet anticipated in the building line established by a recent ordinance. Many property owners protested that it would cost too much.

Compromise Plan.

The compromise plan is for the street to be widened eight feet by sacrificing four feet of sidewalk on either side and to lay new smooth paving for that width from Peachtree to Boulevard.

The city has not enough money to pay for the new paving so it will be proposed that property owners pay two-thirds, one-third on each side, and that the county supply the other third.

The special committee which effected the compromise was composed of Claude L. Ashley, Harry York and C. D. Knight, from the street committee of council; Brown Hayes, J. K. McDonald, and John S. Cook, from the property owners who proposed the original widening project; J. J. Haverty, John J. Woodside and Winship Nunnally, from the property owners who opposed the original widening plan.

The James L. Key golf course stone quarry, the third problem to be presented to the committee at its session Friday, has aroused a furor among south-side residents who patronize the course.

Must Close Course.

If the construction department is authorized to take the stone, the course will have to be closed for three months and one of the greens, under which the stone is deposited, will have to be replaced before the course is opened again. This will cost the city $200 to replace the green and a loss in revenue from the golf course estimated at $500. If the use of the stone is refused, the city will have to pay 7,500 for stone from another source, according to Mr. Ashley, of the street committee.

Councilman J. J. Greer led the fight at the park committee session against closing the course, declaring that it would break up the game of golf on the south side and would prevent the course ever becoming a great public institution in Atlanta.

Receipts from the course during the last nine months were $1,241.50.

PORTALS OF MINE CLOSED TO JURY

Birmingham, Ala., September 27.—Under the personal direction of Solicitor Davis, the Jefferson county grand jury visited Banner mines today where the mutiny of convicts occurred on September 10. According to the solicitor, admission to the convict camp was denied by Warden Evans, and the grand jury was unable to get an inside view of working conditions there.

For tomorrow's session of the grand jury, Solicitor Davis said that the dentist at Banner and two convicts whose terms expire tomorrow have been summoned. The inquisitorial body will recess Friday afternoon until Monday.

In reference to the visit to Banner mines, Solicitor Davis said:

"Our main purpose in going to Banner was to receive an actual refusal from officials in charge. Efforts to enter Banner must now naturally be confined to legal mesaures. We will demand the right to have convicts appear before the grand jury and testify regarding the mutiny."

LUCKY OR UNLUCKY?

13 of 23 Charges Faced by Man Dismissed.

Savannah, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Willie Floyd holds the record of facing charges, being called upon before the recorder here today to stand up and answer guilty or not guilty to twenty-three different specific accusations for infracted ordinances. He is twenty-three years old and was arrested on the 23rd of the month. Thirteen of the charges were passed over.

PREPARE TO INSTALL VALDOSTA HATCHERY

Valdosta, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—All arrangements for the 40,000-egg hatchery to be installed here have been completed, and it is expected that operation will begin in a short time. A chicken census has been taken in the county and surrounding territory and it was found that there are more than enough pure-bred fowls to keep the plant going at capacity. Many chicken fanciers are adding to their flocks now and it is thought within a short time the hatchery can be enlarged.

K. of C. Leader Passes.

St. Paul, Minn., September 27.—Dr. Edward W. Buckley, supreme physician of the Knights of Columbus, who died last night, will be buried in Calvary cemetery here Saturday morning, it was announced today. Funeral services will be conducted at 9 a. m. at St. Luke's Catholic church.

HOLDS OGEECHEE NOT NAVIGABLE

Savannah, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Though motor boats have been plying the stream, pulling rafts of logs and lumber for a long time, the Ogeechee river, near Savannah, famous for its shad and other things, is legally not "navigable," according to a decision given today at Statesboro by Judge H. B. Strange, of the superior court, who granted an injunction against the White & Hamilton Lumber Company, prayed for by S. B. Lufburrow, Sr., of Sylvania, owner of lands along the river, restraining the company from transporting logs and timber on the Ogeechee.

The decision is based on the opinion of the court as follows: "Under the evidence submitted I believe the Ogeechee river was a navigable stream from the early settlement of this state until about the year 1836, when it was abandoned by the state of Georgia about the time of the building of the Central railroad. I further find it was never taken over by the federal government. I believe either the state or federal government can at any time take charge of this stream and operate it as a navigable stream.

"As I understand the questions made by the pleadings under the law, it is not what this stream was years ago, but what it is now. The original grant or grants covering the particular lands in question are not before me. They were not introduced in evidence and from the testimony introduced I am of the opinion that the plaintiff's land or rights under this deed go to the thread or the center of the stream of the Ogeechee river.

"I am of the opinion from the evidence introduced before me that the defendant acted in good faith in buying the timber along the Ogeechee river and is spending a large amount of money in clearing the stream and it is my opinion that the damages sustained and that may be sustained by the plaintiff can be reasonably estimated by a jury in passing upon this case."

GOVERNOR IS SPEAKER AT MERCER OPENING

Macon, Ga., September 27.—Mercer university, leading Baptist college of the southeast, opened its ninety-first annual session this morning with an enrollment of 882 students, or two hundred more than last year. Among the speakers at the opening session were Governor Clifford Walker, President W. F. Quillian, of Wesleyan college; Mayor Luther Williams and C. B. Lewis, president of the chamber of commerce. Class work begins tomorrow.

REDUCED RATES FOR WORLD DAIRY CONGRESS MEETING

In cooperation with the World's Dairy congress, which is to be held at Syracuse, N. Y., October 7-13, the Southern Railway System announced Thursday that during that period reduced rates will be offered by the system to afford dairy enthusiasts of the south better opportunity to attend he congress.

Considerable interest has been manifested in Georgia in the congress and it is believed numerous dairy farmers from this state will be in attendance. V. L. Estes, district passenger agent, of the Southern system, declared that the railroads are very much interested in the movement.

37 EX-SERVICE MEN JOIN ARMY AT STATION HERE

During the first 23 days in August 69 men enlisted in the United States army in Atlanta, according to figures issued by the local recruiting station, thirty-seven being ex-service men. Officials of the station declared that the ex-service men are returning to their old places in the army with surprising regularity and increase in numbers.

Dies From Poisoning After Sticking Bone Of Fish Into Hand

Statesboro, Ga., September 27.—The funeral of W. A. Kennedy, prominent business man of this city, who died yesterday from blood poisoning contracted from sticking a fishbone in his finger, will take place here tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Burial will be in East Side cemetery.

According to members of the family, Mr. Kennedy was cleaning a string of trout about two weeks ago when his finger was punctured by a bone. When it became infected he was taken to a sanitarium where he died yesterday.

DEKALB COUNTY PLANS SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY

Plans for conducting a county-wide rally of young people in DeKalb county will be discussed at a meeting in the Decatur Presbyterian church at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, it was announced Thursday by the Georgia Sunday School association. All teachers engaged in instructing young men and women in Decatur, Kirkwood and East Atlanta are urged to attend. In addition to discussing plans for the conference, a move will be made to create an organization for promoting Sunday school work for the young men and women of DeKalb county.

BIG STILL IS RAIDED AND TWO MEN JAILED

Seizure of a whisky still of 1,200-gallon capacity three miles north of White Sulphur Springs in Meriwether county and the arrest of two men said to have been working at the plant was announced Thursday by Fred D. Dismuke, federal prohibition director.

The big haul was made Wednesday by Federal Prohibition Agents J. G. Cobb, W. C. Allred and John Barkley. According to Director Dismuke, there is no record in his office of a larger still ever having been captured in his territory.

H. M. Strickland and A. C. Henry, the two men taken into custody at the distillery, were charged with violation of the prohibition act and are slated for a preliminary hearing before Commissioner Brown at Newnan.

Paint Up, Slogan Of Turner County In 12-Day Drive

Every school house in Turner county is to be painted.

This was the announcement made in Atlanta Thursday by Professor W. E. Broach, field agent in agricultural engineering of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, who has charge of the "save the surface campaign" now being conducted.

Final arrangements have been made for a whirlwind clean up and paint up drive, Mr. Broach said stating that Atlanta paint dealers have cooperated generously with eastern manufacturers in furnishing material for the work. Starting next Monday, the painters will work four days each week for three weeks in an educational campaign to show the value of paint. A number of speakers will lecture during the period on various phases of wood presevation and benefits to be derived from painting exposed surfaces.

Turner county has been divided into four districts, and seven crews of painters will be at work during the twelve days. All of the school buildings in the county are to be painted white. The ultimate aim of the campaign is to have every structure in Turner gleaming under a new coat of paint.

"Better put it on than put it off," is the slogan of the drive, Mr. Broach stated.

EVERYTHING IS READY FOR YAARAB'S PICNIC

Yaarab Temple's picnic and outing at Lakewood Park Saturday is expected to be the best of the annual Shrine outings ever held by Yaarab Temple. Potentate W. Bayne Gibson has had final reports from all committee members, and everything is declared to be in readiness to receive and entertain the hosts of Shriners, ladies and children who will be guests of the Temple.

Potentate Gibson has purchased the entire park for the day, and from 10 in the morning until 10 o'clock at night no one will be admitted excepting Shriners and immediate members of their families. Gates to the park will be guarded by Noble Fred Woodall and the members of the degree team, and their instructions are to admit no one without a 1923 Shrine card or a special family admission ticket, which can only be secured by applying to Recorder Argard at Shrine headquarters, 190 Peachtree street.

Every amusement concession within the park will be free to the guests, and Nobles F. E. Van der Veer, Frank Cundell and Bradford Byrd, with members of the patrol, chanters an oriental band, will be in charge of the amusement devices to see that all have a chance to ride without long waits for their turns. Potentate Gibson having ordered that all seats on riding devices must be vacated at the end of each ride.

A splendid program of events has been planned for the afternoon in front of the granstand, these including athletic events for Nobles, ladies and children, horse races by fast trotters donated for the purpose by Walter Candler, band concert by Yaarab's band, and fireworks at dark. Dancing will start just after the fireworks.

Washington Confirms Reports of Changes At U. S. Prison Here

In confirmation of reports published in Thursday's Constitution, Associated Press dispatches from Washington Thursday stated that Warden James E. Dyche may leave his post at the federal penitentiary.

In such event he will assume another federal post in Oklahoma, where he was in business when he was appointed to head the prison here. The change, if made, will be at his own request, Washington authorities stated.

Albert E. Sartain, of Columbus, Ohio, former sheriff of Franklin county, is slated to be Dyche's successor, according to persistent reports.

Mr. Sartain is said to be a personal friend of Attorney General Daugherty. Recently, it is said, he conferred with the attorney general in Washington.

He was registered at the Winecoff hotel Thursday in the party of Dr. Heber H. Votaw, of Washington, D. C., United States superintendent of prisons, who is here for the regular quarterly meeting of the parole board.

Warden Dyche, who is reported to have gone to Washington several days ago, was still out of the city Thursday, according to Mrs. Dyche. Deputy Warden L. J. Fletcher is acting warden.

SEEK HOME FOR CHILD

Father of Boy, 9, Held in Jail for Cruelty.

Quitman, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—John Hendry is in jail and his little 9-year-old son is held in the custody of Royal Daniel, president of the Brooks County Humane society, as a result of a warrant issued by the Humane society based upon the allegation that the boy has been frequently cruelly beaten. An application has been filed in the county juvenile court asking for permission to retain custody of the child permanently and an effort is now being made to secure for him a permanent home. The father, it is said, will probably be prosecuted on the charge of cruelty to children, which is a misdemeanor under the state law.

BRIGHT SHOE COMPANY SHOWS FALL STYLES

The Atlanta branch of the John Bright Shoe company, nationally known shoe dealers, announce that a full line of fall models have been received and that they are now on display. With the many new innovations and the wide departure from the past summer's styles, Mr. Fillingame, the local manager, feels that he has the most striking line ever in the history of the John Bright stores. The windows of the local store are displaying many of the latest styles of this company.

SCHOOL OF HEALTH TO MEET SATURDAY

The regular weekly meeting of the Free Kindergarten of Health for Mothers and Children will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in assembly room No. 2 of the Chamber of Commerce building. The children are instructed in breathing exercises, singing and dancing. Six other instructors assist Robert B. Harrison.

ARTIST SERIES SALE WILL BEGIN OCT. 8

The season ticket sale for the Artist series will be held at the Cable Piano company's store for one week beginning on Monday, October 8. Plans had been made to have this sale next week, but on account of remodeling work going on at the Cable Piano company it was necessary to postpone this date for one week.

The Artist series of concerts will be held in the Wesley Memorial hall and consists of the following:

Geraldine Farrar, soprano and assisting artists, November 30.

Sergei Rachmaninoff, pianist, January 14.

Fritz Kreisler, violinist, February 12.

This series will be under the management of the Southern Musical bureau with H. L. Bridges, of this city, as local manager.

The price of the season tickets will range from $3.00 to $6.00, according to the seats chosen, which is exceedingly low considering the artists on the program. Wesley Memorial hall has a seating capacity of a little more than two thousand so it is expected by the promoters that the entire capacity of the hall will be sold out in season tickets. Orders for season seats may be sent in at once to the Southern Musical bureau in the Healey building by out-of-town patrons or by city patrons through the mails and these orders will be filled and the tickets mailed out promptly.

COMMUNITY CHEST PUBLICITY PLANS TO BE DISCUSSED

Publicity plans for the Community Chest, which during the week of November 11 will ask Atlanta for $600,000 for social service in 1924, will be outlined Monday at the organization meeting of the committee in charge of this phase. Chairman Edwin F. Johnson has called the committee to assemble at a luncheon in the Capital City club at 1 o'clock on that date.

The personnel of the committee was completed Thursday and is as follows: Edwin F. Johnson, St. Elmo Massengale, John S. Cohen, Buford Goodwin, Clarke Howell, Jr., Jerome Jones, Ernest E. Dallis, Harry Stillwell Edwards, Forrest Adair, Sr., Evelyn Harris, Lauren Foreman, L. K. Starr, Frank Stanton, Jr., Wilbur G. Kurtz, Lewis C. Gregg, A. W. Brewerton, Ray McGill, and one representative of the moving picture interests yet to be selected.

MANY ADDITIONS MADE TO ROLLS OF THE CHAMBER

The month of September, with still two additional working days, has made a record for new memberships in the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, a total of 71 new members having been obtained without any special efforts being made to secure them, according to Secretary B. M. Barker.

Business men of Atlanta, Mr. Barker stated, are making it their business to seek membership in the organization without being urged to do so.

As an illustration of work accomplished by the Atlanta chamber during 1923 Mr. Barker points to the acquisition of approximately 500 new firms, agencies and branch factories which have selected Atlanta during 1923 for their southern distributing point.

While the chamber of commerce does not assume credit for all of these new industries locating here, it has through its commercial and public relations departments furnished information to numerous prospective enterprises relative to Atlanta's natural resources, and taken an active interest in assisting these new firms to obtain suitable quarters and otherwise aided in their location here.

More than 2,500 memberships are now on the chamber rolls, 800 junior chamber memberships and 400 business women are included in its branches.

A. S. BOOTH WILL ATTEND MEETING OF ADVENTISTS

The Southeastern Union Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists, which includes North and South Carolina, Florida, Georgia and eastern Tennessee in its territory, will be well represented at the ten-day convention of the world's general conference of the denomination which will be held in the civic auditorium of Milwaukee, Wis., October 7 to 18, and the presidents' convention, which will be held in the same building, beginning October 5.

Rev. W. H. Heckman, of Chattanooga, president of the union conference, will head the delegation. Others going will include Revs. R. I. Keate, of Charlotte, N. C., president of the Carolina conference; B. F. Kneeland, of Knoxville, Tenn., president of the Cumberland conference; J. L. Shuler, of Orlando, president of the Florida conference, and A. S. Booth, of Atlanta, president of the Georgia conference.

The general conference convention will be to the Adventists what a conclave of the board of bishops is to the Methodist or Episcopal denomination. Plans will be made for the advancement of the church in foreign countries; appropriations amounting to several million dollars will be made, and the work in the publishing, educational, medical, home missionary, Sabbath school, religious liberty and young people's departments will be strengthened.

$2,049,170.49 PAID IN INCOME TAXES IN SEPTEMBER

A total of $2,049,170.49 was paid the United States government by Georgians between September 1 and 15 as the third installment on income tax for the year, it was announced Thursday by Josiah T. Rose, collector of internal revenue.

The last day in which to make payments resulted in the collection of $1,214,227.80, Mr. Rose stated, showing that tax payers waited until the eleventh hour before sending in their checks.

MISS JOEL SPEAKS TO JUNIOR CHAMBER

A program arranged especially for the fair sex with music by the Twenty-second Infantry band and a brief talk by Miss Clara Joel, leading lady of the Forsyth Players, featured the regular monthly "ladies day" luncheon of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Thursday.

More than 50 young women, the majority of whom are engaged in the business world locally, were guests of honor at the luncheon. Fitzhugh Knox, cairman of the entertainment committee, presided.

Five Points—Inma

Truly it may be said—"Five Points," Inman Park, is a big town of itself. Nearly half a hundred growing commercial enterprises are centered within the "Five-Point" circle—and a casual survey is sufficient to create the question—"Why go to the city to trade?" It's all right here—the best of everything—goods just as cheap, service in all probability more accurate, and, to make a long story short, you feel like you are trading with the old "home town."

n Park—A Town of Its Own

Some ten years ago, a very prominent national traveling man, who had for years lived in Inman Park section, had to remove his family to another city, so as to better fit his business connections. Very recently he had occasion to visit Atlanta, and incidentally took the time to visit "the old home nest." "Well," he exclaimed, "it beats anything I ever saw in my life. In ten years, and I would not have known what town I was in, if it hadn't been for the street cars. Wonderful! Wonderful! Banks, drug stores, real city grocery houses, and, do you know, it would be the happiest moment of my life to say I could again settle right down here for the balance of my time."

Right here, you have everything that any family can possibly need—not a few things, but everything. Phone service like a quadrupled spider web, salesmen who seem to be hardened and bred in a school of politeness, service and quickness.

In this day, you know, "service" is one of any firm's greatest assets. Now let all of us who live in this section try it out for awhile, and see if "Five-Point" service isn't just as good, or a little better than trading in THE BIG TOWN. When you do this you bring more business houses to the section, consequently property values grow likewise.

What a Good Man Said

I have lived in Atlanta very nearly fifty years, I have lived in nearly all sections of the city. But seven years ago I FOUND IT—Inman Park section (very near 5 Points) and I am absolutely delighted. I am content, my family charmed with the delightful neighbors, fine doctors, churches of all denominations, five-minute car service, and business houses so many and so up to date, that one would think he was in a good sized little city—and "day by day" Growing and Growing.

THE DELAYS OF JUSTICE.

The responsibility for the maladministration of justice—the delays in court procedure and often the miscarriage of justice, as well as the stimulation of the mob spirit by trial delays—were among the principal discussions before the American Bar association at its recent convention.

There is no problem before the American public today of greater importance than the maintenance of due respect for constituted authority as against the all-too-prevalent mob spirit; and nothing will contribute more to the elimination of the mob spirit than a stricter and a more general enforcement of all laws, not only to the point of arresting those charged with offenses, but the expedition of the court system by which the violators may be punished according to law, and the innocent freed from suspicion and punishment.

Recently there have been some heartening instances of speedy trial in Georgia, and all court officials and the lawyers at the bar are to be commended when orderly processes of expedition are encouraged, rather than the irritating, mob-encouraging tactics of obstructing justice.

Judges on the bench and lawyers at the bar, however, are not altogether to blame for the maladministration of justice. Indeed, congress is more to blame for the present slow, expensive and unscientific methods that encourage criminality than are the lawyers. The fact is lawyers are tied hand and foot by a hodgepod of conflicting, rigid statutes enacted by the legislative branch of the government of which lawyers are sworn to take advantage, even to the point of resisting the judge in his effort to administer justice; and the judge would be reversed on appeal if he failed to observe and enforce them. This is undoubtedly the underlying difficulty with the American courts.

The American Bar association, conscious that there should be no such statutes, has made that fact known to congress in no uncertain terms, and has consistently petitioned congress to vest in the supreme court, as the responsible agency, the power to put into effect a scientific, correlated, elastic, simple system of rules, similar to that in use in England, to be prepared by a commission of presiding judges and practicing lawyers and approved by the supreme court.

The American Bar association, by reason of the increase of crime and the wave of mob violence spreading over the country, will no doubt militantly appeal this problem to congress, and urge it as one of the paramount issues for better law enforcement and for relieving the congested criminal calendars.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

Tomorrow, Saturday afternoon, Atlanta lodge of Elks will stage a baseball game at Ponce de Leon between an all-star Elks' team and the Commodore Feds representing the federal prison. The proceeds of this game will go to the Christmas charity fund of the local Elks' lodge.

All Elkdom is noted for its generosity throughout the year—and especially during the Christmas season—towards the worthy poor. Its charitable gifts are made unostentatiously and without any sort of flare of trumpets.

It is proposed this year by Atlanta lodge to expend a larger sum of money for Christmas charity than ever before in its history. Last year more than 2,000 baskets of food were distributed to the poor of Atlanta, thereby making glad the hearts of many to whom the Yuletide season otherwise would have been a cheerless void.

The local Elks' lodge, with its splendid membership of more than 4,000, is equipped for service of a far-reaching and truly constructive character in this community.

The proceeds of the game Saturday afternoon will be charitably distributed. The tickets cost but 50 cents without the customary war tax.

BACKING THE UNION.

The status of the pressmen's strike in New York City, by which the leading daily newspapers of New York and Brooklyn are tied up by the action of a local union that has been outlawed by the international, even to the extent of revoking the local's charter, illustrates perhaps the first instance where an international union has been sustained and fortified by the employing element in the controversy.

The fact is the local union's action in calling a strike, and which threw 2,000 men idle upon the streets, was taken on the vote of only 300 men, 175 of whom are juniors, in abrupt violation of a sacred contract with the publishers, and in contravention to and defiance of the local union's covenant with and obligation to the international union.

The president of the international promptly repudiated the acts of the local union, and that repudiation was sustained by local unions throughout the United States.

Two days ago President Berry of the international called for volunteers or assignments of men that could be spared from locals outside of New York to go to that city and report to the international for service.

They are rapidly moving into that city from all sections, and the combined paper carrying the heads of all the newspapers affected by the strike has now doubled in size, carrying 16 pages.

In the meantime striking pressmen are asking for reinstatement provided they will not be required to recognize the international's president.

This the publishers are flatly refusing, and though they could restore their normal pressroom facilities at once with their own men, they are sacrificing the revenues, and shouldering the continued heavy losses, in an unconditional and uncompromising loyalty to the international union of pressmen.

In this a precedent is being established that illustrates a closer working relationship between employing and employee elements, and may be a heartening circumstance in future negotiations.

Major Berry, president of the international, has made the following statement:

"Men are coming in freely. Moreover, in my judgment, 85, if not 90 per cent of the web pressmen in New York City are as clean as a hound's tooth, are as clean men as are to be found in America. The only thing against them is they permitted the construction of a machine in the hands of destructive irresponsibles because of their failure to attend union meetings.

"This is best exemplified by the fact that 300 men, 175 of them juniors, voted this strike that put 2,000 men on the street. The defective machinery to which I make reference presents itself in that the juniors of this organization ran the organization, which is a different state of affairs than obtains in any other organization of web pressmen in America."

In this is demonstrated a menacing condition that applies not only to labor, but to every element entering into the political, social and economic life of the nation—the growing tendency toward minority government, the rule of irresponsibles through the indifference or the carelessness of the overwhelming majority in looking after their own interests as constitutionally guaranteed to them.

The New York web pressmen's strike at this time, its causes and effects, should serve as a lesson to all elements entering into organized government, whether industrial or civic.

If the unions tolerate a condition such as that which has been created by the striking pressmen of New York, the public will not long tolerate the unions.

No wonder union sentiment the country over is backing the attitude of President Berry.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Austere Skies Herald Winter.

The first snowstorms, heralds of fierce winter, have covered the high north with a mantle of snow. Over the tundra peaks blows the chilly breath of Boreas. Rivers and streams are slowly congealing and one of these mornings there will be a crystal path where the waves washed the shores but a few days ago. Then it is said the barren north settles down for its winter sleep. But already the blue smoke curls upwards from the trapper's cabin that was deserted during the summer. The forest is astir with life. Caribou are seeking winter pasture, pheasants fly up from the marshes, partridges from the old fallen logs and the giant moose tears through the underbrush, snorting and puffing like a railway engine on a clear morning.

And Sarah Laughed.

A woman, 62 years of age, has given birth to five children in Venezuela, so a dispatch says. Interesting—if true. There would seem to be little need for an immigration policy in the small republic if this remarkable fecundity is the general rule among the natives and in time Venezuela may be heard from clamoring for a place in the sun.

The Way of Revolution.

Fifty thousand people have been put to death by the cheka or Russian secret police since the revolution. That has been the price of the upheaval in human lives. The French revolution had a death-toll of 4,000 according to the reliable historian, Michelet. When the Russians overthrew the czar and his bureaucracy the leaders set a machinery in motion over which they lost control. It swept beyond the aims of the men who had started it and ended up like all revolutions, with a dictatorship. France got Napoleon and Russia got Trotsky, a former waiter in a New York restaurant.

How Long Are They Wards?

Newspaper photographers are forcibly removed from the docks in New York and Ellis Island when they try to snap the invading army of newcomers as it comes down the gangplanks of the big ocean steamers. The immigration commission says these people are the wards of the country and would probably be annoyed and frightened by the procedure of getting "mugged" every step they take. The opinion of the immigration commissioner raises an interesting question. If these newcomers are the wards of the state, how long do they remain that way? Once through Ellis Island there is no control, no knowledge and no way of finding out how these wards are getting along.

Armenian Children Adopted in Dominion.

One hundred Armenian orphans arrive in Toronto. They are to be followed by other batches if the first contingent makes good. They go to a model farm, with schools and vocational institutions. They are white, belong to a Christian race, are lovers of the soil and are in need. With care and training they will become good Canadians. The immigration barriers were lifted temporarily to let them in. It will take eight years on the average to train the children before they leave the schools, but they will not be turned loose until they are 21. They seem to have patience in Canada.

The World Heaves a Sigh.

A new revolutionary movement is growing in Italy. It is directed against fascismo and is led by a Sicilian priest. It wants a return to democratic government and abolition of the dictatorship of one group, whether fascisti or reds. This movement may mean more than Mussolini can stand. It is said to find great favor with the peasants and the clergy. Mussolini knows he cannot afford to quarrel with either. It comes just in time, this new movement, for the black-shirt premier was fast becoming the "enfant terrible" of Europe. He must now direct his attention to conditions at home.

Germany in Crisis.

Troops are guarding Berlin. The government is afraid that its unconditional surrender to the French will bring about revolt. Flying columns are standing in readiness to shoot down any incipient rebellion. The unity of the reich must be protected. But the Bavarians are tired of the Prussian yoke. They want the leadership in the new Germany and to take it away from Prussia. The fatherland is in dire straits, but nobody is heard to call for the kaiser, to bring the country out of "sturm und drang," as he promised in 1914 that only a Hohenzollern could lead Germany to its destiny. We now know what destiny he meant.

YOUNG LADDIE BUCK REACHES WHITE HOUSE

Washington, September 27.—Laddie Buck, an airedale pup from Atlanta, arrived at the white house today to strive with Peter Pan, a wire-haired fox terrier from Boston, for the fame and favor that once belonged to Laddie Boy.

The airedale was presented to President Coolidge by Captain M. C. Buckey on behalf of Miss Mary Calhoun, of Atlanta, a grand niece of John C. Calhoun. His sponsors believe he will have a slight edge over Peter Pan because he is reputed to be a first cousin of the renowned Laddie Boy. On the other hand, the friends of the Boston pup point out that he has been on the ground for more than a week and thereby has an advantage that will be difficult for the other dog to overcome.

Laddie Buck, if at all true to hereditary traits, will prove more than a match for the Boston terrier. His sire, Allan-a-Dale, is the terror of the neighborhood to prowling dogs and burglars. The father of the present canine incumbent at the white house has engaged in mortal combat a German police dog and a British bull dog.

Young Laddie Buck, with a sire of such qualities and an uncle who won the love and admiration of the whole country by his unswerving devotion to his master, the late President Harding, has some antecedents which a mere Boston terrier will find it hard to overcome.

CHAPTER XV.—Hungary and Orthy.

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR

"In my capacity as an officer in the navy, I have visited every great country, excepting your own. I have studied pepoles and their history. The Hungarian people are the finest—the flower of the human race. We celebrated the thousandth anniversary of our existence as a pepole in 1896. Then the war came. Our prime minister, Count Tisca, opposed it. But we were forced in. We lost. The treaty of Trianon tore us into five parts. Never in all history has a great people been so humiliated and disgraced. Never. But nobody, Mr. Sinclair, can put nature on its head. The politicians of Europe have tried it since the war, and they have failed. The Hungarian people will be reunited some day."

Admiral Nicholas von Horthy, as he spoke, was seated at his big, flat-top desk in his magnificent office in the king's palace at Budapest. A man of 56, he has one of the most attractive personalities in Europe. Tall, broad-shouldered, dark-complexioned, with a high forehead, backed up by a mass of iron-gray hair, and wearing the uniform of the Austrian admiral, he looks the part he plays. His square jaw shows determination, while his large nose shows social qualities of a high order. He was courteous, affable and direct. He spoke excellent English, and looks and acts more like an American or Canadian business man than the dictator of Hungary.

Hungary entered the war with 25,000,000 people, living in an area of 125,600 square miles—about the size in area of the states of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky combined.

Reduced by Treaty.

The treaty of Trianon reduced her to 7,840,000 people, living in 35,000 square miles—in area a little smaller than Indiana.

Hungary now is a flat plain country of southeastern Europe, with insufficient wood and coal, no water power and few raw materials.

The Hungarian people are a hardy and strong race. They are liberty-loving. The great Kossuth, the patriot, was a Hungarian. The Liberal Unitarian religion came from Hungary. A statue of George Washington adorns one of the principal squares of Budapest. This city of over a million people is one of the handsomest in all Europe.

When the break-up of the old Austro-Hungarian empire came—October 31, 1918—a revolution began the movement for a republic. King Charles abdicated a few days later and Count Kanolym was proclaimed provisional president. Disorder followed and a bolshevik government, headed by Dela Kuhn, was set up March 22, 1919. It, too, was swept away, with the help of the Rumanians, just 122 days later. A national government was re-established. Elections were held in January and February, 1920. The conservatives won. Admiral Horthy was appointed "regent protector of the Magyar republic." But on March 23, 1920, the government declared Hungary a monarchy. Since then the iron hand of Horthy has been in complete control of every activity of Hungarian life. King Charles made two unsuccessful attempts to regain the throne. Liberty of spech, free assemblage and press have been suspended. Newspapers have been confiscated. Parliaments have been dismissed. Militarism holds absolute sway. Budapest is swarming with well-dressed military officers.

From Critcial Viewpoint.

Unlike Belgium, she had few investments before the war, outside of the old dual monarchy. Each year she purchased a little more outside of Hungary than she sold. Her principal imports were cotton, iron, machinery, leather and chemicals, while she exported grains, food and some manufactured articles. But Hungary was able to borrow money outside, and so was able to pay the small excess of imports over exports each year. She kept her international machinery of exchange—her money—at the gold point. Her international trade grew and prospered. The flour and corn mills of Budapest became the largest in Europe.

Since the war she has lost 75 per cent of her territory. She has not been able to balance her imports and exports. Result—her trade is slowing down. The machinery is not working. That means a lower income per individual in Hungary.

Based on tonnage, the record is bad. In 1921 she imported 2,220,000 tons, while she exported 840,000 tons. In 1922 she imported 3,360,000 tons, while she exported 1,400,000 tons. The percentage record so far in 1923 is no better. These figures would indicate that Hungary, as at present organized, has not demonstrated her ability to live. She is not paying her board bill in the family of nations.

Government Record.

Her government record is no better. She is spending each year nearly three times her income from taxes. Her printing press has been pounding out new money almost constantly during the past five years.

Her public debt increased from $1,602,000,000, in 1914, to $8,909,000,000 in 1918, an increase of 560 per cent. Today her public debt is 65 per cent of her estimated total wealth.

Her bank note circulation—her money—and deposits increased from $491,000,000 in 1914, with a gold reserve of 33.5 per cent, to $13,444,000 in 1920, with a gold reserve of less than 1-2 of 1 per cent. These figures are for the old Austro-Hungarian monarchy.

It's the old, old story. The gold point broke. Higher prices, lower purchasing power of money, more inflation, still higher prices and a slowing down of production.

Today Hungary has no credit. She can neither sell her bonds within or without Hungary. Her military expenses are increasing. Her debt charges are larger than she can pay, and her foreign trade is going down hill, because her ability to purchase is getting smaller each month.

Money Presses Whirl.

Her one and only recourse today consists in printing more and more paper money. In 1914, an American dollar would purchase five krones. In July, 1921, I purchased 500 krones for $1. This year, in July, I got 7,000 krones for $1.

The situation now is beyond the control of the authorities. They have tried hard but unsuccessfully. Industry cannot keep up with the depreciation of the Hungarian krone.

Count Bethlen, the prime minister, in April of this year, presented the sad case of Hungary to the attention of the league of nations. They have appointed a committee to investigate and report back.

"If you will read this book carefully," said Count Bethlen to me, "you will see that Hungary has tried very hard to make good. But without help, we cannot go much further."

I believe the prime minister is right. Hungary alone cannot climb back. She has been too sick and she is too weak.

Middle Classes Gone.

The middle classes of Hungary are gone. Schools are closing, tuberculosis is spreading. Three hundred horses a day were being killed in Budapest in July for meat.

Poverty and distress is falling on all classes with crushing weight. In winter, with little or no fuel, the suffering during the past five years has been particularly pitiful.

Hungary, alone, I do not think, can survive. She will sink on down into the quicksand of debt.

Perhaps the league of nations may help undo the folly and depravity of man in his hour of triumph, such as it has tried to do in Austria. Along some such lines lies Hungary's hope.

Spoils of Office System; Ruinous Effect on State

Editor Constitution:. I believe that it was Andrew Jackson who first said that to the victor belong the spoils This is pure jungle philosophy and tiger politics. The application of this idea in politics and governmental affairs came from the pit, and the sooner we put it down the better for our government. There can never be a good government where this idea obtains. There should be no spoils in political matters. I will go a step farther and say there should be no such idea as spoils in war among civilized people. War under the old feudal lords—such as Ghenkis Kahn, Ivan and Conrad was simply for spoils and led to brothers murdering brothers and sisters for spoils. But these men were simply half educated tigers.

There could be no respectable government where the spoils idea was dominant. America fought Spain with no idea of spoils and thank God we took none. Thanks to Dr. Arthur H. Allen, the Presbyterian preacher in China, who gave the idea to President Roosevelt, we took no indemnity for our own use resulting from the Boxer war. Our own great president, Woodrow Wilson, pitched our late war on a higher plane than spoils or imperialism. We have about knocked the idea of war for spoils in the head. Germany stood for that species of barbarism, but America killed it. Now we must kill the idea as it relates to political matters. Most of the corruption of politics today is due to that idea.

When a party or a faction gets in power it goes on the idea that it has the right to dish out the offices as so much spoil to be handed over to their friends and champions. This is carried to such an extent that moral qualification for office is hardly taken into account. Candidates promise before election the appointments of office to their friends and then after the election proceed to pay their political debts with public appointments. This is all wrong. A man in office has no more right to pay political debts with public office and public money than he has to pay his store accounts or his tailor bills. This spoils system in politics has brought about the rings and cliques that trade in public offices—they buy and sell public offices just as they do cattle, and with a great deal more rascality. This vile and rotten idea has produced Tammanyism in New York. This idea was responsible for Tweedism in New York and Tom Plattism in the same state. It defeated Tilden after he was elected in 1876. It has brought on such a perfectly rotten system of politics that hardly any man can be elected to a high office unless he has a pile of money. It ought to be stopped, and it can be stopped. If the newspapers and the good men who see things as they are will cry out against this everywhere we can create a sentiment that will keep the people from voting for any man who will try to work this system. Political matters can be carried on as cleanly as churches are run.

If no one will run on any other system than the old spoils system then let a few good men get together and put out a few candidates who are clean and will not trade in public matters.

Why not candidates for governor and congress who will not promise anything except to do the right thing before God and man—men who have clean records—as clean as any preacher? One who has not moral integrity is no more fit to hold office than to be cashier in a bank. A man with questionable morals has no more business filling an office than a polecat has trying to run a perfume factory or a jackass a singing school.

I wish the press of the state would take up this idea and carry on such a crusade that politicians will not dare run counter to this high moral idea in politics. Start it and the people will take it up. We have many good men. Let us make things so that they can be brought to the front.

It would create a sensation, but wouldn't it be fine for the next democratic convention in Georgia to declare that the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount constituted the fundamental principles on which the democratic party in Georgia would do business in the future? This would bring in a day when we would have men in office who would not be using one office as a stepping stone to another, but each would be trying to discharge the duties in a way that would bring happiness and prosperity to all the people. Peanut politicians and peanut politics would go out of business and real statesmen would fill the big places and the little places. But wouldn't a lot of little fellows die? Well, yes, and I would contract to preach some free funerals.

Men of Georgia, wake up and think, think, think! and then talk, talk, talk! And then act, act, act! But don't forget that to bring this great idea to its fullest fruition we must pray, pray, pray! Why not?

(REV.) C. M. LEDBETTER.
Vienna, Ga., September 16, 1923.

"Political Pests" Are Criticized by Langley of Floyd

Editor Constitution: The contribution of your Mr. James A. Holloman to the discussion, "What Is The Matter With Georgia?" in your issue of September 24, is sound, able and interesting.

When my bills seeking to reduce political agitation, office trading and useless campaign expenditures were offered in the recent legislative session, the professional politicians became much excited, fluttered and fussed around and declared the people love their politics, enjoy frequent elections and will brook no effort to curtail them.

One "oldtimer" said that if we had elections only every four years he would have nothing to do for three whole summers; that he spends his summers talking politics at camp meetings, barbecues and other gatherings; that he loves to talk politics and that the people want him to talk politics. He has been in the legislature off and on for years and has never done anything but talk politics at home and office.

By way of challenge I said to him, "If you are right let's amend my bill and provide for election every three months." He promptly replied, "Do that and the people will endorse you, and I will vote for your bill, for that would suit the people of Georgia."

We are now living under minority government in Georgia because a majority of the qualified voters fail to go to the polls and cast their ballots in any election. I have called the attention of many good men to this and urged them to go to the polls and vote. In almost every case I get about this reply: "There are too many elections; we are tired of being annoyed by men begging us to vote for them for office. We have something to do besides running to election after election to vote for some man for office."

All the younger men in the legislature, except those belonging to old office-holding families, gave my four years' election bill their support. All the veteran legislators, except the professional politicians, also favored it. The crowd that made it impossible to frame and pass a suitable tax reform measure were the same that opposed the four-year elections.

I am not going to cease my fight until Georgia gets relief from at least its worst political evils. I am going to run every political bootlegger and political boll weevil out of public life in Georgia, if I can. I mean by political bootleggers the professional politicians that spend "their summers" peddling political poison in the uncultivated areas. Political boll weevils are the professional pests who are boring into the social organism and destroying the fruits of good government that they may fatten on the public bounty.

Social Sayings of The Savior

NO. 13.

THE QUESTION OF DIVORCE

"But I Say Unto You"—Jesus.

The divorce question comes within the social teachings of the Savior. Jesus is the only voice that dares to speak to this age, in which one of every ninth marriage ends in divorce.

Matrimony begins at the altar of the church and ends at the bar of the court. It should only end at the bier. Right marital relationships will never exist until Christ's social teachings on divorce become authoritative.

"Whosoever putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery; and whosoever marrieth her that is put away from her husband committeth adultery." However, Christ makes one exception. "But I say unto you, That whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery."

These are delicate quotations. They do not need explanation. They need interpretation in the life of modern society. Any one who reads can interpret these social sayings. What the world needs is an actual interpretation in the everyday married life of our American homes.

The divorce evil has a social signifigance. There is something more to be considered than the breaking of a legal contract. This selfish act involves the unhappiness of others, while not fully guaranteeing the happiness of the contracting parties. It affects society as a whole. It weakens the morality of the community. It makes sacred things unsacred. There are very few instances when it has helped a bad situation.

While society has to suffer the consequence, it is in the immediate family where the heaviest pay is demanded. No father and mother care anything about the distinction of having their married children divorced and remarried. The little children of the home carry the brunt of the blunder. While this is an age in which such things are looked upon lightly, the blush still remains on the faces of innocent children. If the social teachings of Jesus on the subject of divorce have no authority, for the sake of the children in the home, parents should "make up" instead of separating.

ARE CORSETS MOLDS?

Will going without corsets, asks a matron of notable heft, make one larger?

And the answer is that it will not, save in the most depraved cases. Some women still use corsets to reduce waist measurements at all costs, and when they take off the torturous things they immediately become larger, as large as they were before they put 'em on, or even larger.

We still have with us, in spite of our own wishes, a few mothers whose education below the neck has been sadly neglected and who have picked up the things they think they know from the casual remarks of fish-wives and Mrs. Ben Told and from the adroitly managed propaganda of the nostrum gentry and the quacks who prey upon feminine ignorance and credulity. These mothers are quite likely to believe that corsets are molds and that no girl can hope to have a good figure without them.

We still have among us, if not with us, a few dear old docs who know how to curry favor with the credulous sex (and incidentally with the corset interest) by coming out now and then flatfootedly, if not very intelligently, in behalf of corsets as molds. These wily docs lose nothing when they lend their support to the idea that the feminine form must be molded or held up by artificial support or splints and they win the applause of the majority of the credulous sex.

Knocking the corset wearing evil is never a popular sport and never gets one anything; on the contrary it is in some ways an expensive pastime. But I like it and I do it every little while because I'm a darn fool. It is golf to me.

In the ancient days when no nice girl ever indulged in anything like swimming, basketball, hiking, tennis or other active exercise, the corset seemed necessary to support the frail figure in the teens and to restrain the ungainliness of the thirties. At present the young woman who receives a fair general education, which includes that part of her below the neck as well as mere mental training, finds that she can get along very comfortably without the aid of splints or braces of any kind, and she not only keeps her good figure much longer than her mother was able to keep hers but she enjoys a degree of feminine health and womanly vigor which the credulous sex has never until now known. So the better educated women today are discarding corsets. They're parking them for keeps.

Questions and Answers

Any reader may obtain a personal reply to any answerable question of fact or information by writing to Washington Bureau, Atlanta Constitution, 1322 New York avenue, N. W., Washington, D. Q. Name some of the most famous authors of the world?

A. Shakespeare, Milton, Goethe, Cervantes, Dante, Virgil, Plato.

Q. What does the Indian name Oscowana mean?

A. "Place for fire."

Q. What is the per capita consumption of wool in the United States?

A. About 6 1-2 pounds. Americans use more wool than any other people.

Q. Can you tell me how to make a good wall paper varnish?

A. Dissolve equal parts of borax and shellac in ten times their weight of alochol; strain. Give two coats. For a very light-colored paper use sandarac instead of shellac. Paper treated with this lacquer can be washed with water, and even with soap, if necessary.

Q. Who is president of Liberia, and where can he be addressed?

A. Charles D. B. King, Monrovia, Liberia, Africa.

Q. What is an easy way to disinfect water?

A. One drop of ordinary 7 per cent iodine will destroy all bacteria in one quart of water in 20 to 30 minutes. Shake the iodine and water well. This mixture is tasteless.

Q. What is the average length of life in the United States?

A. Fifty-three years.

Q. How did the loss of life in the California earthquake compare to that of Japan?

A. The loss of life in California was only about 500, and the earthquake was comparatively light contrasted with that in Japan. The chief damage was caused by the fire that followed the quake.

Q. What is the proper way to eat a club sandwich?

A. Club sandwiches are eaten with the fork. Portions are cut with the fork and conveyed to the mouth. The sandwich is never eaten with the fingers.

Q. Should one say an "underhanded trick" or an "underhand trick"?

A. "Underhanded" is incorrect.

Q. What can I do to remove hair from my face?

A. There is no permanent remedy except electrolysis, that is the removal by the electric needle, and this is very painful. Sometimes, tweezers will remove the hair permanently. After pulling out the hair, bathe the skin with witchhazel or pat into it a soothing cold cream.

Q. If a ball is knocked to the outfield, and ball hits the glove of one of the outfielders, and then bounces into another fielder's hands without hitting the ground, is the batter out?

A. Yes.

Q. Where is the largest stone quarry in the United States?

A. At Bedford, Ind.—the Dark Hollow Quarry of the Consolidated Stone Company. Its output is well over one million cubic feet of stone a year.

Q. What is the chemical composition of human hair?

A. Carbon 50.65 per cent; hydrogen 6.36 per cent; nitrogen 17.14 per cent; oxygen 20.85 per cent, sulphur 5 per cent.

Q. Do pike and pickerel shed their teeth?

A. No, there is no basis for the story current to this effect. During the spawning season, pike and pickerel do not eat, and their teeth are not in use. At this time the gums or flesh in which the teeth rest, swell up and cover the teeth, probably as a protection. This, of course, hides the teeth from a causal observer and gives one the idea that the fish have shed their teeth.

Q. Will diamond burn?

A. Diamond, in powdered form, will burn at 650 degrees centigrade and 1000 degrees centigrade in bulk form when exposed to the air. Out of contact with air, however, a diamond could be subjected to 2500 degrees of heat without any damage. Diamond will not melt, but like all carbon, will burn.

Q. What is meant by "normalcy" and by whom was the word brought into use?

A. This word came into use during the 1920 presidential campaign. The republicans used it to summarize their promises and hopes that they held out for a return to old time normal conditions. Harding's election promised a return to normalcy. The word, in this sense, had been used but rarely before.

Q. In what city is the most densely populated block on the North American continent?

A. In Boston, Mass.

Q. What does the expression "a yellow streak" mean?

A. A slang phrase meaning cowardly, mean, or unfair.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, September 27.—Thoughts while strolling around New York: Old Chelsea district, Cobwebbed cellars. Red brick chimneys. Dormer windows. Chipped gilding. Mustiness of the past. Curio shops with daguerreotypes and yellowed old editions.

Bookish professors reading in chairs along the curb. Drug sanitariums with barred windows. Tously boarding houses. Chili con carne stands. There's old Franklin Square—and Harper's has moved away. A square through which have passed Thackeray, Dickens, Howells, Twain and Stedman.

Brick walled gardens with here and there a touch of English ivy. Street characters that vie with the "cries" of London. A coffee stall for cab drivers. Plug hats. Stubby pipes. Red noses. Here's a silk district. Extra police and detectives.

More big robberies here than in the banking district. Old time wholesale houses. No rush and flurry. Aged accountants who have grown up with the places. And wear skull caps. A dingy shop that sells iron, deer and dogs. Also brass andirons.

Limp women draped in windows. Hunting a breeze. Wandering street acrobats. Blind alleys with Dickensy atmosphere. Girls rolling rattailed stogies. The Bide-a-wee Home for stray animals. Phipps philanthropic tenements.

The smell of hops. Still, it may be a bakery. I've never seen a tin shop in New York. Slum children gathering the winter kindling. Jefferson Market court. Pudgy bailiffs. Ambulance chasers and bail sharks. Seedy men who wear paper collars.

Wonder who pawned that Palm Beach suit! And that pith-helmet! The old Puck building. Sign says: "Bath Rubbers on Strike!" Two burros in a crate. There's the uptown elevated. Enough gloom for one day. Back to the lights.

It has long been the gossip of Broadway that two top-notch song writers have the "yen"—which means they are opium smokers. One of them I had not seen for five or six years until the other evening. He has grown shabby and furtive-eyed. He was in a cheap cafe humming a tune that had helped make him famous for a group of hangers on. The hand that held his drink shook like an aspin leaf.

In the same cafe I heard the tale of an adroit gold digger's coup de grace. She had been elected to select five other girls for a rather merry dinner party. The generous host suggested that some sort of favors be given the girls. She proposed a one hundred dollar bill be placed under each plate and the bills were given to her to arrange. The dinner was held, the girls came—all except one. Yes, there were no hundred dollar bills.

The Hobo college at 350 Bowery has closed. It appears the owner of the building was so little interested in education, so lacking in the finer instincts that he actually tried to collect rent for the use of his second floor loft. The barrels that were used as seats have been tossed into the gutter. One reason is given by the Bowery for the closing of the institution of learning. An employment agency had the audacity to open up next door to the college. It so depressed the students that they simply staggered out. The college was founded in 1919 by J. Eads Howe, the millionaire hobo. One of the first courses was on "Railroad Bulls and How to Spot Them First."

Monroe Doctrine Still Vital on 100th Anniversary

A unique instance of history repeating itself would occur if President Coolidge in his message to congress when it convenes in December should—and indications point decidedly toward it—make some definite statement of the policy of the United States in regard to its relation to Europe.

According to Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, the Monroe doctrine "is just as vital now as when Monroe and Adams formulated it and gave it to the world."

Senator Lodge discussed the doctrine and its operation through 100 years of American history in a copyrighted article in the October number of Scribner's Magazine. The picture which he draws of world conditions at the time when the Monroe doctrine saw the light is curiously like the state of the world today, and the cycle would be completed by a declaration by President Coolidge of the policy of this country. Among the facts which the writer points out is that the doctrine came into a world "shaken and broken by a war which, with one brief interval had lasted for twenty-two years. In its course this war had involved the British empire and all Europe; it had finally drawn the United States into the conflict and had penetrated in some degree into every corner of the earth either by sea or by land."

The chairman of the foreign relations committee of the senate traces the doctrine from its genesis in the notebook to John Quincy Adams through its part in the last peace conference up to the present. He goes to authorities of unbiased opinion for facts on that much disputed question as to the part which Adams and Monroe played in preparing the doctrine.

The adoption of the reservation to the covenant of the league of nations on the Monroe Doctrine "with marked brevity declares the attitude of the United States in regard to it," writes Senator Lodge, who points out the places in history where the famous doctrine has been effective and shows that the reservation came after the British delegation to the peace conference had taken it upon themselves to explain the insertion of Article 21, dealing with the Monroe Doctrine, into the covenant.

"In the first draft of the covenant of the league of nations," writes Senator Lodge, "there was no provision pertaining to the Monroe Doctrine, which excited so much criticism that Mr. Wilson had the following article inserted: 'Nothing in this covenant shall be deemed to affect the validity of international agreements, such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe Doctrine for securing the maintenance of peace.'

"When the president explained the second draft of the covenant to the peace conference in Paris he said, 'Article 21 is new' and that was all he said. The statement is both truthful and exact, but not particularly illuminating."

The senior senator from Massachusetts goes on to tell how the British delegation explained the article and what significance this explanation had.

"Although the insurrection and independence of the Spanish-American colonies were one of the proximate causes of the Monroe Doctrine," continues Senator Lodge, "and the holy alliance was another, neither of them carries the principle or explains the character of Monroe's declaration. We call it a 'doctrine,' but it is a great declaration of the policy of the United States. . . . It is inextricably interwoven with our history. It has promoted the peace of the world, saved us from having dangerous neighbors, and thereby prevented the necessity of becoming and always being a great military power armed to the teeth by land and sea. . . . It is not international law, and is no more to be disturbed or questioned or interpreted by other nations than are the independence of the United States, the constitution which gave it its form of government, or the powers inherent in its sovereignty."

DR. LEN G. BROUGHTON SPEAKS HERE SUNDAY

Dr. Len G. Broughton, former pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle of Atlanta, will address the Agoga class of that Sunday school next Sunday morning at 9:30.

The phenomenal growth of this class has made necessary the erection of a more commodious class room. The building, which is located directly in the rear of the Tabernacle on Nassau street, was completed this week with a seating capacity of 1,200 people.

RUMANIA OFFERS AID TO BULGARIAN

Bucharest, September 27.—It is reported that Rumania has offered the Bulgarian military assistance in restoring order in Bulgaria should the communist revolution there assume the upper hand.

London, September 27.—The situation in Bulgaria is summarized in a telegram received by the legation here from Sofia, timed 7:30 o'clock this morning, and reading as follows:

"The communist movement has been suppressed except in one region north of Sofia, around the village of Ferdinandovo, where government troops are surrounding the communists. It is hoped that by this evening they will surrender and that thereafter there will be no further bloodshed."

Persia Quake-Rocked.

Moscow, September 27.—The earthquake shocks in Persia are continuing nearly every day, according to dispatches received here from Tashkend. The observatory there records numerous shocks in the region south of Tashkend and up to the frontier of Turkestan.

Normalcy Near, Japan's Respect For U. S. Grows

Tokio, September 26.—As the country settles down and life returns to normal Japan's admiration for what America has done for her and the promptness with which America responded to Japan's need, is growing.

On Tuesday after the earthquake which occurred Saturday, September 1, an American naval officer arrived at the American embassy and said a United States destroyer was in Yokohama bay and five others on the way with food, supplies and assistance. The American navy men accomplished rescue tasks that still mystify, especially in handling baggage. Assistance was rendered by them without regard to nationality.

The Americans have fed and clothed, among others, the Russian refugees who are the most pitable of the sufferers.

The Japanese welcomed all rescuers excepting the Russian and were especially pleased to see the Filipinos among them.

Many Americans who before the earthquake were prosperous and even wealthy, today are penniless, and must start life over.

CLINCHFIELD LINE IS PRIMARY LINK

Washington, September 27.—Lease of the Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio railroad by the Atlantic Coast Line and Louisville & Nashville railroads would result in a monopolization of transportation throughout the southeast, John Skelton Williams, former comptroller of the currency, told the interstate commerce commission today. Public interest, he asserted, demanded that the Clinchfield, if not kept independent, should be taken over by major railroads in such a fashion that the Seaboard Air Line, the Southern and the Atlantic Coast Line might all have equal voice in its control and in the disposition of traffic routed over it.

Mr. Williams, who also was a former president of the Seaboard, declared his present interest in the matter to be primarily that of a citizen considering public interest, but said he had a secondary interest in the matter as receiver of the Georgia & Florida railroad. This road and its backers, he explained, hoped to build about 55 miles of new line to Greenwood, S. C., some time in the future, gaining a connection through the Piedmont Northern with the Seaboard. If the Seaboard should be deprived of access to the territory served by the Clinchfield, he added, this could not be done.

Mr. Williams denied he represented either the Southern or the Seaboard systems, though he added that in former years, when responsible for management of the Seaboard, he had always considered the Clinchfield an associated railroad, operated in close relationship to the Seaboard. Both had been controlled by identical interests in their early history, he said, and the interstate commerce commission, in considering general railroad consolidation, had pointed out the importance of maintaining the relationship to a degree that the Seaboard might have access to Carolina territory on the one hand and the middle west on the other over the Clinchfield route.

Former Habitue Of Demi-Monde Aids Mrs. Stokes

Chicago, September 27.—A story of a former habitue of Chicago's old underworld that agents of W. E. D. Stokes attempted to induce her to identify pictures of Mrs. Stokes as an inmate of a notorious resort, is regarded by Prosecutor Charles Wharton, as the link between much of the previous evidence upon which are based charges by Mrs. Stokes that her husband conspired to ruin her name.

The woman, once proprietress of a rival resort told the state's attorney she gave her information because "I am part of the life in which it is charged Helen Elwood Stokes took part."

"I know that she is innocent, and I don't want to see an innocent woman dragged into the mud of the underworld," the prosecutor said she told him.

She said Stokes' agents showed her a picture of Mrs. Stokes and wanted her to say she had seen her in the resort. They took pictures from her, she said, of former inmates of resorts and had copies of them made. One picture of a girl known to her as "Brick Top Helen" was used by the agents, she said. She said they told her she would be paid by Dan Nugent, one of Stokes attorneys.

Mr. Wharton announced the pictures of Mrs. Stokes in compromising attitudes had been faked and that he is tracing a photographer who, he said, made composite pictures of Mrs. Stokes and others from other negatives.

ALLIES LEAVING CONSTANTINOPLE

Constantinople, September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The British postoffice, the last of such establishments maintained by the allies, closed last night and the Turks took over all mails.

Preparations for the formal evacuation of the allies have been completed and the famous Turkish iron division is soon to enter the city.

The exodus of Greeks, Armenians and Russians continues and all outward bound ships are crowded. The cancellation of west-bound traffic because of the Bulgarian situation has added to the general confusion and congestion.

The soviet repatriation commission which arrived some days ago is still held in quarantine, a circumstance which is understood to be causing the government some embarrassment.

Several thousand Russian refugees are still here. Many of them are political personages and it is believed that the soviet government is trying to bring about their return also. Angora has never declared its position regarding these refugees, but the Moslem religion compels asylum for them. Public opinion generally is against giving up any except the lawless and beggar element.

Vet Who Bathed Jackson's Brow On Last March

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Somewhere on the road between Valdosta and Atlanta an old man is trudging along with weary faltering footsteps. That old man is a veteran of the Confederate army under Stonewall Jackson and he is distinguished from the remaining survivors of the civil war by the fact that he was present when Lee's "right arm" was struck down in the campaign around Chancellorsville and held the head of the dauntless leader, bathed the blood from his wounds and soothed his fevered brow.

More than two hundred miles lie ahead of him, another two hundred he has already covered and his goal is the city of Atlanta.

That man is eighty-two years of age.

His feet are tired and sore. Age has half-dimmed his eyes. The soles of his shoes are thin and any sharp object on the road cuts the raw flesh. His clothes are insufficient to protect his frail body against the chilly blasts that swept over the flat country by nights. Yet he marches on. With fixed purpose and iron will power.

Gave All to Cause.

Sixty years ago when he was young, when life seemed promising and bright, he gave his all on the altar of the cause. For four years he battled in the matchless armies of the south, until the bitter end when he surrendered his musket but only when the odds against him and his comrades had become overwhelming.

That man was in Stonewall Jackson's army.

In those far-off days he knew what marching was. He fought in every engagement in the Shenandoah valley, which even today is studied in the military colleges of Europe as illustrative of brilliant strategy, rapid movements and heroic fighting.

That man was in the famous "foot cavalry." The corps that ate up distance with incredible swiftness, the battle unit of the south that caused consternation in the north; that swept the federals before it like a tornado and a hurricane, that appeared on the scene when least expected like a phantom legion, put the enemy to flight and covered itself with immortal glory time and again.

Present at Great Tragedy.

That old man who is staggering over the Georgia highway today, on one occasion was present when world history was in the making, when the cause of the Confederacy received its death-blow. It was in the fighting around Chancellorsville, when Stonewall Jackson's marvelous manoeuvering had put the federal forces in a dire predicament. Ahead of his soldiers the dauntless leader of the south rode on one of his bold reconnaissances. Upon his return he and his staff were taken for a federal cavalry patrol and coming through the darkness in the forest at twilight, his own men fired a volley of ounce musket balls, fatally wounding Jackson and killing his chief engineer, Boswell.

That old man was among the first who noticed the tragedy that had been enacted and that the regiment from North Carolina had fired at the beloved leader.

It was that same old man, who bent under his eighty-two years, is slowly approaching Atlanta suffering excruciating pain at each step, who rushed forward and held in his arms the body of Stonewall Jackson, who supported him when loss of blood from a shattered arm made him faint and who bathed the brow of that great figure of history in the anxious moments that followed the tragic volley.

Pitiful Spectacle.

Sergeant Treadwell is his name. His march to Atlanta is a true via dolorosa. People who saw him go by have written The Constitution. They say he is a pitiful spectacle. His clothes worn and frayed, his shoes thin as paper, but his determination as fixed and unswerving as was the courage of the army to which he once belonged.

No definite information could be obtained as to the exact location of this old hero. One thing is certain in the old man's mind. He is coming to Atlanta to join his comrades at the Old Soldiers' Home. He says the march to Atlanta will be his last one. He wants to rest here and die here in peace. For his course has been run. The end of the road is in sight.

Pathetic? Perhaps. In his declining years when the sun of life is fast setting this old hero of the matchless fibre of the Confederate armies is giving a forgetting generation a glimpse of that indomitable courage and that eagle-like spirit, which urged the men of the south to sacrifice their all for a cause they thought just.

VIRGINIA ANNOUNCES EDUCATIONAL GIFTS

Charlottesville, Va., September 27. A gift of $10,000 from an anonymous donor for establishment of Richard Henry Whitehead scholarship in medicine and a gift of $700 from students and alumni of Minor Inn of Phi Delta Phi fraternity for establishment of a fund for expansion of the law library as a memorial to the late Raleigh Minor were announced today by President Alderman, of the University of Virginia.

The present enrollment at the university was declared to be 1,735 and President Alderman predicted it would reach 1,900 for the session.

Another Death Among Invaders Of Famous Tomb

London, September 27.—The superstition that Pharoah Tutenkhamun still exerts a malign influence upon the disturbers of his tomb has been revived by the death in London yesterday of the Hon. Aubrey Herbert, half brother of the late Earl of Carnarvon.

Mr. Herbert, who died following an operation, did not enjoy a world-wide reputation but was well-known in England as a traveler, diplomatist, linquist, poet, soldier and politician. He was wounded in France in 1914 and later served in the Dardanelles and in Egypt.

His friends recall that he strongly objected to the Earl of Carnarvon's activities at Luxor, believing it unlucky to interfere with the tomb of the dead. When the burial chambers of the Pharoah were laid bare Mr. Herbert remarked: "Something dreadful will surely happen in our family."

BALDWIN PLEASED WITH CONFERENCE

Northampton, Eng., September 27. (By the Associated Press.)—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, speaking here today declared that his conference with Premier Poincare in Paris last week had had the effect of restoring the former good relations between France and Great Britain. The atmosphere of restraint and almost of distrust, that prevailed between the two countries when the present British government came into office has been changed, he said, into one of mutual confidence.

"I think," said Mr. Baldwin, "that there is now, both in Paris and London, recognition of the importance of the entente in this war,—that without it a European settlement would be far more difficult. . . the best hope of a settlement lies in the intimate relationship between France and this country." Peace, he added, was necessary for a solution of the situation confronting Europe.

Guards Bound, Bandits Loot Liquor Stock

Philadelphia, September 27.—A band of about forty men, some of them masked and armed, bound and gagged the guards at the warehouse of the Philadelphia Distilling company at Eddington, near here, today and escaped with from seven to ten truck loads of whisky.

This was the second raid on the distillery within a month, a large number of men being drivey away the first time after they had bound several guards, but before they were able to obtain any of the whisky.

Whisky valued at $2,500,000 was stored in the warehouse and a legal battle is now in progress in the federal court here over its ownership.

There were three night guards and two engineers in the building when the bandits appeared. Some of them carried sawed-off shotguns. The five men were handcuffed and assembled in the engine room and held under guard while others of the bandits rolled out barrel after barrel of whisky to the trucks.

2 DEAD, 1 INJURED IN PRISON BATTLE

Dallas, Texas, September 27.—Willis Champion, deputy sheriff and assistant night jailer, and C. E. Gaines, prisoner, are dead, and Pete Welk, another prisoner may die as the result of a break for liberty which got no further than a pitched gun battle on the sixth floor of the Dallas county jail last night.

Gaines was sentenced to death following trial growing out of the Jackson street sub-station postoffice robbery two years ago when one man was killed.

Welk recently was sentenced to forty years in the penitentiary for the shooting of Deputy Sheriff Tom Wood during a raid on a whiskey still. Welk was still alive on his cell cot this morning.

The break for liberty began when Champion opened a door to a tier of cells where Gaines and Welk were confined. The jailer was preparing to place a man in one of the cells.

Gaines, Welk and others were walking about in the corridors in front of the cells, prisoners and officers today related. They suddenly covered Champion with pistols as he swung back the door, and demanded the jail keys. Champion tried to shut the doors to the corridor and was shot in the abdomen and hurled from the door.

Other officers were summoned and after a pistol battle Gaines and Welk were shot down.

CONVICT TREATMENT SCORED BY MINISTER

Birmingham, Ala., September 27.—An air of expectancy surrounded the Jefferson county grand jury room today as it was about to complete its work and write its report on conditions at Banner Mines. One witness was before the body today.

Rev. W. H. Kamplain, member of the faculty of Howard college, who was state chaplain of mines under a former administration, was closeted in the grand jury room for some time. When he emerged, he talked freely with newspapermen, declaring he resigned his position with the state because of "the horrible treatment of prisoners." He gave specific instances of whippings for what he termed "minor offenses."

"Never in my life have I seen such cruel treatment of human beings," the minister declared.

"Time after time I have started in different mines, only to be forced to turn back after hearing the screams of men being beaten by guards. The food served the convicts wasn't fit for hogs, but the men were forced to eat it or go without. Treatment of men in hospitals was unbearable to visitors."

Mr. Kamplain said he knew nothing of present conditions.

Solicitor Davis, prevented from calling Banner convicts before the grand jury by a court order, said he expected to continue his efforts "to clean up the horrible conditions of the mines in Jefferson county which I am fully convinced are there."

Later Solicitor Davis said to newspapermen "there have been violations of the law at Banner and this grand jury and I are determined to bring those responsible to justice. If there are any 'higher ups' in the affair, they will be exposed to the public. The probe is not finished, nor is activity diminishing. We have just begun."

This was the first intimation from the solicitor's office that anyone outside the Banner personnel of state employees was involved.

Sex Exploitation On Stage Waning, Selwyn Declares

Chicago, September 27.—Sex exploitation on the stage is on the wane, and clean, intelligent, love interest will always be the best dramatic attraction possible, according to Edgar Selwyn, New York, producer and playwright.

"America is a nation of sex hypocrites," said Mr. Selwyn. "The public will not confess its thoughts by freely and frankly patronizing the plays that express them, but will flock to some wholesale hokum with a moral.

"In France they take love triangles as a matter of course; everyone talks about them and they put them on the stage and they're witty and funny. There they have two sexes—male and female. Here you have two races—male and female. American men and women may think the same language, but they don't speak it.

"A man in this country never knows how to take a woman. Maybe its because he's spoiled her—and he really has; maybe its because she seems to be so free—but she just seems so; she really isn't.

AERIAL LIMITATION SUBJECT OF SESSION

St. Louis, Mo., September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Limitation of air armaments is scheduled as one of the principal topics to be discussed at the third national aero congress which will convene here next week in conjunction with the International air races, it was announced today.

The American legion recently proposed that the United States government call a conference to halt the large aircraft building programs of the nations of the world, but President Coolidge was said to have regarded the proposal as untimely.

Another leading topic for discussion at the congress would be regulation of civilian flyers, according to the announcement, which stated that lack of federal legislation governing civilian flying has been responsible for slow development of commercial aviation in the United States.

Aeronautical authorities who have arrived here for the races, expressed the opinion that civilian flyers should be examined and licensed and their planes tested to find out if they are air worthy. Enactment of legislation embodying these regulations would curb reckless and stunt flying, they said.

Distilling Solon Gets Heavy Kick In Cider and Wine

Washington, September 27.—Representative Hill, republican, of Maryland, who has been reporting for several weeks in Baltimore newspapers and in letters to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes regarding his "cellar laboratory" experiments in making cider and wine, has succeeded in drawing an inspection from prohibition headquarters. He invited prohibition agents to watch the progress of his efforts and today two chemists were sent from Washington to inspect his product.

Officials here said that apparently Mr. Hill was attempting to have the prohibition unit make a ruling on the alcoholic content necessary in a beverage to class it as "intoxicating." This never has been done either by prohibition officials or the department of justice. It was pointed out, however, that while the Volstead act is silent on the question of what is "intoxicating" it does specifically prohibit manufacture of beverages containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol.

PETREL PLAYS REHEARSED BY TECH YELLOW JACKETS

'Varsity Squad Given Light Practice Thursday and Coaches Concentrate Upon Creating Team Play.

BY JOHN STATON.

Coach Alexander, who has been holding the reins as tightly for the last few days, yesterday slacked up a bit, and gave his charges a breathing spell. Tech has been working with a vengeance since the first day of official practise. As a consequence, the team play is decidedly smoother than one would expect at this time of the year.

Further numerous scrimmages have put a polish on the team as a working machine, both defensively and offensively. The men without exception are now accustomed to their positions, and to their partners. This has much to do with the clock-like precision which is so vital to a good machine. Each man must be a cog, and must know exactly what to expect from his neighbor.

The order of the day was light throughout. The varsity squad came out on the field minus their shoulder pads. At the very beginning of practice, the linemen reported to Coach Wood for some special coaching, and the backfield men remained with Coach Alexander. After a time the two squads united and chased punts down the field for a while. All the photographers were out yesterday to strike the beauty of the team. Time out from practice was called, and the picturetakers laid to their dirty work.

Then the most important work of the afternoon followed, with Kid Clay's team taking the leading role. Kid brought his scrubs up and ran through many of the plays which Oglethorpe is expected to use. Since Oglethorpe has played no match games up to date, there is no way of accurately ascertaining just what the Petrels will use in the way of offense.

Expect Dartmouth's Play.

But, the tradition of Dartmouth is behind Oglethorpe, and it would not be foolish to seek for some kinship with that system when Tech meets the Petrels on Saturday. At any rate, for about fifteen minutes, Kid Clay ran the scrubs through numerous plays which are likely to be seen on opening day.

The varsity did not assist in the performing of these plays. Each man merely assumed his position, and noted the salient features of the formation. Then, after the Kid had put on his little act, Coach Alex assumed control and prepared a defensive set against the supposed Petrel attack.

One point of significance should be noted. This is the first time since the meeting of the two teams that Tech has ever tried to anticipate what Oglethorpe would play. This is conclusive evidence of the fact that Tech is not taking Oglethorpe lightly. When the two teams tie up Saturday, it will be the fourth consecutive time that they have met. Yet this is the first time that Tech has considered the game of sufficient import to rehearse for it.

Quite a few passes were attempted yesterday. It may be that Tech will try to direct a concentrated passing attack against the Petrels at some stage of the game. Tech, in former years, has not laid particular emphasis upon the forward pass. As a result, in a few games, the team has been handicapped by its inability to match a passing attack with a passing attack.

No doubt Tech will have a strong overhead game before the close of the season. Tech will need every kind of attack known to man to best Penn State, Notre Dame and others of the teams on the schedule. Hence, it would not be amiss to assume that Tech will cut loose some fireworks in the game Saturday, and see just what can be accomplished through the medium of the air attack.

HOREY RACES AT LAKEWOOD

Two short hours after Secretary R. M. Striplin of the greater Southeastern Fair closed with the International Motor Contest association for an official sanction for October 6 automobile races at Lakewood, Fred Horey, former dirt track champion of the world and holder of seven world's records, mailed in his official entry to the speed battles which have all the earmarks of being the greatest ever held on the Atlanta track.

Horey has entered his speedway Frontenac, the big blue number eleven car with which he had had such success with this year, direct from Springfield, Ill., where he broke the track record by driving a mile in 40 seconds. He also broke the two mile record by hurling his big car around the turns in 1:37 flat.

This not only broke the Springfield track record but also marked the fastest time that Horey ever drove on a mile track, the time being but little short of the world mark now held by Sig Haugdahl and his three-mile-a-minute wonder car.

A part of the Horey success is due to the fact that the big Frontenac car contains a stiff axle which makes it much faster on the turns than the Fiat with which Horey made so many of his long distance records.

The little S. Paul driver will also ship his Fiat racing car which is familiar to Atlanta fans and he will drive this car in most of the competitive events. Horey claims that his motor is the highest powered driving car to be found in the field of any kind of racing.

INJURIES AT BOSTON.

Boston, September 27.—New York defeated Boston, 8 to 3, today, but in the eighth inning Right Fielder Bo Meusel injured his left leg in sliding into the home plate and had to be carried from the field. He scored from first on Schang's single. First Baseman Pipp sprained his ankle in alighting from the train this morning and could not play today. X-ray photographs of both injuries will be made to determine whether any bones were broken. Pipgras' pitching today was effective. Boston bunched four hits in the sixth and made three runs.

Bob Roper to Write Feature Stories

CAPTAIN BOB ROPER

BY DUKE BARRY.

The Mike McTigue-Young Stribling ring battle for the light-heavyweight championship of the world next Thursday afternoon at Columbus is the biggest pugilistic affair staged in the south in better than a generation and The Constitution, anxious always to give its readers every particle of "dope" available, is arranging to have the struggle covered in jam-up style.

With this in view, the standard southern newspaper has added to its line-up none other than Captain Bob Roper, internationally known contender for Jack Dempsey's crown, who is now making his home in Atlanta. Roper's contract with The Constitution calls for daily articles concerning the opposing warriors and the first, devoted to Young Stribling, will appear in this newspaper Saturday.

Captain Bob is an interesting fighter to watch and a most entertaining writer on boxing topics. He knows every angle of the profession, as is evidenced by the fact that he is the only "army boxer"—pugilists who came into prominence through prowess with their fists during the world war—who remains a threat to Dempsey's title. Roper set a fast pace after leaving the service and has maintained it.

He is a keen observer of pugilism and plans to obtain "color" for his articles by daily workouts with Stribling and McTigue. He has never seen the Macon youngster in action, but McTigue's style is well known to him. He will get a taste of just what "Strib" can do Friday when he is scheduled to go through a few rounds with the challenger. No sparring partner stuff, you understand, but Captain Bob is simply curious to gain some first-hand information concerning the high school lad he has heard so much about.

Roper's articles leading up to the fight will be confined to discussions of training methods, condition of the fighters, preparations for handling the huge crowd, etc., but on the afternoon of the battle he will be in The Constitution's section of the press box and his story of the actual combat will be a masterpiece, written by an authority who knows all of the tricks of a trade where success comes to only those who know thoroughly the "racket."

In addition to Roper's feature stories, The Constitution will send its sporting editor, Cliff Wheatley, recognized as one of the best boxing writers the south has produced in years, who will give a blow by blow description of a Georgia boy's effort to scale the heights. Atlanta sport followers are familiar with Wheatley's boxing stuff. He'll strut it over the wires that lead from Columbus to this newspaper office.

There will also be accounts of the bout from special representatives of the Associated Press and the United News.

All these features will be found exclusively in The Constitution. Remember that and order yours early!

Record-Breaking Sales Of Tickets at Ga. Tech

Tickets for Georgia Tech football games are beginning to give the Tech authorities no little trouble, for already there have been over 600 applications by mail for reservations to the Auburn game on Thanksgiving day. Very likely that many more will be clamoring for parking space within Grant field before another week has passed.

According to the Tech authorities there will be 8,000 additional seats put up for the game, making a total seating capacity of Grant field at more than 23,000 when the Auburn game rolls around.

The Oglethorpe-Tech seats which are on sale now are going fast and with the junior chamber of commerce sponsoring the game there will be more than 12,000 persons in the stands when game gets under way.

The season ticket sale this year was decidedly larger than at any time in the history of Tech, showing that football is taking the south like no other sport.

One entire section has been reserved for Auburn alumni and supporters in the concrete grandstand and one whole section and a part of another in the wooden stands have been reserved for Auburn students.

There were so many requests early in September from Auburn supporters that the Tech authorities reserved a section for Auburn alumni and supporters.

MIKE PASSES UP ATLANTA

Mike McTigue, contrary to previous arrangements, failed to arrive in Atlanta Thursday night—being delayed in starting from New York, a wire from his manager, Joe Jacobs, stated—and he will pass up the Georgia capital, going straight through to Columbus.

He will reach the scene of the championship fight tonight, which will give him five days of training there before fight day.

On Saturday the world's light-heavyweight champion will take his initial workout on Georgia soil. Stribbling will be on the battleground today, reports have it.

Atlanta fans had better hurry if they expect to obtain ringside seats in advance. Announcement Thursday was that the seats here will be taken off sale Saturday night and returned to Columbus.

ELKS BATTLE FEDS' OUTFIT

Both the All-Elks Stars and the Commodore Feds are champing at their respective bits, anxiously awaiting the umpire's "play ball," starting them on their way at Ponce de Leon on Saturday afternoon in what promises to be one of the best semi-pro games of the season just drawing to a close.

The proceeds of the game, which is being sponsored by Barney Barnard, will go in its entirety to the Elks' Christmas charity fund, for distribution during the Yuletide season among the worthy poor of Atlanta.

Mr. Barnard, who is one of Atlanta's well-known for his gifts to equally well known for his gifts to charitable causes. There is no charitable undertaking in Atlanta which does not contain Mr. Barnard's name upon the list of subscribers.

"Tickets to the game at Poncey on Saturday afternoon," said Mr. Barnard, "cost but 50 cents for the grand stand seats, and 25 cents for the general admission seats. There will be no customary war tax to pay, as the internal revenue department has granted me an exemption on this tax due to the fact that the proceeds go to a charity fund."

A parade headed by the Elks' band of 78 pieces, in which the Elks' uniformed patrol and members of the lodge will participate, will precede the ball game.

HORSE RACES AT LAKEWOOD

BY M. D. GLEASON.

The horse racing for Shriners' day at Lakewood Saturday promises to be unusually good, as some fine horses are on the program that day.

Walter Candler will have three in the light harness events that look promising. Baby Mc., 2:10 1-4; Eva Bar, 2:14 1-4, and George Styles, 2:29 1-4, are the Candler horses, and Billy Lotz will have McConnie, 2:10 1-2, and Dick Wilson, a new pacer, that gives promise of making a good record. All horses are in fine condition and the owners and drivers are looking forward to Saturday with much anticipation.

The track at Lakewood, which is one of the fastest in the country, has been put in first-class shape, as it will also be used a good deal during the fair next month.

The races Saturday will start promptly at 3 o'clock and the Shriners are predicting that a big crowd will be there to see them off.

Boys' High Grid Schedule Carries Hard Encounters

Purple Will Open Season Against Decatur High School Next Week. Meets T. H. S. Dec. 1.

Boys' High will open its 1923 prep football season on Friday afternoon, October 5, with Decatur High on the DeKalb county grounds. From then on through December 1 Boys' high will be meeting the best prep elevens in the state.

Last year Boys' High opened its season with Decatur and the DeKalb county lads pulled a surprise, holding the purple and white elevens to a tieless score. Immediately after that game the football authorities of Boys' High and Decatur got together and scheduled a battle for the 1923 season.

On the whole Boys' High starts October 5 on one of its hardest football grinds in years. Nine games in all will be played, with no rest from October 5 until December 1 when Tech will be played. Boys' High will resume football relations with Lanier High this season after a layoff of several years. Newnan High, another old foe, will be played again this season.

Six of the nine games will be played on foreign soil, making the going all the harder for Coach Winkler's eleven. Gordon Institute, a veteran on the Boys' High schedule, will be played in Barnesville on October 12, the second game of the season.

As the season nears its end Boys' High supporters will begin to talk of the annual Boys' High-Tech High affair of December 1, the climax to the prep football season in Atlanta. It makes no difference what success has visited either team, the Boys' High-Smithie game is the thriller of the season. Several seasons ago Tech High was favored to win by several touchdowns but the plucky little green eleven from Boys' High held the Smithies to a low score, and last season Tech High was the favorite early in the season but when the game was played there was a decidedly different tale to tell. Tech High won by a field goal in the last three minutes of play when a substitute was shoved into the fray in the final attempt to break a scoreless tie.

Coach Winkler has been drilling the purple and white eleven hard for the past two weeks. Many veterans are lost and a new team is being developed. The green lads are rapidly learning the system and many opponents of Boys' High are liable to be surprised when the season starts.

October 19—Marist.
October 26—Lanier High at Macon.
November 2—G. M. A.
November 9—Griffin High at Griffin.
November 17—Newnan High at Newnan.
November 23—Columbus High at Columbus.
December 1—Tech High on Grant Field.

In Other Bracket of P. G. A. Turney Walter Hagen Clashes With "Dapper George" McLean.

Pelham Manor, N. Y., September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Gene Sarazen, the black-haired youth who stood the golfing world on its head in 1922 with his amazing game, stepped to the fore today in the Professional Golfers' association championship and won his way to the semi-finals over "Long Jim" Barnes. The match ended on the 36th and last hole, rather dramatically.

Tomorrow Sarazen, who won the professional and the open championships last year, will meet "Wee Bobby" Cruickshank, of West Field, N. J., who triumphed today in an extra hole match with William MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe. Cruickshank won at the 39th. In the other half of the semi-final Walter Hagen, victor over Fred McLeod, of Wassington, 5 up and 4, will play "Dapper George" McLean, of the Grassy Sprain club, Bronxville, whose uncanny putting eliminated Joe Kirkwood, the Australian, 5 and 4.

Tenser moments than some of those in the match between Sarazen and Barnes were probably never experienced in a golf match. "Long Jim" was playing his home course, yet Sarazen took the lead on the very first hole and was never down to Long Jim. And, too, he never, even at the end of the morning round, when he had Jim 3 down, was certain of victory.

On the sirteenth of the morning round, Sarazen, on his approach putt, laid a stymie and Barnes, attempting to win the hole, knocked Sarazen's ball in. Barnes played par golf on the third nine, but at that he lost another hole to Sarazen, who turned in 36. And so with the last nine to go, Barnes was four down. He began his great fight on the 12th hole where his par four was good enough to win when Sarazen's chip-shot failed to get up.

Another For Barnes.

The 13th also went to Barnes on his birdie four. Long Jim captured another birdie on the 15th. They halved the 16th. Then Barnes on the 516-yard seventeenth made his second eagle of the week. His tee shot was long and straight down the fairway and his second was within 40 feet of the pin. He holed on the first attempt and the match was squared.

The last hole on which a strong tee shot will reach the green, lying below a knoll and out of sight from the tee, brought the end. Barnes' ball appeared to light closer to the pin that Sarazen's, but it was just off the green sixty feet from the pin. Sarazen's was about 35 feet from home. Jim chipped past and took two putts. The ground between Sarazen's ball and the cup had three bumps in it. Yet Sarazen evaded them all and holed out for victory.

The 39-hole match between Cruickshank and MacFarlane was the third of the week to go beyond the 36th. Willie Ogg defeated Carl Anderson at the 37th hole in the second round and lost to George McLean yesterday at the 38th.

Cruickshank's Rally.

Cruickshank made another of his great finishes today against MacFarlane. The latter by remarkable putting stood 3 up on the little Scot after the first nine, but was only one up at the eighteenth and even the match on the 36th.

They halved the first two of the extra holes, but on the third MacFarlane second shot landed in a ditch and his attempt at recovery only drove the ball deeper into the mud. He conceded defeat.

Hagen had no difficulty in disposing of Fred McLeod. At the end of the morning round Hagen was five up, due in part to McLeod's ragged putting. On the 12th and 13th holes McLeod missed putts of not more than 3 feet. In the afternoon McLeod's game improved, but he was unable to cut down the lead and the match ended on the 14th green when they halved the hole in sixes.

McLean, by uncanny putting from all distances, finished the first 18 holes 5 up on Joe Kirkwood.

Joe was away to a good start, playing the first nine holes in 36 and stood one up on McLean. Coming in he lost the tenth, 11th, 12th and 13th in succession to become three down. He also dropped the 16th and 17th.

Kirkwood managed to reduce McLean's lead on the first of the afternoon round and stood only three down at the 27th, but McLean won the 28th with a birdie 2 and ended the match on the 22d hole, with a birdie four.

LACK OF RESERVE MATERIAL BIG PROBLEM AT GEORGIA

Few Veterans Are on Hand And Team Faces Tough List; Will Open Against Mercer

Athens, Ga., September 27.—The lack of good reserve material is the handicap that is facing the coaches at the University of Georgia this season. This is apparent to the most casual visitor to Sanford Mead and can be deducted from the shifts that are being made in the line-ups, according to fans.

And Georgia supporters find cause for regret in the situation, too. Facing the Bulldogs this season is the most ambitious schedule ever arranged for an Athens team and from this date there seems to be not the semblance of a set-up affair. Already rumblings are coming out of Macon of a cry that has been raised on the Mercer campus that echo, 'beat Georgia.'

The Baptist claim that last year when they went down in ignominous defeat by the score of 41 to 0 that the ravages of dengue fever had impoverished the team to such an extent that it was fifty per cent weaker than it will be this year. The Baptist come to Athens for the opening game of the season on Saturday.

Following this game is the Oglethorpe affair. With new coaches and a determination to make a place in the sun of southern gridiron history, the Petrels are striking out for a showing against Georgia this year that will in a way make up for past defeats. Last year the swift footed Mauer carried the ball across Georgia's goal for a touchdown but the Athenians won by a score that read something like 26 to 0.

Then Comes Yale.

After Oglethorpe comes Yale in New Haven. Georgia only hopes that this game will not be another Chicago affair of last season when the Red and Black offense was dashed to pieces against the Chi defense while the forwards were ripped into with such fury that some of them never recovered all season.

On the following Saturday Georgia again hits foreign territory, Knoxville, where the University of Tennessee is tackled. On October 27 no game is scheduled and the team will take things easy for the Auburn affair in Columbus on November 3. This is the only letup in the schedule and beginning with the Auburn battle look what comes!

November 10—Virginia in Athens.

December 1—Centre in Athens.

And less than three men per position make up the squad at this early date. This is not the number by actual count but there are hardly more than 33 men on hand who will come under consideration of the coaches.

There are no ends on hand. Even John Fletcher, all southern full of last year, has been switched to that position. Center is open while both flanks of center are vacant. There is a fight for quarter back and Randall is about the only holdover from last year among the halves.

Woodruff, Stegeman, Thomas, Bachman and White are working until dark daily in an effort to build up not only a varsity but to place what reserves there are on hand into the positions best fitted. Old grads and local fans who have watched practice from the opening date realize that only a miracle in the way of good luck as to injuries and a spirit that will never give up are the only things that will pull Georgia through her toughest schedule without suffering a series of defeats.

Saturday will see the opening game and a large number of the football enthusiasts of this section of the state are expected to be on hand to "look over" the team in actual action. More can be determined after the game.

Moran Meets White.

New York, September 27.—Charley White, of Chicago, and Pal Moran, of New Orleans, two prominent lightweight title contenders, have been matched for a 15-round contest at Madison Square garden October 5. In a 12-round semi-final match Harold Smith, Chicago bantamweight, will box Danny Lee, of New York.

HOMER SMITH HARD HITTER

Since Promoter Waik Miller signed this pair, Homer has knocked out Ray Smith, and as he wants to win over Lohman, he has had his bout with Harry Wills put back to October 11.

Many good judges think that Wills has gone back in his boxing in a year and that Homer, with these two good fights under his belt, will have a good chance with the New Orleans negro.

It will also be remembered that Firpo could do nothing with the Kalamazoo heavyweight, and while stories sent out from Omaha would make one think that Firpo had Homer down for the count some times, as a matter of fact it is alleged that the only thing that the "Wild Bull" did to Homer was to foul him frequently with the illegal rabbit punch.

Georgia Captain

Georgia Captain Is Natural Leader

Business Before Sport for Bennett

Athens, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Joe Bennett, for three years a mainstay in the Georgia line, and now captain of the Bulldogs, stands out as an individual of a kind rarely found in football annals. He is rated at the very top in all-round playing ability, and he deserves to be, but it was not always so. He was in his third year at Tech High in Atlanta before he made the team, and after only two years of high school experience he came to college and broke into fast company right from the start.

Joe is a product of hard, hard work at the gridiron game for years. He has had to dig for all the football ability and physical prowess that he has at least attained, and in the process of taking the hard knocks that have battered him all these years he has developed something more than mere skill at one sport. He has become a leader of men—not only on the football field, but in everything. And he has done this because instead of playing football to the exclusion of school work he has always put business first and sport afterward. His record at the University of Georgia is clear of failures in studies.

Bennett's grip upon his comrades on the team is remarkable. Whenever the game seems to be going to the other side, and fate and fortune favor the opposing team, it is he who rouses the men to fight all the harder to win the game. Filled with undying gameness himself, he has that rare ability of imparting it to others at the critical moment. He is the one man for the captaincy of the Bulldogs, with his experience on the team, with his reliability and natural leadership.

As a player Joe is clean and aggressive. His work at tackle during his second year on a college team caused several writers to pick him for All-Southern, and by the end of his third year his selection was almost unanimous. He combines with his line ability an educated toe that makes him the most consistent long range punter among the Bulldogs. In addition he is an adept at throwing passes, and after the touchdown is chalked up it is he who assays to boot the pigskin between the uprights for the extra point.

Basketball Star.

During the winter months Bennett is occupied with basketball, as for the past two years he has played at regular guard on Georgia's cage five. He is large and rather bulky for a basketball player, but somehow manages to cavort around under the basket fast enough to worry the opposing forwards. Although he was not a member of the varsity cage team his first year, Joe did hold down a berth on the freshman team of that year and was its captain.

The past history of the Georgia captain is interesting. He prepped at Tech High in Atlanta, and won distinction there in the two years he played on the teams. Both years he made the gridiron and basketball teams, and in 1920 he won a letter in baseball. He gained the distinction of captaining two teams at Tech High—the football and basketball teams, his last year there. Joe won the athletic medal at Tech High in 1918-1919 for the best all-round athlete.

On the university campus Joe Bennett is one of the leading figures, taking as he does a prominent part in several of the most vital student activities. Socially he has acquired distinction as president of the Pan-Hellenic Council. He is also chief executive of some other organizations. While not busy on the gridiron Joe finds time to teach a class in the Sunday school of the Prince Avenue Baptist church. Next June he will get his diploma from the School of Law. Physically, morally, mentally, socially, he is equally well developed, the true four-square man, the highest type of athete.

CLEMSON TIGER READY FOR THE AUBURN GAME

Clemson, S. C., September 27.—Clemson's shifty set of Tigers are crouching their first battle with another set of the same feline family.

Saturday, for the first time in years, the Auburn Tigers are the guests of the Clemson men and the South Carolinians are hoping to give them a warm reception.

Little has been learned here of the strength of Auburn, though under their new coaching system, they are expected to present a strangely different offensive and defensive from past Auburn teams. Saturday's game marks the real opening of the season for both teams.

ALABAMA WILL OPEN AGAINST UNION TEAM

Tuscaloosa, Ala., September 27.—The University of Alabama is declared to be ready for the invasion of the Union University Bulldogs Saturday in the opening gridiron clash of the two institutions.

Oglethorpe Reserve List Helps Eleven's Chances

Three Backfield Combinations Available for Use Against Jackets, Bill Morrow Says.

BY BILL MORROW.

With but one afternoon of practice remaining before the Tech and Oglethorpe football players have their little get-together of Saturday at Grant field, Coach Jim Robertson called a halt on the morning practices for his Stormy Petrels and in the regular afternoon's workout was satisfied with a snappy signal drill. The Petrel mentor did not believe in taking too many chances on account of the condition of the squad and, although the afternoon's exertion was fairly stiff, a decided let-up could be noticed.

The Petrels are in only fair condition for their initial battle of the season and the let-up of Thursday, which will doubtlessly continue through today, was made so that the cripples in the Oglethorpe camp could have a little additional time in which to rest and make ready for the battle with the Jackets. Though not a single broken bone has been reported, injuries of minor order, but highly important, have kept quite a large percentage of the Oglethorpe squad on the side lines and, in addition, have kept the coaching squad on the edge, fearing to call scrimmages, but realizing the need of practice under fire before the Tech tilt.

The reserve strength of the Petrels should be of great help in the keping of a fresh combination against the Jackets. In the past the Petrels had only a few reserves, and the great difference in ability of the varsity and the scrub combinations was such that, no matter how bad the occasion demanded fresh material, the reserve strength on hand did not half fill the requirement. This season, however, the Petrel camp is fortunate in having a large number of cracker-jack substitutes, their playing being almost on a level with the first stringers.

Three Back Fields.

Coach Robertson will have at his disposal for the Tech affair three backfield combinations of nearly the same offensive and defensive ability, six end men of practically the same caliber, three centers that have seen service under Petrel colors in the past and several reserves for additional places on the line. Though the list does not include any players of All-American prominence, it totals some nifty athletes.

Oglethorpe representatives in the game Saturday will be fighting to lower the score, and if not successful in winning a victory over the Jackets, keep the latter's total as low as possible. The Petrels are anxious to repeat their scoring stunt of last year and there is a possibility of Maurer and company chalking up other scores against the Jackets. Last year Maurer accounted for the first Oglethorpe touchdowns against Tech and the University of Georgia Bulldogs, this athlete having accounted for a run of 95 yards against the Jackets and another spectacular dash in Athens.

Coach Robertson has not made public the names of the eleven men that will start the affair of Saturday afternoon and speculation is rife at the university as to the correct combination.

Though the coaching staff may start an entirely different combination, the writer looks to the Petrels to start with a backfield quartet of Morris, Wallace, Maurer and Kilgore. Morris, though not being able to gain as consistently as other candidates, is one of the best punters in the south, his kicks in the past totaling some excellent yardage. Morris is a triple threat man, and should be able, with his experience, to handle the quarter berth in jam-up style. The halfbacks will doubtlessly be Wallace and Maurer, both prominent in the Petrel exhibitions of last year. Bob Kilgore should surpass his commendable record of last season in the capacity of fullback. Bob is a dandy plunger and a desirable man to have on defense.

The problem of who's who in the line is almost unanswerable. With the end berths being contested by excellent players, it is not certain which two of a list of David, Brown, Nix, Carrol will get the positions. Other places on the line are closely contested, in several cases by letter men and the correct lineup will hardly be known till the whistle calls the Petrel and the Jacket to action.

Middies to Take Trip.

Annapolis, Md., September 27.—The navy football team will be permitted to make a trip to California to meet the intercollegiate champions of the Pacific coast on New Year's day, it was officially announced today by Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson.

DEFENDS CONDUCT OF DEPARTMENT

journment of the assembly last August.

Mr. Brown stated positively that he did not speak to either President Carswell or Speaker Neill on the last day, or during the final session of the legislature. He said, in fact, that as far as his recollection went, he did not talk with either of them for four or five days before the legislature adjourned. He said he was in the gallery of the house on the last night of the session, with a party of ladies and gentlemen, but that he left before midnight and went directly home.

Did Not See Neill.

Cross-examined, Mr. Brown said that he did see Speaker Neill from the gallery of the house, fulfilling his duties in the chair. That he saw Mr. Neill leave the chair several times and once or twice do so when called by Representative Stewart. At these times, said the witness, Mr. Stewart had what looked like a list of names in his hand, but of course he was too far away, in the gallery of the house, to see this exactly.

He denied that he had ever used, or had attempted to use, any influence he might have with Speaker Neill or President Carswell in making legislative committee appointments of any character.

Referring to charges made on the stand by J. J. Holloway, former state oil inspector, that audits of the department's books were unnecessary expense to the state, Mr. Brown said that the audit in reference was made when Mr. Holloway was leaving the position and it was merely good business to properly check the accounts when one man was going out and another in.

He said this system of audits was authorized by the governor and was first used when Marvin P. Roane left the position, to be succeeded by Mr. Holloway. The first of these audits cost approximately $2,000 he said, and the second, which covered a much shorter period or time, about $600.

Denies Holloway's Charge.

Mr. Brown denied in full Mr. Holloway's charge that he had told Holloway not to press certain matters against the oil companies for fear they would raise money to be used against him in his campaign for re-election. He said he discussed the question of reimbursing oil companies their inspection fees on oil that was reshipped out of the state, saying it would be unfair to any corporation or company to exact double taxation on any of its product.

Discussing differences between himself and Mr. Holloway in regard to the latter's leaving the post of state oil inspector, Mr. Brown said that they were entirely in connection with the performance of Mr. Holloway's work and that there was nothing whatsoever personal between them. In fact, he said, as far as he knew, they are good friends today. He said the main point of difference was on the question of whether Holloway, as state oil inspector, should spend most of his time out in the field, watching for infractions of the law by local inspectors or oil companies, or in the office. Mr. Brown said that, inasmuch as a bookkeeper had been provided to look after the office records, he believed the inspector should spend the greater part of his time outside.

He said, that after careful study, he was of the opinion that present gasoline inspection laws are inadequate to properly protect consumers. He said he had sought for three years to get the legislature to amend the law to provide for the distillation test in addition to present tests and had hopes that the Mann bill, which does this and which is pending in the house, having passed the senate, would become law.

Not to Produce Revenue.

Mr. Brown pointed out that the half cent per gallon fee charged the oil companies was for inspection purposes, and was not designed to produce a revenue to the state. Nevertheless, above all cost of inspection, he pointed out that this fee has put an average of more than quarter of a million dollars into the state treasury every year.

It would be impossible to protect the public with any smaller force of oil inspectors than at present employed, he stated. He cited cases where gasoline had been found in kerosene tank cars and said that if it was not for the alertness of inspectors, it was probable that this gasoline would have been sold at retail for kerosene, with probable results of explosions, fires and possible loss of life, when it was used in lamps and stoves.

He also cited a case where the department had discovered that an oil company was behind in its payments to the state to the amount of $12,000. Under cross-examination he said this was the Loving Oil Co., of Americus. He admitted that the cause of the delinquent payment was undoubtedly negligence on the part of the state oil inspector and the local inspector at Americus. He said no legal action to recover this money had been begun yet, it having developed that the member of the firm who would have to pay this sum was entirely innocent of any knowledge of the case, and that it had been decided to allow him reasonable time to make good the deficiency.

The commissioner also suggested that it would be advisable so to amend the law as to allow for inspection of lubricating oils.

Reduction of Revenue.

Asked what would be the economic result of any reduction in the number of oil inspectors, he said that it would undoubtedly result in a reduction of revenue to the state, as well as a reduction in protection to the consumers of gasoline and kerosene. This economic loss would be especially true, he said, since the passage of the new law putting a three cent per gallon tax on gasoline. The loss would come about in the increase in the amount of "bootlegged" gasoline, or gasoline which came into the state without paying any tax, he said.

Asked about the number of fertilizer inspectors, he said there were six full time men, who worked twelve months in the year, while there were forty short term inspectors who were employed for two months during the season of heavy fertilizer shipments. Even with this force, he stated, last year there were at least three thousand requests for fertilizer inspections that it was physically impossible for the inspectors to make before the farmer had to use his fertilizer on his land.

Defends Galloway.

The long term inspectors, he said, not only made necessary fertilizer inspections throughout the year, but also sampled shipments of calcium arsenate sent to the state. He stated that Wiley Galloway, one of these men, was engaged in this work during the past session of the legislature. It has been charged that he devotes too much of his time, while the assembly is in session, to political activity. The commissioner presented in evidence a sheaf of special inspections made by the inspector during the last legislative session.

Mr. Olive, defense attorney, asked Mr. Brown if he remembered the statement, made by Representative Stewart on the floor of the house, "I hold in my hand documents that prove J. J. Brown is a liar, a thief and a perjurer." Mr. Olive then asked if anywhere there were in existence any such documents. Mr. Brown made an emphatic denial.

Market Bulletin Found.

Chairman Lankford asked Mr. Brown to explain how it was that a subscription price of 10 cents had at one time been charged for the Market Bulletin.

At the time, about two years ago, the commisioner replied, the money necessary to print and circulate the bulletin was not available because there was no appropriation. The popularity of the bulletin was such, however, that he particularly desired to continue it. In order to do this they asked the federal postoffice department for a ruling on the acceptance of commercial advertising. They found they could do this, with federal approval, by making an annual subscription charge of 10 cents. In order to avoid the cost of mailing out requests for subscriptions, the department asked the oil, fertilizer and other inspectors to secure a number of subscriptions. He said undoubtedly some of the inspectors sent in their own personal checks for a block of subsecriptions and then failed to collect the individual 10 cents for these, in which case the subscription would be complimentary on the part of the inspector.

However, said Mr. Brown, a later appropriation by the legislature made it unnecessary to continue this system.

Asked by Representative Galloway as to refunds on fertilizer shipments, which have been made to many farmers, Mr. Brown said these were all made because the department had discovered either a shortage in weight or a failure to reach the guaranteed analysis.

Expense Vouchers.

Under cross-examination, the prosecution sought to bring out the method by which expense vouchers are approved for payment. Mr. Brown said the receipts for the individual items are kept in his office as they are the only protection to show that the expenses are legitimate. The itemized statement is sent to the governor's office for payment.

Asked who would be responsible if an expense voucher was issued without the proper receipts, he said the warrant clerk in the governor's office and the governor.

He was then asked how the warrant clerk was to see these expense receipts if they are kept in his (Brown's) office and he replied:

"By walking around and asking to see them."

Mr. Brown then referred to the fact that the expense accounts of J. J. Holloway while he was state oil inspector, were the only ones he had ever heard of being paid from the governor's office without approval of the head of the department. Asked if he could tell how this condition came about, he said he did not know positively, but he "had a good idea." He did not enlarge upon this, however, the question being ruled out.

Assistant Attorney T. R. Gress, conducting the prosecution, sought to prove that T. J. Hudson had sold fertilizer to the experimental farm in south Georgia. Mr. Brown readily admitted this. He was then asked if this was not in violation of the law, which requires that employees of the department shall not be employed by any fertilizer company.

Not in Department.

The commissioner replied that Mr. Hudson was not employed by his department in any capacity. He said that he was a member of the board of entomology, but that was a position not controlled by the department and Mr. Hudson was appointed to the place by Governor Hardwick.

Questioned about the campaign fund which employees of the department raised among themselves to assist in his reelection, Mr. Brown said he knew nothing of it personally, did not know who contributed and who did not, but frankly admitted that he was gratified at this action on their part.

Following Mr. Brown on the stand, Albert Sharp, state fire marshal, said that proper inspection of gasoline and oil brought into the state was important as a preventative against fires. He said that 73 fires had been caused this year through careless handling of these products. He said he could not recommend any reduction in the number of oil inspectors, as he believed there ought to be one available at every receiving point where tank cars are received.

At the morning session, time was largely taken up with the first part of Mr. Brown's testimony.

Defend Brown.

President Carswell and Speaker Neill, both went on the witness stand and swore that they had not spoken with Mr. Brown on the last day of the session, or that they had ever had any conference with him in respect to the membership of the committee.

President Carswell stated that Senator W. R. Hodges, who led the senate fight against the department, would have been named on the committee bu for his personal request that he be left off. Mr. Sarswell stated that he did know he had selected an honest committee that will do its full duty, and "I have no apologies to offer."

Mr. Neill testified that he had never been in a conference with Mr. Brown in his life. He said, also, that he was not with President Carswell on the last night of the session. Referring to the testimony of Representative E. H. McMichael, of Marion county, that Wiley Galloway, a fertilizer inspector, was generally referred to as the speaker's "Man Friday," Mr. Neill said:

"Galloway has been my loyal friend for twelve years. Occasionally during the legislature he helped me check up on my pages and doorkeepers. He acted purely as my friend and received no pay for his services."

Received No Pay.

Fred Bridges, assistant commissioner of agriculture, testified Thursday that, during the time while he was reading clerk of the house, he had received no pay from the department. In order to refute the charges of "political machine" which have been made against the department, Mr. Bridges compiled a list of 70 employees of the department who did not contribute to Mr. Brown's campaign fund but who still retain their positions. He said no employee had been discharged for failure to contribute.

Representative Stewart was not present at the hearings on Thursday. It was reported that he had gone to Savannah to see Grover Edmondson, with the purpose of securing the documentary evidence which he has stated he has against the department, but which is in the hands of Mr. Edmondson, as his attorney.

Tech High Starts Season Against Commerce Today

BY GORDON KEITH.

The Tech High football squad leaves this morning for Commerce, where it will play Commerce High this afternoon.

In addition to the coaching staff, consisting of Head Coach Tolbert and Coaches Doyle and Burgess, and the student manager, Randy Edmunson, 26 players went along. Among this number were six ends, four tackles, four guards, two centers, five halves, three fulls and two quarters. The ends making the trip were Watkins, Bell, Payne, Woodall, Erdman and Holland. The tackles were Perkins, McConnell, Goldsmith and Bran. The guards going along were Forrest, Porter, McDavid and O'Bear. Thompson, Hubert, Gaghey and Breck are the halves to be used. Captain O'Neil, Randolph and Passion will take care of the fullback position, and VanHouten and Testard will be brought along to handle the quarterback's job.

When Tech High lines up for the opening whistle, the men representing her will, in all probability, be Watkins and Holland, on the ends; Perkins and Bran, at tackles; Porter and McDavid, guards; Lainterbeser, center; Thompson and Breck, halves; O'Neil, full, and VanHouten, quarter.

The Smithies are the first in the city prep league to play a game this fall, and their performance in this opening fracras will be watched with interest by the other members of the league. Tech Hi met Commerce in the fall of 1916, Tech High winning the game by a score of 24 to 0. Judge Harlan and Shorty Doyle were Smithie jersies in that battle.

Tech High got off to an early start this season, anticipating this early fracas, and has been working the past week with especial care to perfect her eleven for Commerce High. Little or nothing is known of Comemrce High's prospects this year, but Tech High has put out her best preparing for the game, and she will be ready when the initial kickoff is started. Only one scrimmage was held this week, a stiff affair, lasting fully an hour, Tuesday, but scrimmages were far more popular last week, a brief battle being staged every afternoon.

Ed Payne, who was reported to have broken his ankle in practice last week, will be back in uniform the first of the week as good as ever. He will probably step back into his old position as varsity center. Watkins, one of the most promising of the candidates for a berth out on the wings, is fasth developing into an excellent kicker, and will probably do a lot of the Smithie booting this fall.

FRANK CHANCE QUITS BOSTON

Boston, September 27.—Frank Chance will not manage the Boston Red Sox in 1924, Robert Quinn, president of the club, announced tonight. The announcement followed a conference between the two earlier in the day. In his announcement Quinn stated that he intended to build from the ground up in restoring the Boston club to its former place of prominence in the American league.

Quinn said he had two possible managers under consideration, but had approached neither. Chance will finish the season with the Red Sox, but it was stated he wished to be free to negotiate with any other big league team that contemplates a change in managership.

The announcement that Chance would leave Boston came as a shock to Boston fans, who have admittedly fallen off in numbers during the last two years, while the Red Sox have occupied the cellar. Chance has been one of the colorful spots of the club and had instilled his fighting spirit into a weak team with such results that its won and lost percentage is over .400.

Signed Last Year.

The signature of Frank Leroy Chance was attached to a Red Sox managerial contract on December 11 of last year while H. H. Frazee owned the club. When Quinn and his associates of Columbus, Ohio, acquired the club this season, Chance retained the reins. Details of the financial aspects of the contract were never made public.

The return of Chance to the diamond was hailed by fans with glee and his popularity has increased since he reentered the baseball picture. As first baseman and "peerless leader" more than a decade ago of the famous Chicago Cubs—National league champions four times and world's champions twice—Chance established a reputation as a brilliant field strategist as well as player.

Twice since he left the Cubs after 15 years as manager and player and reitred to his California orange groves, Chance had succumbed to the lure of baseball. The first time was to accept a reported $40,000 contract to manage the New York Yankees and the next time was to manage the lowly Red Sox.

Government experts claim that general crop insurance is practical and predict large scale operations within a few years.

STRIBLING IS USING RIGHT

Warm Springs, Ga., September 27. (Special.)—Young Stribling's last workout before leaving for Columbus, where he will begin his last grind of training for his coming battle with McTigue, was very impressive this afternoon.

He played handball, punched the bag and went through a set of limbering up exercises and concluded the evening's workout with six fast rounds of sparring. He saved his best for the last when he opened up in the final round on Big Joe Burnam, his chief sparring partner.

Several times he sent Burnam reeling backwards with terrific lefts and rights. Strib's biggest fault in the past has been his failure to use his right. It will be a different Stribling that faces McTigue on the fourth, if he fights as he fought this afternoon, for numerous times he sent a right hook crashing against his sparring mate's head.

The challenger is in the best condition of his entire career, but for fear of becoming stale he will only be given a light workout tomorrow.

Graduate Nurse Finds "The Perfect Remedy"

"From my long experience as a professional nurse, I do not hesitate to say I consider Tanlac the most efficient and natural stomach medicine and tonic to be had. It is undoubtedly nature's most perfect remedy," is the far-reaching statement given out for publication, recently, by Mrs. I. A. Borden, 425 Pontius Ave., Seattle, Wash., a graduate of the National Temperance Hospital, Chicago.

"I have used Tanlac exclusively for seven years in the treatment of my charity patients," said Mrs. Borden, "and my experience has been that for keeping the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning properly, and for toning up the system in general, it has no equal.

"About a year ago I had a lady patient who could not keep a thing on her stomach fifteen minutes, not even water. I prevailed on her to try Tanlac and after the sixth bottle she could eat absolutely anything she wanted without the slightest bad after-effects.

"I had another patient who simply could not eat. I got him started on Tanlac and by the time he finished three bottles he was eating ravenously and able to work.

Armstrong's Linoleum

Jaspé Linoleum

This waxed and polished floor is Armstrong's Jaspé Linoleum, which is a two-tone effect in either gray, brown, blue, or green

A Mother of Small Children Gives Her Reasons

Armstrong Cork Company
Linoleum Division
Lancaster, Pennsylvania

Dear Sirs:

I am so thoroughly pleased with my Armstrong Linoleums that I feel compelled to tell you about them. We use linoleum almost all over the house—from kitchen to living-room—and never have to worry about the floors, because they are so easily kept clean and bright and beautiful. This is a fact doubly appreciated where there are small children. There is nothing quite so satisfactory for floors as linoleum, and I always insist on "Armstrong's" because I know from experience that it is exceptionally good and dependable.

Yours very truly,
Mrs. W. J. B.

If you have small children, you know what Mrs. B. is talking about.

Look for the CIRCLE "A" trademark on the burlap back

Children will track in dirt. They will scatter things about. They will romp and clatter over wood floors. Linoleum floors are quiet and easy to clean.

Mothers who want the lighter housework and the cheerful beauty that linoleum floors give to a home are invited to write to our Bureau of Interior Decoration. This Bureau is in charge of Mrs. Hazel Dell Brown, an experienced decorator, who has helped many women plan color schemes for new homes or to refurnish particular rooms.

This department will give you information about linoleum patterns and designs for different rooms, tell you how to take care of linoleum floors and how to have them laid. We will give you the names of good stores near you that can supply Armstrong's Linoleum in the new decorative floor designs, and that can do good laying. Mrs. Brown's advice is entirely free.

Your merchant will show you the new designs

Let us send you a sample of Armstrong's Linoleum, and our 24-page booklet, "New Floors for Old," containing a score of color-plates of distinctive designs that you can see at good stores—Jaspés, carpet inlaids, tile inlaids, and printed patterns; linoleum rugs, printed and inlaid; also information on laying linoleum and on how to care for your linoleum floors.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Honor Goldsmith-Knox Bridal Party

Miss Marianna Goldsmith and John Knox, whose marriage will be an interesting social event of Wednesday evening, October 3 were guests of honor at the dinner party given Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. DeSalles Harrison, at their home on East Sixteenth street.

The guests were seated at a long table overlaid with a cloth of lace and madeira. A tall silver vase filled with pink roses and buddleia graced the center. Smaller vases of these same lovely flowers were placed at each end. Silver candlesticks holding unshaded lavender tapers surrounded the central decoration and cast a soft gleam over the charming scene.

Dainty hand-painted cards in the shade of pink and lavender marked the places of the guests.

Johnson-Atkins Wedding Party Is Honored Thursday Evening

Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Wagar entertained at bridge Thursday evening at their home on Peachtree street in compliment to Miss Jennie Johnson and Dr. Frank Miller Atkins, whose marriage will be a brilliant social affair of Wednesday evening, October 9, at St. Mark's church.

The spacious rooms where the game was played were lovely in their decoration of pink roses and buddleia artistically arranged in vases and bowls and placed on the mantels and book-cases.

Supper was served at the conclusion of the game from individual tables adorned in the center by slender vases of pink roses.

Mrs. Wagar received her guests wearing a handsome gown of dahlia colored chiffon combined with gold metal cloth.

Miss Pratt and Miss Matthews Will Be Honored by Mrs. Stevens

Miss Margaret Pratt and Miss Mary Matthews, two charming brides-elect of the fall, will be guests of honor at the luncheon given Saturday by Mrs. T. T. Stevens at her home on West Peachtree street Saturday, September 29, at 1 o'clock.

Invited to meet these charming young girls will be their bridesmaids and several friends of the hostess.

There is quite a lot of sentiment attached to Mrs. Stevens' compliment to Miss Pratt and Miss Matthews in that when she was president of the Atlanta chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy the late Mrs. George Lewis Pratt and Mrs. L. C. Matthews, mothers of these lovely brides-elect, served as officers during her regime, and were numbered among the close friends of the hostess.

Music Pupils Give Recital.

The Atlanta Conservatory of Music will present piano pupils from the class of Mrs. John William Ware in a studio recital Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Pupils taking part are Misses Dorothy Perkins, Cornelia Ledbetter, Nellie Joe Tift, Aida Tedder, Frances Snipes, Lianelle Holland, Maynor Fluker, Marjorie Roach, Minnie Ambrose, Rufus McCall, Dorothy Tumlin, Morris Styron, Helen Hoffman.

Tickets For Concert Series To Go On Sale

Subscribing members to the concerts of the Atlanta Music club will receive their tickets at a special private sale to be held this morning, beginning at 9 o'clock, at the Cable Piano company. Special cards, bearing each subscriber's number in line, have been mailed to those who have previously sent in their reservations. Any who have not received their place cards are asked to notify Mrs. George Wight, the membership chairman, immediately.

Those who have not yet placed their subscriptions and who are desirous of becoming subscribing members, can do so by calling Mrs. Wight during the day Thursday, or by presenting themselves at the Cable Piano company Friday or Saturday, when they will be assigned places.

Subscribers receive season tickets to both the Civic Concert Series, at the auditorium, and to the Series Intime, at the auditorium of the Woman's club, in addition to membership cards admitting to all club functions. They get a total value of twenty dollars for fifteen dollars, and have the added privilege of first choice of seats.

The artists to be presented by the club include Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini, of the Chicago Opera company; Ignace Paderewski, the world's master pianist; Louis Graveure, baritone; Erika Morini, the sensational young woman violinist; and the Ukrainian chorus, in the Civic Concert Series; and Alberto Salvi, harpist; Ignaz Friedman, pianist, and the Flonzaley Quartet, in the Series Intime.

Large numbers of subscribing members have been received since the recent announcement of the courses. During the pst few days, the list includes Governor and Mrs. Clifford Walker, Mrs. D. T. Dozier, Miss Eugenia Dozier, Miss Beverly Wheatcroft, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. D. Thomson, Miss Lily Allen, Miss Kate Blatterman, Mrs. F. R. Logan, Mrs. Charles Summer, Mrs. Wesley Hirschberg, Mrs. L. O. Van Winkle, Mrs. Rix Stafford, Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin, Miss Mildred Cabaniss and the two artists from Richmond, Va., Mrs. Sherrard Wilcox and Pollard and Mrs. Fannie Horsbead Clothier.

"Tom Thumb Wedding" Will Be Repeated.

On account of so many requests the "Tom Thumb wedding," given by the beginners' department of St. John church, will be repeated Friday night, September 28, in the Sunday school room of the church. The entire proceeds will help pay for the new piano lately bought by the beginners' department. Admission, 10 cents.

Mrs. James Horne Is Bridge Hostess.

Mrs. James U. Horne entertained thirty friends at bridge Tuesday afternoon. The decorations were roses and garden flowers. The prizes were won by Mrs. Mitchell Gwynn, Mrs. Lucien York and Mrs. Joe Thompson.

Stribling-Vann Wedding Is Event Of Wide Interest

Mrs. Harriet Trammell announces the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Trammell Stribling, to John R. Vann, of Richmond, Va. The marriage was performed by the Rev. J. M. Foster, pastor of the First Methodist church, of Bainbridge Ga., at his home, Wednesday, September 26, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Harriet Trammell and the late James Augustus Trammell, of College Park. She is the sister of Mrs. Lowndes Connally, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Lester J. Harvey, of Richmond, Va.

She was educated at Cox College and is a young woman of charming personality and is a popular member of a wide circle of friends.

Mr. Vann is a native of Richmond, Va., and is a descendant of pioneer citizens of that city. For the past eight years Mr. Vann has represented the national banks as receiver and temporarily Mr. and Mrs. Vann will make their home at Colquitt, Ga.

Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary To Hold Sale.

The woman's auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., will hold a rummage sale at the curb market on Courtland street, Saturday, September 29. Any rummage donated will be appreciated.

Atlanta Girls Head Classes At Shorter

Rome, Ga., September 27.—Atlanta claims two of the four class presidents at Shorter college, Miss Mary Sue Jones, president of the senior class, and Miss Evelyn Sheffield, who heads the sophomore. Both are popular students and active in all college affairs. Miss Jones, who possesses a very beautiful soprano, is a leading member of the McDowell club. She is also an honorary member of the Alumnae association of Shorter college.

Sh-h-h-sh! The Secret's Out!

—"Oh, girls, look here! NOW I know what all this is about. Why didn't I guess before? I'm so excited I can hardly wait!"

—"Give ME a chance at that paper, Margaret, you stingy thing! WHAT IS IT?"

—"Oh, girls, do you remember last year, when they had such WON-DER-FUL bargains? I got that coat you all thought looked like a million dollars, for $35!"

—"Yes," interrupted a pretty young bride, "and Billy and I furnished our Home for so little we found we could be married long before we had hoped to be able to set the day."

—"And——"

—"Yes——"

—"DO let ME talk——"

—And there was such chattering, such enthusiastic expressions of opinion about the coming sale, that it was impossible to put down any more of the conversation.

NOTE: This scene, or a variation of it, WILL occur at many a Mah Jong or Bridge Party. In fact, last year similar conversations were reported to us.

Executive Board Endorses Mrs. Hays for Re-Election

Resolutions endorsing Mrs. J. E. Hays, of Montezuma, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs, for re-election as recording secretary of the general federation were adopted by the executive board of the state federation Thursday afternoon at the Atlanta Woman's club.

The resolutions were offered by Mrs. W. H. Griffin, of Atlanta, state chairman of the resolutions committee. Mrs. John K. Ottley, of Atlanta, moved to increase the scope of the state federation's endorsement by calling attention to the general federation the fact that Mrs. Hays is emiently qualified to continue in the position of national recording secretary and to hold any office in the general federation to which she might be called. Mrs. Albert Hill, of Greenville, seconded Mrs. Ottley's motion, which was unanimously adopted.

"Be it Resolved, by the executive board of the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs, in session this day, Thursday, September 27, 1923, that this board heartily indorse Mrs. J. E. Hays for re-election as recording secretary of the National Federation of Women's clubs at the biennial meeting at Los Angeles, in May, 1924, and pledge to her our loyal support.

"Mrs. Robert K. Rambo, Mrs. R. H. Hankinson, Mrs. R. C. Johnson, Jr., Mrs. J. Lindsey Johnson, Mrs Albert T. Akers, Mrs. W. H. Griffin."

Miss Angy Taylor, Noted Bible Student, To Give Lectures

The series of Bible lessons to be given in Eggleston hall, West Peachtree street, every afternoon at 3:30 o'clock beginning Tuesday, October 2, by Miss Angy Manning Taylor, are being anticipated with widespread interest.

Miss Taylor's reputation as a teacher is well known among students of the Bible. Although this is her first visit to Atlanta this gifted woman will not be a stranger to many here, and her coming promises the same fine results which have attended her work in other cities where she has taught, such as St. Louis, Mo.; Birmingham, Ala.; Memphis, Tenn.; Richmond, Va.; in all of which Miss Taylor has for a number of years filled annual engagements. Her teaching has also reached into the larger northern and eastern cities, as well as into Canada.

Tribute from Richmond.

"Residents of Richmond, Va., have been privileged to hear many attractive speakers in the recent past in connection with the large number of conventions which have been held in the city. They have been especially favored in having the opportunity of hearing the unusually talented speakers in the large religious gatherings recently held, notably the Baptist convention, the Episcopal convention, the Men's Missionary movement and the Missionary Movement of the Christian Church.

"It is fair to say, however, that no speaker who has visited Richmond has made a more profound impression than Miss Angy Manning Taylor, who is conducting a series of Bible study lectures this week in the Second Baptist church."

Memphis Praises Too.

From an editorial written in the Commercial Appeal, Memphis, Tenn., two paragraphs are quoted:

"Miss Taylor is fitted in three ways for the work; physically, in that her face and voice make it good to hear her; mentally, because to natural ability is added careful training and experience in this field; spiritually, because her soul is in her work.

"She makes an ideal leader because in her interpretations are no dogma, no sectarian bias; only the wide sweep of Christian truth and charity. The fact that women of all denominations are being brought together under such tender influences cannot but be a spiritual impulse to the entire city. In this Bible study conducted without can't and without denominational learnings, each woman may hold to her our creed; but at the same time she must be brought into more sympathetic touch with the creed of her neighbors.

No Charge for Lectures.

There will be no charge for the instructions given by Miss Taylor but before the close of the series every one shall have the opportunity to contribute a free-will offering for the beautiful mission work supported by this consecrated woman in the mountains, near Cumberland Gap, Va.

Rhodes Scholar To Make Home Here.

Frank Harrold, of Americus, Ga., who has just returned from a year's stay in England, is the guest of his aunt, Mrs. J. B. McCrary, in the Ponce de Leon apartments. Mr. Harrold was the winner of the Rhodes scholarship at Oxford university. He is a nephew of Governor Clifford Walker and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harrold, of Americus. After a visit at his former home in Americus he will make his home in Atlanta.

Will Represent Southern States at National Y. W. C. A. Conference

Mrs. John N. McEachern, who will leave Saturday to represent the southern states at the national Y. W. C. A. conference to be held in New York.

The selection of Mrs. John N. McEachern by the national board of the Y. W. C. A. to attend the national Y. W. C. A. industrial conference in New York, where the national body has headquarters, continues the list of southern women who are being selected for work of national scope.

Mrs. McEachern leaves for New Yorn Saturday, where she will remain for the four-day conference that will be attended by leading women throughout the United States. The Atlanta church and club leader goes as representative of the southern region of the national Y. W. C. A. The states included in the region are Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Locally, Mrs. McEachern is a director of the Y. W. C. A., a member of the association's industrial committee and chairman of the world service committee. Her interest in the industrial development of the south, the solving of this section's industrial problems and the work of girls and women in the industrial life of today, gives her a grasp upon industrial conditions that will be featured in the program of the national conference.

Mrs. Burdette Lewis, of New York, as national Y. W. C. A. chairman of industry, will preside at all conference sessions.

D. A. R. Will Preserve Historic Tavern.

Arrow Rock, Mo., September 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The old tavern built in 1830, and at one time the commercial capital of the old Santa Fe trail, which in turn put it in charge of the Missouri Chapter of the Daughters of the American revolution, to be preserved as a reminder of frontier days, and for which the last legislature appropriated $5,000 with which to buy the historic building, will be used by the D. A. R. as an historical museum and to provide a gathering place for those interested in preserving the memory of Kit Carson, Washington Irving, George C. Bingham, the Jackson's, the Sappingtons the Marmadukes and other prominent figures in the early history of Missouri.

Flower Show To Be October 16.

The date of the flower show de luxe to be held by the Peachtree Garden club is Tuesday, October 16. The show will be held in the Piedmont Driving club, and exhibits will include the lovely flowers of fall, roses and chrysanthemums, of vivid and intense beauty at this season.

Especially interesting also will be the competitive display of decorated luncheon and dinner tables which will be placed down one side of the club's ball room, while the other side will be subdivided into booths for individual displays or groups of best single blossoms and other interesting classes customarily featuring society shows.

Women Will Hear Governor Walker On Taxation Reform

Governor Clifford Walker will be the speaker at the meeting of the woman's division, Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, which will be held Friday night at 6 o'clock in the chamber of commerce building.

This is the regular monthly meeting of the division which was postponed from last Monday night on account of the fact that Governor Walker was absent from the city with the tax commission. The governor will speak in the need for tax reform in Georgia. A special musical program has been arranged.

Miss Helen Knox Spain, newly appointed chairman of the music and art committee of the woman's division will conduct a few minutes of community singing.

Every member of the division is urged to be present at this meeting. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock and reservations should reach the secretary, Walnut 0845, not later than 2 o'clock Monday.

Mrs. Hinman to Give Second Lecture on Modern Art Tuesday

The second lecture in the course being given by Mrs. George B. Hinman on "The Evolution and Philosophy of Modern Art," under the auspices of the art department of the Atlanta Woman's club, will take place in the clubhouse auditorium Tuesday morning, October 2, at 10:30 o'clock. Arrangements will be made to show the pictures illustrating the subject on the screen, and at the request of many who were unable to attend the first of the series, there will be a complete review of the previous lecture.

The pleasant conversational delivery of Mrs. Hinman, together with her sincere desire that her points shall be clear to her audience, make her lectures most enjoyable. Mrs. Hinman has chosen as the sub-title of this next lecture, "Stepping Stones to Romanticism," and will use the work of the artists Ingres, Gerard, and Prud'hon as her illustration on the screen.

Season tickets are $1.50, single lectures 50 cents. The entire proceeds will be used to bring to Atlanta an exhibition from best American artists.

Ladies' Saddle Class to Feature Horse Show

One of the features of the Children's horse show to be held at Piedmont park Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock will be the ladies' saddle class. Participating in this event will be Mrs. Wilshire Riley, Mrs. Carl Ramspeck, Mrs. Worth Yankey, Miss Henrietta Tupper, Miss Janet Evans, Miss Lily Welborn, Mrs. Robert P. Purse, Jr., of Chattanooga; Miss Sarah Orme, Mrs. Stacey Ernest Hill, Mrs. Frank Raymond, Mrs. J. E. Bracewell, Mrs. M. K. Keramides, Mrs. Glenn Ryman and Miss May Lathrop.

Aside from the regular horseshow features will be exhibits of bareback riding in the pony class and a pony race.

A polo game between the National Guard and Troop C. will conclude the performances.

U. D. C. Honors Distinguished Confederate Commander

Robert E. Harvey addressed the members of the Atlanta chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy Thursday afternoon at the meeting of this organization held to celebrate the 114th birthday anniversary of Admiral Raphaeal Semmes, of the Confedeate States navy, who distinguished himself while commander of the "Alabama."

Mr. Haravey for a number of years was one of the prominent feature writers on the Louisville Courier-Journal. He is now connected with the War Finance corporation and is also business manager of the Stone Mountain Memorial association. His father was a noted orator and also a scholar, having at one time been vice president of the Georgetown college, of Kentucky.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Charles Phillips, the president, and was replete with interesting features.

A portrait of Commodore Matthew Fountaine Maury, the work of Miss Sophonisba Hergesheimer, was exhibited. This portrait is to be presented to the Naval academy by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the Atlanta chapter to be the donor chapter. The presentation will take place at the U. D. C. convention to be held in Washington in November.

The following were given crosses: Thomas Andrew, H. W. Freeman, W. A. Garder, J. B. Hardage, Isaiah Shelton, M. C. Simpson, J. H. Reed, W. P. Brook and S. J. Weaver.

The new members received were Mrs. Harry L. Bosworth, Mrs. John L. Harper, Mrs. D. A. Small, Miss Elizabeth Irwin, Mrs. Arthur Burdett, and by demit Mrs. Walker Bradford, Miss Eula Lang.

Mrs. Richardson Is Indorsed By the Better Films Committee

The September meeting of the Atlanta Better Films committee held Thursday in the gray room of the Piedmont hotel was attended by 50 members who enjoyed the luncheon, presided over by the president of the committee, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, and always a feature of the meetings.

The Rev. W. W. Memminger, rector of All Saints church, Mrs. W. A. Albright and Mrs. M. M. Davies, of the Racial Relations committee; Miss Mary Belle La Hatte, from the Associated Charities; Boyce Edens, from the board of Welfare, and representatives from the Y. M. C. A., Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, and many Parent-Teacher associations were among the guests of honor.

Mrs. Richardson was unanimously endorsed as candidate for the office of director for Georgia of the General Federation of Women's clubs, following a motion from Mrs. George O'Bear that this endorsement be made unanimous which was done amid enthusiastic applause.

Matinees for Colored Children.

Announcement was made of the moving picture matinees for colored children which will be inaugurated Saturday, October 6, at the Paramount theater for colored people on Auburn avenue. These matinees will be featured every Saturday morning and the same care and attention characterizing selection of the pictures shown at the boys and girls' matinees at the Howard and the Alpha theaters will be given to the selection of these for colored children. Proper chaperonage will also be provided.

Mrs. Richardson also made announcement of a series of six moving pictures which will be shown in Atlanta during the winter and which are presented to the Atlanta Better Films committee by the National Board of Review for the purpose of stimulating appreciation of better pictures. Each of these pictures is of the finest artistic development and touches the highest mark in production. One is made by artists in Moscow. Admission will be by invitation only.

Atlanta Committee Is Model.

Mrs. Richardson also called attention to the fact that the work of the Atlanta Better Films committee in its efforts for better pictures is recognized throughout the country and stated that members of the Atlanta committee have been invited to participate in the creation of a similar plan of work in Boston.

Mrs. Porter Langston, who is chairman of the programs of the pictures shown at the theaters to boys and girls, gave an interesting account of the recent trip made to Stone Mountain under the supervision of the Better Films committee and announced an essay contest opened to children who will compete for a prize of $5.00 for the best essay on Stone Mountain.

Mrs. John Robert Klebold was appointed delegate to the forthcoming convention of the Georgia Federation of Woman's clubs to be held in Rome in October.

Mrs. Richardson announced that at a meeting of the executive board held before the meeting of the Central committee, Mrs. Norman Sharp was appointed chairman of publicity to succeed Mrs. McCord Roberts, who had resigned. Mrs. Sharp will also be editor of the Better Films Bulletin, the organ of the Better Films committee.

Tallulah Honorary Trustees Appointed To Active Posts

The honorary trustees of the Tallulah Falls Industrial society, with the recommendation of the executive board of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, were appointed active trustees at the last quarterly meeting of the executive board held Thursday at the Atlanta Woman's club, the list to include the former honorary members who are Georgia club women.

At the organization board meeting held directly after the adjournment of the executive board, Mrs. John K. Ottley, of Atlanta, was elected president of the board of trustees; Mrs. Jeff Davis, of Toccoa, is director; Mrs. S. B. C. Morgan, of Savannah, first vice president; Mrs. J. Lindsey Johnson, of Rome, second vice president; Mrs. Price Gilbert, of Atlanta, recording secretary; Mrs. T. T. Stevens, of Atlanta, treasurer.

New Features.

The only new feature of this board is that there is no distinction in name or authority between the two types of trustees. A long, earnest and useful discussion was held as to various plans for incorporation of the school. No action was taken, several plans being submitted. After discussion, all of these plans were referred to the entire board of trustees, who will bring some recommendation to the executive board of the Georgia federation in Rome.

This was probably the most important action of the day to come before the board.

Members of Board.

The board includes Mrs. J. E. Hayes, president Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, Montezuma; Mrs. John K. Ottley, president board, Atlanta; Mrs. T. T. Stevens, Atlanta; Mrs. Price Gilbert, Atlanta; Mrs. Bolling Jones, Atlanta; Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, Atlanta; Mrs. J. Sprole Lyons, Atlanta; Mrs. Rutherford Lipscomb, Atlanta; Mrs. George Forrester, Atlanta; Mrs. Charles Haden, Atlanta; Mrs. S. M. Inman, Atlanta; Mrs. A. O. Granger, Atlanta; Mrs. Howard H. McCall, Atlanta; Miss Rosa Woodberry, Atlanta; Mrs. C. K. Ayer, Atlanta; Mrs. Frank Lipscomb, Athens; Mrs. Sara Moss, Athens; Mrs. E. R. Hodgson, Athens; Mrs. A. P. Brantley, Blackshear; Mrs. Walter Lamar, Macon; Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, Madison; Mrs. J. Lindsay Johnson, Rome; Mrs. S. B. C. Morgan, Savannah; Mrs. John Heard Hunter, Savannah; Mrs. T. C. Jeffolds, Sylvester; Mrs. H. H. Tift, Tifton; Mrs. Jeff Davis director, Toccoa; Mrs. Inez Wilkins Jones, Waynesboro; Mrs. John Lester, Macon and Atlanta.

Twelve District Presidents.

The district presidents are Mrs. T. M. Purcell, Mrs. Robert A. Heinsohn, Mrs. D. C. Ketchum, Mrs. Rhodes Brown, Mrs. Albert Akers, Mrs. R. C. Johnson, Mrs. W. C. Martin, Mrs. Lena Felker Lewis, Mrs. Hurbert Yow, Mrs. E. R. Hines, Mrs. D. D. Smith and Mrs. C. H. Kittrell.

Mrs. W. W. Stark, of Commerce; Mrs. J. B. Bussey, of Cuthbert, and Mrs. Ira Farmer, of Thomson, were elected to represent the executive board on the nominating committee at the twenty-seventh annual convention to be held in Rome October 16 to 20 inclusive. Other members of the nominating committee will be elected from the 12 congressional districts, one representative from each district. The chairman of this committee will be elected at the Rome convention.

Mrs. Richardson Gives Welcome.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, president of the Atlanta Woman's club, brought greetings from the hostess organization, stressing the hospitality of the club toward every meeting of main and minor divisions of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. She stated that the slogan of the club was "Cooperation."

Mrs. J. Lindsey Jonnson, president of the Rome Woman's club, hostess chairman, extended greetings and an invitation to the clubwomen to attend the convention.

The following chairmen were named: Miss Alice Baxter, chairman of forestry, to succeed the late Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie; Mrs. H. H. McCall, chairman of natural resources; Mrs. W. F. Maynard, chairman of music; Mrs. McCord Roberts, Georgia magazine; Mrs. Walter Hodges, chairman of anti-narcotics; Mrs. J. B. Bussey, of Cuthbert, chairman of hospitals; Mrs. H. D. Russell, of Macon, chairman of Mercer Institute club, and Mrs. S. V. Sanford, of Athens, chairman of University of Georgia club institute.

Mrs. A. V. Sanford, chairman of program for the state convention, presented the official program to the executive board, which was accepted in its entirety.

Mrs. Albert Hill, recording secretary, read the minutes of the meeting, which were adopted.

Luncheon was served in the bouquet hall of the club to members of the board. Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, Sr., is chairman or the hospitality committee and acted as chairman of the luncheon. Mrs. Nichols Peterson, of Tifton, moved before adjournment that the Atlanta Woman's club be thanked for the hospitality extended throughout the day.

Free Kindergarten Meets Saturday.

The free kindergarten of healthf for children willl meet Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in room No. 2 in the chamber of commerce.

The school is under the direction of Robert Bryan Harrison and six teachers.

Its purpose is to teach children between the ages of 3 and 15 correct breathing, exercising, dancing and singing and correcting bad habits, such as biting finger nails, stooping and the like.

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN

When Mr. Myers of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, stepped into the drug store and asked his druggist for the best medicine he had in his store for woman's ills, is it any wonder he was handed a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Mrs. L. K. Myers in writing of it says: "I had been weak, run-down and had a pain in my left side for a long time, so I could not do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me in a short time so I was able to do all of my housework including washing and ironing, and now I feel fine all the time." As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for benefiting 98 women out of every 100 women who take it, it will pay every suffering woman to try it.—(Adv.)

Georgia Colleges Are Included In Gotham Education Exhibit

The Woman's Activities exhibit, which opened brilliantly in New York Monday night in the Commodore hotel, is one of the important events now going on in the metropolis and of distinct interest here because of the part being taken by the Southern Womans' Educational Alliance. Two Georgia colleges have important roles in this.

The Womans' Activities exhibit was opened by Mrs. Gifford Pinchot and the acting mayor of New York city.

Agnes Scott college is well represented in the educational exhibit. The exhibit, prepared by Miss Florence Markey, formerly executive secretary of the Agnes Scott Alumnae association, is full of interest. It consists of attractive posters, artistic book collections of pictures, annuals, alumnae magazines, etc. The exhibit is in charge of Agnes Scott alumnae hostesses and on Agnes Scott afternoon these hostesses will have charge of the alliance booth and will feature the college in all possible ways.

Wesleyan's Exhibit.

Wesleyan college has a prominent corner also in the exhibit.

Starting with a photograph of the first graduate, Mrs. Catherine Brewer Benson, and her diploma from the first chartered college to grant such in the world, the exhibition follows through Wesleyan's subsequent history with publications, old badges, pictures, catalogs, and papers, and includes photographs of the Macon Centennial pageant, in which Wesleyan took a prominent par.

The publications represented are: "The Wesleyan," the monthly magazine; "The Veterropt," the annual publication; "The Watchtower," the weekly newspaper; "The Jester," a burlesque newpsaper published once a year by the journalism department, which is distinguished for being the first collegiate journalism class to edit a city newspaper.

The conservatory of music will be represented by programs of the master artist's series of 1922-23: write-ups of concerts; and an autographed photo of Prof. Maera, head of the conservatory.

To some of the more recent alumnae an interesting part of the exhibit will be the portrait of Dr. W. F. Quillian.

As Wesleyan's share in this is being handled through the Wesleyan National Alumnae association, the material has been collected by Mrs. Julia K. McCain, alumnae secretary; Mrs. Sarah Carr Conley, who is now studying at Columbia university, and Mrs. Willie Snow Etheridge, a well-known feature writer, are hostesses.

One strikingly beautiful feature of the art exhibit by the alliance is the pottery and embroidery sent by Newcomb college, where training in highly professional art is combined with the academic work of unquestioned standing, and where alliance honors have been won by several southern students.

Pretty College Girls.

Pretty young college maids and matrons in cap and gown will assist the president of the Southern Woman's Educational Alliance, Dr. Orie Latham Hatcher, in the booth occupied by the alliance at the women's activities exhibit throughout this week.

As is well known the Southern Woman's Educational Alliance is a southern center for helping southern girls to find out the education they need individually and for helping them, when necessary to get it, and is a bridge between the girl and the right educational opportunity. It provides southern girls with educational and vocational guidance, and where necessary, scholarships, loans and means of self-help while studying.

The headquarters are in Richmond Va., and its executive board includes presidents and deans of leadnig southern colleges. Among the prominent southerners sponsoring its work in New York and preparing to organize a supporting branch there in November are: Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. George Gordon Battle, Colonel and Mrs. E. M. House, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. David Houston, Dr. W. E. Dold and Mr. and Mrs. J. Onett Singleton and others.

The Hostesses.

The hostesses will be Mrs. Morehouse, Miss Jessie Hersfall, Miss E Wilson, Miss E. Smith, Miss Bobbie Poster, Miss Beverly Anderson, Mrs. M. Doolittle, Miss Rachel Bell, Miss Lenora Caper, Mrs. Voorhees.

The alliance provides opportunities for southern girls to secure training in whatever field of work best suits tastes and talents and its wards are scattered through professional schools north and south, securing that training in art, music, business teaching, social work, medicine, law and other callings. All of its awards are honor awards as they are based on carefully investigated merit and one of the features of the exhibit will be the student work of honor scholarship holders in the best art schools of the country.

About the Alliance.

The alliance works in close cooperation with representative southern colleges and schools and through its invitation a number of them are providing alumnae hostesses to participate in the exhibit and interpret higher education for women in the south to the passerby. Southern colleges represented in the exhibit of the Southern Woman's Educational Alliance are Agnes Scott college, Atlanta; Hollins college, Hollins, Va.; Newcomb college, New Orleans; Randolph-Macon Women's college, Lynchburg, Va.; Sweet Briar college, Sweet Briar, Va.; Wesleyan college, Macon, Ga.; William and Mary college, Williamsburg, Va., and the Richmond School of Social Work and Public Health, Richmond, Va.

CHAPTER LXXXIX.

Happiness at Last.

"No, I don't mean that you'd go abroad alone," Larry told Gloria. "It's this way: Our paper has a correspondent in Paris, who has an assistant, and the assistant has got to come home. He's resigning, because he's inherited a business over here. So somebody has to take his place, and I'm going to do it. That is—well, I'm going if you'll go with me."

"You know how it is, Gloria," he went on, in such a hurry that his words tumbled over each other. "I've always loved you, but I just didn't dare tell you—you've known, anyway, though, haven't you? There were so many men around you, always; and I couldn't begin to do the things for you that they could. Even now I won't have an awful lot of money, but we could get along, and we'd have an awful lot of fun. What do you say?"

"Oh, I say 'yes!'" she exclaimed, her eyes full of happy tears. "I think I'd have done the proposing myself in another minute, Larry."

She realized thankfully that he did not know of the fortune that was hers. He was willing to face living on just his salary, if he could have her. She felt that she had never been so proud of him, and that nothing could ever make her happier than she was at that minute.

"But Larry, I'm perfectly useless," she told him. "I can't cook, or sew, or do anything that'suseful. You'll have to put up with a lot while I'm learning."

"I don't care. Nothing matters if I have you," he answered, bending down to kiss her.

A subdued cheer from the bell boys reached them, and Gloria laughed and blushed.

"We'll have to get married the first thing i the morning," Larry told her. "We sail at noon. I was lucky enough to get a stateroom that somebody gave up—being on the paper helped, of course. Will you have breakfast with me?"

"Oh, surely—and isn't it lucky that my things are all packed!" she exclaimed, slipping her arm through his as they sauntered across the lobby to the door. "Only—well, it isn't giving me much time to get ready for my own wedding, is it?"

"No, not much," he laughed. "Now I'll be here at nine; that too early? We'll have to go down and get the license, you know. And where shall we be married? They have a chapel at city hall, right near the license bureau; want to go there?"

She shook her head. "Not I. I want to go to the Little Church Around the Corner, please," she told him. "I'd like that better than anything else."

"All right—we'll go there," he promised her. "Want me to do anything for you tonight; send any telegrams, or anything like that?"

"No. Let's wait and do that tomorrow, when it's too late for anyone to interfere." She knew only too well what Virginia would say. She would protest against Gloria's marrying a poor man, when she might have had Frank Carver—quite overlooking her own marriage to Morton Phelps, who hadn't a penny, and has thrown her money away ever since their marriage."

"And you're sure you won't mind being poor with me?" Larry asked, looking rather worried. "Of course, I know that it's going to be hard for you to go without all the luxuries that your cousin has provided for you—Phelps told me about your allowance from her, and that it would stop if you married anyone she didn't like, and he told me, too, that she hoped you'd marry Carver—but I'll do all I can for you."

For a moment Gloria didn't understand. Then suddenly she realized what had happened. Morton Phelps, hoping that Larry would hesitate to marry her if he thought that she was poor, had deliberatley gone about making him think she had no money of her own. Of course it would have been to Phelp's intereest for her to marry a rich man, who might be able to do something for him.

For a moment Gloria was angry. Then she laughed softly, and laid her cheek against Larry's shoulder for a fleeting instant. She had intended not to tell Larry that she had money, and Morton Phelps had helped her to let him think that she hadn't.

"I'll come for you in the morning, then," Larry told her as he kissed her good night. "And by this time tomorrow you'll be my wife."

Tomorrow—Gloria's Wedding Day.

Health is Wealth

Health is one of the greatest things your family can possess. It brings happiness and success. But health must be safe-guarded by good wholesome foods that are prepared from the purest ingredients. This is especially true of bakings. If they are not properly raised, we all know that they are not easily digested. Many times when self-rising flour is used in place of good plain flour and dependable baking powder—the results are flat, soggy and heavy foods.

Don't take chances! Use a reliable brand of baking powder and plain flour. Then you will be sure of healthful bakings that are easily digested.

Remember, science has never found anything to take the place of the tried and tested method of using plain flour and good baking powder in preparing bakings. Millions of housewives now know by actual experience that many preparations that are claimed to take their place are worthless and dangerous to health. There is no comparison.

Calumet, the Economy Baking Powder, is known to be one sure and positive aid to successful bakings that are always pure, sweet and wholesome.

Jane Hedden Hat Pattern

No. 291.

Hat pattern No. 291 furnishes an extremely smart model for the woman who needs to wear extreme and exaggerated styles rather than conservative and regulation modes. Every woman owes it to herself and her friends and family to look her best. A hat more than any other one garment makes or mars the appearance. It should be so well adapted to the individual who wears it that you see her face, not her good hat. Model No. 291 given a good frame for the face of irregular features and profile. Its high front brim and enlongated side have balancing proportion in the use of a pointed trim of wide ribbon. The design is so worked out and the instructions so detailed and clearly stated that any woman who does plain sewing can successfully complete it.

Material Required.

One soft crown, 1-2 yard willow or buckram, 3 1-2 yards brace wire, 1 cap lining, 1 yard 36-inch material, 1 5-6 yards of 5-inch ribbon for No. 291.

HAT PATTERN ORDER.

This order will bring you pattern and working instructions for making hat illustrated above. Fill in name and address, enclose 25 cents in stamps, postal note or coins—address envelope, Hat Pattern Department Atlanta Constitution.

Prominent Club Woman Receives New Honor

Mrs. Norman Sharp, first vice president of Atlanta Woman's club, and prominent in social and club work in Atlanta, was elected secretary-editor of the Atlanta better films committee at a meeting Thursday afternoon. The new secretary-editor will have charge of all publicity of the better films committee in the six southeastern states, Florida, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Georgia, and automatically becomes editor-in-chief of The Bulletin, the periodical of the better films committee. Mrs. Sharp is a well-trained, enthusiastic club woman and a writer of considerable note. As chairman of the curb market committee of the Woman's club, the prime factor in organization and successful operation of the municipal curb market, Mrs. Sharp's thoroughness and capability was in evidence throughout. Success of the curb market in Atlanta was characterized recently by a member of the editorial staff of The Ladies' Home Journal as "the outstanding achievement of club women during the year."

Carnesville, Ga., September 29.—A wedding of interest throughout north Georgia was that of Miss Ida Oma Gaines, formerly of Atlanta, and William Hoyt Cox which was solemnized Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. T. L. Rutland, close relatives of the bride, in Carnesville. The Rev. T. L. Rutland, pastor of the Carnesville Methodist church, performed the ceremony.

The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The wide porch, where the ceremony was performed, was adorned with evergreens and here an improvised altar covered with ferns and goldenrods was placed.

Among the out-of-town guests present were the Rev. and Mrs. L. B. Linn, of Clarkesville, Ga., and A. H. Cox, of Greenville, S. C.

Mrs. W. H. Worthy Dies.

Carrollton, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Mrs. W. H. Worthy, 88, died at the home of her son, H. J. Worthy, Wedensay night. Mrs. Worthy was the widow of W. H. Worthy one of the leading merchants here for many years, and was the mother of Mrs. W. E. Johnson and Will and H. J. Worthy, prominent druggists of Carrollton.

Clionian Society Honors Pledges At Bessie Tift

Forsyth, Ga., September 27.—Following an annual custom, the old members of the Clionian society entertained the new pledges with a "kid" party Saturday night. All the old girls dressed as little boys and the new, as little girls. The affair proved a success for those entertained and those entertaining. Miss Mary Frances Joiner, of Fort Valley, was the winner of the contest for the most popular new girl. The old president, Miss Lois Williams, who was present, made a talk which was a pleasure to all.

Miss Laura Lee Patrick, secretary of the W. M. U. of Georgia, spoke at the college Sunday evening Vesper services.

The annual Y. W. A. reception was given for the new Bessie Tift girls Friday evening in Upshaw parlors, when an interesting program was presented. Miss Betty Coker, assisted by Misses Kathleen Estes, Sarah Smiley, Willamina Lufburrow and Louise Bennett, gave an original interpretation of "The Pigtail Quartet." Misses Mary Lee Ayers and Edna West gave some entertaining selections. Miss Ayers delighted her audience by some readings in Chinese, and vocal solos by Misses Annie Barton and Josephine Clark were greatly enjoyed. "Proms" were important features of the evening and in this way the old and new girls became acquainted.

Five B. Y. P. U.'s were organized Sunday night with Misses Frank Mason, Leonora Jordan, Ouida Geiger, Verna Moody and Annie Mae Walraven as presidents of the respective unions.

The college Sunday school was organized Sunday with W. G. Wellborn as superintendent; Prof. Polhill as assistant superintendent, and Miss Audie Crowe as secretary. Excellent teachers were provided for each class.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton McManus and George Strickland, of Concord, were visitors in the college Sunday. Mrs. McManus was formerly Miss Julia Strickland, a Bessie Tift student.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Martin and son, Joel, of Fort Valley, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Wellborn Sunday. They were accompanied by Mrs DuPree who visited her daughters, Lois and Dorothy.

Miss Elizabeth Nicholson, of Atlanta, motored to Forsyth Sunday afternoon and visited Miss Mildred Garner.

Mrs. Charles Williams, of Macon, accompanied by her son, was a visitor Sunday.

Juliette Revival Ends.

Juliette, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—A very successful revival meeting closed at the Juliette Methodist church Wednesay after being in progress about ten days. The meeting was in charge of the pastor, Rev. J. E. Cline, of Flovilla, and Rev. T. M. Sullivan, pastor of the Forsyth Baptist church.

Plow Under Cotton.

Juliette, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—The campaign being carried on in Monroe county to have farmers turn under or destroy cotton stalks before frost is bearing results. Many of the farmers in the county are starting their plows, and others will do so as soon as they finish picking cotton.

Iowa Music Lovers Offer Thought to Georgia Solons

BY MARTHA GOODE ANDERSON

By way of interesting contrast with the attitude of the Georgia legislature which seems to consider our wonderful opera season of so little cultural value that it does not hesitate to increase difficulties in continuing it by adding a tax of $2,500, the action recently reported from the Des Moines (Iowa) City Federation of Women's clubs is exceedingly refreshing and certainly very inspiring.

"Through the Citizenship committee of the Des Moines federation," according to the Des Moines Register "150 music-loving students from local studios, colleges and schools, will be privileged to enjoy the nine remarkable concerts of the Ogden concert series this season as a part of the program of building a higher type of citizenship through the refining and cultural influence of good music.

"Headed by Mrs. E. H. Hoyt as chairman, this committee has arranged with Mr. Ogden to set aside 150 seats in Hoyt Sherman theater which will be available to students only, at the remarkably low cost of $4.40 for the entire series of nine concerts," The Register adds. "This is undoubtedly a record which is unparaleled in any city of the country and, incidentally, it is an achievement which will be counted locally as a milestone in developing musical appreciation in Des Moines.

"Through his many years of experience, and appreciating the need of greater familiarity with the world's best music on the part of the music student, Mr. Ogden courteously and generously met this request of the committee and promises his fullest co-operation in the matter."

Builds Citizenship.

It is to be noted with considerable pleasure on our part that "a part of the program of building a higher type of citizenship through the refining and cultural influence of good music" is accepted as a matter of course in what we are accustomed to call the "unlettered west," in which portion of our country lies the fair and ambitious city of Des Moines.

It is also interesting to note that Atlanta, the empire city in this fair southland is the first city south of the Mason and Dixon line which has endeavored to create a musical center by bringing to us the master musicians of our day who will give for us here in our own familiar surroundings the marvelous beauties and riches of the musical masters of gone-by days.

Surely it is in such fashion that will live on and on the culture which lifts a people out of the dull and ordinary routine of life which is at its best sordid and somewhat only a little removed from that of the lower animals.

A Thought For Atlanta.

Music is one of the channels through which we rise. Perhaps Atlanta's City Federation of Women's clubs will be moved to follow the example of the Des Moines federation and place within reach of ambitious and music-loving students attendance at our opera season, now often, because of financial reasons, practically out of the reach of those longing most earnestly for it.

The matter may well be given thought.

Mrs. Striplin Calls Meeting.

Mrs. R. M. Striplin, chairman of the citizenship department of the Atlanta Woman's club has called a meeting of the department for Friday morning, September 28 at 10:30 o'clock and every one interested in civics, citizenship training and Americanization is urged to be present.

This will be the first meeting of the fall season and plans for the year's work will be made and each division will begin its activities. This department was especially active during the last club season.

PROGRAM MAPPED AT FARM PARLEY

Tifton, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Senator Walter F. George was one of the speakers at the regional farm conference held at the coastal plain experiment station today, at which a farm program for nine counties was mapped out. Sixty-four county agents and other prominent citizens representing nine counties, together with the delegation from the state college of agriculture, participated in the conference. Counties represented were: Tift, Turner, Dooly, Jeff Davis, Telfair, Thomas, Crisp, Irwin, and Ben Hill.

Each county agent was requested to bring one or two representative citizens with him. Among the visitors were two ladies, Mrs. J. C. Fussell and Mrs. H. M. Warren, of Fitzgerald; representatives of the Tifton Board of Trade and the Lions' and Kiwanis' clubs were present. The state college of agriculture was represented by J. Phil Campbell, state agent; J. G. Oliver, assistant state agent; E. C. Westbrook, farm management and tobacco; W. C. McCoy, poultry; W. C. Collins, soil; G. W. Firor, horticulture, fruit and truck. Mr. Oliver presided and explained that the object of the conference was to exchange ideas among the men who are in the midst of this practical work and by the coordination of these ideas arrive at some definite plan that the farmer, business and professional men, bankers and others will be willing to get behind and put across.

Definite Program.

This will give a goal to work forward to, instead of drifting from one idea to another, he said.

Such a plan as proposed will require a number of years to work out. Mr. Westbrook showed that Georgia is sending outside the state $200,000,000 a year for food and feed that can be profitably raised within its borders. The first objective of the plan is to keep this money at home. County agents were questioned in turn as to the amount of food crops, cotton and truck produced in their counties, attitude toward using calcium arsenate, the labor situation, outlook for another year and what farm plan, if any, had been adopted. Answers to these questions were used as a basis for discussion and from this a definite farm program for the nine counties, all with practically the same soil and same general conditions, was mapped out.

The representatives will go home to put the program into effect in their counties. Morning and afternoon sessions were held. Senator George discussed the matter from the farmers' standpoint in an informing manner.

Farm Plan Given.

The farm plan adopted for the Tifton region is as follows: One family, two mule unit, live stock, four cows, two sows, fifty hens; maintenance crop, twenty acres of corn, velvet beans and peanuts, two acres of wheat followed by peas or soy beans; for hay, fifteen acres of oats, followed by hay on ten acres and Spanish peanuts on five; grazing crops, five acres of oats and rye, two acres of cattail millet, ten acres of permanent pasture of lespideza, carpet grass, and Dallis grass; two acres in a good year-round garden and some orchard; cash crops, five acres of cotton, five acres of peanuts, (after oats), two to five acres in tobacco, sweet potatoes, watermelons or other truck crops.

Need Trained Men.

It was recommended that oats and vetch be sown after cotton in the fall as a cover crop. A method of building soils so that a higher yield per acre can be obtained was pointed out as one of the greatest needs of the Tifton region. Some special crops such as pineapple pears, pecans, peaches, were recommended only for the farmers who are in position to put these crops in and handle them successfully.

Recognizing the need of trained men as agricultural leaders, representatives from each county present pledged that next year five young men from each county shall be kept as students in the state college of agriculture.

Careless Autoists Flayed in Talk By Walt Holcomb

Declaring that flagrant violations of traffic regulations in Atlanta form the greatest menace to progress of the city and characterizing "the careless citizen as a murderer," Rev. Walt Holcomb, noted southern evangelist, Thursday night discussed safety plans before an audience which taxed the Wesley Memorial church to capacity.

In the outset the evangelist told his audience that "a text is a minister's self-starter," and that he had selected "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" as a text, and would discuss Atlanta's traffic problem and reckless automobile driving from the viewpoint of Christianity.

Prominent city officials, members of Atlanta safety council and other citizens interested in efforts of the safety council to enforce traffic laws of the city, attended the service.

The evangelist severely flayed the reckless automobile driver and the careless autoist who fails to heed parking restrictions. He praised the "splendid efforts of Atlanta's safety council" and bespoke for their plans the "earnest and careful consideration of both city officials and other citizens."

"If we could dig up the broken bones of avoidable auto accidents," Evangelist Holcomb said, "we could station a grim, hollow-eyed, bony-fingered skeleton at every street intersection and highway crossing, as a frightful warning against carelessness."

"When a man begins to think of the safety of his fellow man," he continued, "he places around himself the surest safeguards. But we will never play safe until we place the proper value upon life. . . . The monumental crime of the age is the carelessness that puts out the light in the Temple of Life. . . . The philosophy of safety is constant, continuous and continual thought. You cannot be off your guard a single minute."

At a luncheon of the safety council Wednesday Mr. Holcomb was made an honorary member in recognition of work in safety plans in many cities and by bringing forcibly before his audiences the duty of safeguarding life. The evangelist also was chosen to represent the Atlanta council at the annual convention of the National Congress of Safety in Buffalo, N. Y., next week.

JULIETTE INDORSES DEVELOPMENT MOVE

Juliette, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Representative business men, bankers and other citizens, Forsyth Chamber of Commerce and other organizations of this county have expressed indorsement of the middle Georgia development plan of the Macon Chamber of Commerce to develop idle and waste lands within 100 miles of Macon by attracting new farmers to this section.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS CONCLUDE SESSIONS

Carrollton, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Bethel Primitive Baptist association closed a three-day session Thursday at Tallapoosa church, four miles southwest of Carrollton. Elder W. P. Merrell, presiding as moderator, and Newman E. Denney was clerk. It was the largest and best attended session this association has held in years. Prominent ministers from Atlanta, Alabama and Tennessee attended.

PREACHER SUICIDE IN SPARTA COURT

Sparta, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Hancock superior court was thrown into a state of panic last night when Rev. J. R. Brown, 35, a Baptist minister and student at Mercer university, walked into the grand jury room and blew his brains out with a pistol. His wife was suing him for divorce and the case was being heard by Judge Parks at a night session of the court.

Judge Parks had just decreed that Brown's wife was entitled to a divorce and should receive alimony in the sum of fifty dollars per month and that Brown should be placed under bond as good faith in the performance of the court's order. After the sentence Brown turned and asked Judge Parks if he would not suspend the bond so that he could go on preaching and make money to pay the alimony.

Judge Parks told him to let his lawyer do his talking. Brown turned and slapping Sheriff Jackson on the back, walked into the grand jury room where his suit case was located and before anyone thought seriously of his absence he had removed a pistol from the suitcase and ended his life.

For the past year Mrs. Brown and several small children have lived in Sparta, while Rev. Brown attended Mercer university in Macon and also preached at several country churches. His wife claimed that he had deserted her and had left the children and herself without support.

After Fierce Fight With Raging Wind Ship Makes Port

Savannah, Ga., September 27.—(Special.—While storm flags flew and a hurricane was expected any hour to break along the coast to the south, the South American, a big freighter from Santa Rosa Cuba, bound for New York with a heavy cargo of copper ore, flung herself into port this afternoon, with the wash of the waters all but tipping her over. If the wind had risen higher for a few minutes at any time she was making the last thirty miles into port, she would have overturned. It was said by old seamen that they had never seen a vessel in just such shape for so long a time, and safe.

Proud of Baseball Carrying Signature Of Nation's Leader

Savannah, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Jack O'Neill seven-year-old son of J. J. O'Neill of Whitaker street, Savannah, today received a baseball from the president, with "Calvin Coolidge" written in the chief executive's own hand across the sphere's white surface. With his father he recently passed through Washington, called on the president, and asked for the favor,—the ball being left to be sent after the signature had been set on it. "We went to see the president," said Jack, "but he was busy talking to the Red Cross, so we didn't bother him, but just left the ball with his secretary and asked him to ask the president to sign it when he had time. I got it today and sure was surprised to get it so quickly. I wasn't surprised that he wrote his name on it."

LITTLE RIVER BRIDGE NOT TO BE BUILT NOW

Quitman, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—The county commissioners of Brooks county and of Cook county, in joint session here Wednesday, failed to reach a decision in regard to the proposed construction of a steel reinforced concrete bridge over Little river, the dividing line between the two counties.

District Highway Engineer Furlow, of Tifton, was present and submitted blue print plans and specifications of a main bridge 777 feet long. The estimated cost is $75,000, and the law of county line bridges provides that each county is to contribute to the expense of building in proportion to the value of taxable property shown by the digest. On this basis, Cook's share will be about $22,500 and Brooks' share will be about $52,500. This arrangement of cost and the character of the bridge is satisfactory to both counties, but the Cook commissioners said they had no money available and could not agree to the proposition at present.

It is possible that the present river bridge will be condemned and under the law would create what is known as a "casual deficiency" and would make it obligatory upon the two counties to repair or rebuild at once.

MANY CASES FACING COURT OF HOUSTON

Perry, Ga., September 27—(Special.)—Houston superior court will convene next Monday, October 1, with 53 civil cases on the calendar for trial Monday and Tuesday. Forty-five criminal warrants are to be acted on by the grand jury, subpoenas having been issued and served by the sheriff for three days next week. Among these criminal warrants are four for murder, three for arson, and the others for various crimes.

Among the civil cases is an appeal to the superior court from the Industrial Commission of Georgia administering the Georgia workmen's act in the case of Walter Hawthorne, claimant, vs. the Jeffreys-McElrath company, employer, and Georgia Casualty company, insurer.

The court will be in session two weeks as there are a large number of criminal cases that were carried over from spring term to this term.

GEORGIAN IS KILLED BY FALL IN TEXAS

Carrollton, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—News has ben received by Dr. T. W. Reeves of the accidental death of his brother, Bruce Reeves, which occurred Wednesday at Rotan, Texas. Mr. Reeves was connected with the R. D. Cole Manufacturing company, of Newnan, as construction foreman, and was superintending the erection of a water tank when he fell from a scaffolding. He was instantly killed. His body will larrive in Carrollton Friday at noon for burial. Funeral services will be conducted from the residence of T. W. Reeves.

Plan of Harris For Cotton Census O.K. With Hoover

Washington, September 27.—The recent declaration of Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, that he would introduce at the next congress a bill requiring an annual census and survey of spinnable and unspinnable cotton on hand throughout the world has brought to the senator a letter from Secretary of Commerce Hoover expressing "the hope that something can be done in the next session to improve the whole situation" with regard to the gathering of statistics on cotton on hand each year.

The experience of the department had demonstrated, Mr. Hoover stated, that while the informatoin would be of "great advantage to cotton producers," it had been impossible to gather it "without authority to require the information" for the reason "that the warehouses and owners do not in many cases know their own grading."

"Little Five Points" Will Be in Charge Of Traffic Officer

Traffic at "Little Five Points," in Inman Park, will be under supervision of a traffic officer Police Chief James L. Beavers announced Thursday following request of a delegation from the ninth ward composed of Andy R. King, L. C. Jennings, G. B. Thompson and John M. Miller.

This committee pointed out to Chief Beavers that traffic was congested in this busy center all during the day, and that there are approximately 25 retail stores located there. Also one of the largest branch postoffices in Atlanta is under construction.

In addition there are two schools close to this point—the Moreland avenue grammar schol and the William A. Bass junior high school.

School Tax Added.

Milltown, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—The county comissioners fixed the tax rate for Lanier for this year a few days ago at the same rate it was last year, 15 mills for county purposes, and 5 mills for school purposes, but citizens protested, and an aditional two and a half mills was added for school purposes. With this, the county board of education claims it can give six months' schooling to county school children and nine months to Milltown students.

YELLOW AND RED TOP TAXI STRIKE REPORTED

A strike of Yellow and Red Top taxicab drivers was said by H. H. Jamipson, secretary of the Cab Drivers' association, to be in progress Thursday night. R. D. Dickerson, general manager of the Yellow Cab company for Atlanta district, denied that a strike was in progress.

"Sixty of the 70 drivers quit work at 5:30 o'clock Thursday evening and will not go back to work until a weekly guarantee has been restored and a ten-hour day inaugurated for drivers," Jaminson told The Constitution.

"Six or eight dissatisfied drivers quit this afternoon and their places will be filled today out of a list of applicants we have on hand," Dickerson told The Constitution.

"Not more than eight or ten cabs of the company's 84 are running in Atlanta tonight," Jaminson said.

"Every cab we have is running or is ready to respond to any call," Dickerson said.

The men who quit, Jaminson said, demand that new drivers be guaranteed $17.50 weekly and that after three months' service they be guaranteed $20 weekly. These guarantees were formerly in effect but have been abolished recently. Day drivers now work 11 hours and night drivers 13 hours, Jaminson said and the men who quit want a uniform 10-hour day.

Last year, said Jaminson, cab drivers averaged from $35 to $45 a week for night work and $20 to $25 a week for day work. Because of increased competition in Atlanta, they now average little more than $20 a week for night work and as low as $10 a week for day work.

Dickerson said that the guarantees were abolished as a business necessity and that no changes in present compensation or working conditions are contemplated.

SAVANAH BABY DIES FROM EATING POISON

Savannah, Ga., September 27.—Ernest F. Moore, Jr., aged one year, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moore, died at 1 o'clock this morning from poison. It is believed the child ate rat poison or heads of matches yesterday.

MRS. JOHN FELMING DIES IN BAINBRIDGE

Bainbridge, Ga., September 27.—(Special.)—Mrs. John Fleming died tonight at her home on Shotwell street after an illness of two months. Mrs. Fleming before her marriage was Miss Ben Frances Jackson. She was the musical directress in the Bainbridge high school and after the close of school last term she left with her mother, Mrs. Estelle Bruton Jackson, and young son, John, for Chicago, where she was to study music. Soon after her arrival there Mrs. Fleming became ill and her condition had not improved since that time. Her son, mother, and a brother, Dr. Wright Jackson, survive.

COLON POISONING DESTROYS HEALTH

It is a wise man who understands his colon and keeps it in perfect working order. Health, happiness, vigor and long life are the gifts which an active colon can give you—and a lazy colon can take away.

Your colon is the last five feet of your digestive canal. It is your sewerage system; your garbage can, so to speak. Keep it clean and you are well and happy; let it stagnate and it will distill the poisons of decay, fermentation (gas) and putrefaction into your blood, poisoning your brain and nerves so that you are restless, irritable and blue; poisoning your heart so that you are weak, listless and lazy; poisoning your lungs so that your breath is heavy or foul; poisoning your stomach and digestive organs so that you are bloated, belching and uncomfortable with gas pains; poisoning your blood so that your skin looks yellow, sallow and unhealthy; poisoning every part and organ of your body, through your blood, making you look and feel old and ugly long before your time; making your joints and your back stiff, your eyes dull and your brain sluggish.

By the perfect law of Nature, your colon should empty itself three times a day—within an hour after eating. Does your colon work that well? If not, it has lost its tone. What do we mean by tone? Your colon is a hollow muscle. Its walls are made up of long, muscle fibres or muscle cells which, by their contraction, empty the colon just as you would squeeze a rubber hose pipe. These muscle fibres should contract three times a day—within an hour after each meal. If they do not contract, they have lost their tone—their power to contract.

But, there is a practically perfect remedy for lazy, flabby colons. This remedy quickly restores the tone, is absolutely harmless and decidedly pleasant to take. Clip this article and take it to your druggist. Tell him to give you a bottle of that new preparation, called Colotone—the colon tonic. It will cost you one dollar if you are pleased with it, nothing if you are not pleased with it, for every druggist has been instructed to refund the price and ask no questions if his customer is not thoroughly satisfied.

But you will be delighted with Colotone for it will make you feel like a different person. Your eyes will sparkle with vitality and alertness; your brain will be clear and active; your complexion will be fresh and transparent, reflecting the purity of your blood; your digestion will be thorough and your appetite keen, for your food will taste delightful and will agree with you; you will sleep and awake refreshed; your system will be full of vim and vigor; you will feel younger, stronger, vigorous—you will enjoy the pleasure of living.

Get started on Colotone today. Nearly every person over twenty-five or thirty years of age, and many younger, need Colotone more or less. You will be simply delighted with it. Colotone cannot possibly do you any harm—it can only do you good. Try it on our guarantee. It will help you live long, well and happily.—(adv.)

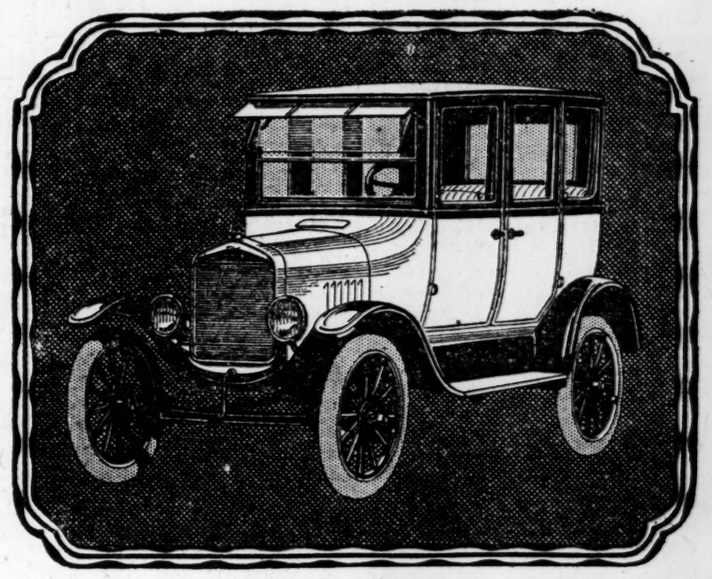
THE UNIVERSAL CAR



New Sedan

Changes featured in the new Ford Sedan make it a better looking, roomier car.

A higher radiator with a trim apron at its base lends dignity befitting a closed car. The higher hood and enlarged cowl curving gracefully to the dash give a stylish sweep to its body lines, and afford additional leg room for occupants of the front seat.

All body fittings—window regulators, door grips, door latch levers, door lock, dome light—are finished in nickel. The upholstery carries a fine dark line on a soft brown background that does not easily show dust or dirt. Silk window curtains to harmonize for the three rear windows enhance the style of the car and add to the comfort of its passengers. See the other new Ford body styles at your nearest dealer's showroom.

Dancers in the Dark

By Dorothy Speare.

Next Week: "No. 87."
By Harrington Hext.

"I—well, I can't locate Crawf and Dum-Dum," he said. "They're seniors, you know; I don't know them very well; and everyone's dancing in the dark better than any other way," out. Wigs and Dave don't seem to have gotten there yet—"

"Then we'll come in—I can see in the dark ebtter than any other way," and one by one the three climbed from the car.

As they entered the hall, Joy caught her breath. Never before had she seen such a spectacle. Three wide rooms were given up to dancing—the orchestra playing in the hall—sole illumniation, the dim one that filtered from the hall into two of the rooms, and as for the third, it remained in blackness relieved only by ghostly dresses clasped to white shirtfronts. The three stared from the doorway for a moment of silent fascination.

It was like some hazy, voluptuous dream—feverish music, quickening the throbbing of desire—the little sigh of figures interlocked, moving in time to the throb, in the dripping black velvet of the dark. It was something one might have imagined in the days of Nebuchadnezzar.

"Barbaric," Joy murmured as she caught Jim's eye and knew she was flushing—flushing under the music, which quickened the uneven pulse of memory.

"No—not barbaric," said Jim. "Barbarians are—more direct." He turned to Jerry. "Do you see them yet?" She shook her head, eyes straining after the dancers. "That freshman had no initiative. He ought to have—" He strode over to the orchestra, spoke to the boy at the piano. A few more bars, and the music stopped, the pianist tapping on the drum for quiet.

"I am asked to announce," he said shrilly, "that Mr. Barnes and Mr. Harris are wanted in the hall."

The music took up its beat, and the dancers in the dark, who had barely stopped, began again.

Soon through an opening into the hall charged two lads with question on their wide young faces. Jerry stepped forward. "We want to know right now where Sal Saunders is," she demanded.

"Did—didn't she get back?" Crawf asked. "You aren't stringing us, Jerry? Trying to get a rise?"

"Nix!" Jerry snarled. "Where did you leave her?"

"I—I—well, we went down to the Toast and Jam and I suppose we did get pretty fuzzy. You know Sal never can hold it. Pretty soon she was so blotto she was making eyes at a couple of old boys in the corner. The old boys got fresh and we were feeling good and the head waiter requested our departure. Got out to the car and the old boys' was next. Of course Dum-Dum cculdn't start it."

"The old boys' car?"

"Nope; ours. The old boys stayed in their car and watched the fun. We got under our car. Then all of a sudden we heard some brakes grinding a tune, and Sal yelling she'd never get back to town with us so she was going with them. I rolled out from under and saw the tail-lights of the old boys' car spinning away."

"Let me get this straight," said Jim. "You take a girl down to a road house, get her drunk, and then let her sail off with two strange men."

"What else could we do? We couldn't get a taxi and follow them up—it was no free garage."

Jim squared off, looking at them in unhurried, but imperative fashion. "Have you two got your car here? Well, get your evening wraps and come along with us while we use it. We're going to the Toast and Jam—to see if the people there know anything more."

The two boys vanished through the opening.

"They're still dancing in the dark," said Joy. "I never saw anything like it— whole dances in the dark! Do they keep it that way all evening?"

"Oh, no," Jerry explained. "They turn 'em on after awhile. It gives you a new sensation, anyway!"

The "Toast and Jam" proved to be a large, rambling white farmhouse, nestled on a hill, with a dense thicket of automobiles flanking the barn.

A colored orchestra and a pie-bald mass of dancers, exercise of contact whipping their blood higher and higher, the heat from the low-studded room growing with motion, so that they had to cling but stickily; but they clung.

An assortment of all ages, having a preponderance of older men with more or less younger women whose general get-ups were equivocal.

Sal did not turn up. Days thickened into weeks, with a detective bringing steady reports of investigation along a blank wall. Something that he had said on undertaking the case quivered in Joy's memory.

* * * * *

It was after the Christmas holidays that Pa Graham announced a new plan.

"You are working too steadily," he said. "You must go to New York and rest. I want you to sing for 'my baby.'"

He mentioned a name that was a household word for glory of song, a name that shone high and clear in the eminence where only the truly great stars remain, while others tremble for a day and then are gone.

"Sing—for—her!" Joy gasped. "Oh, Pa, I couldn't—not yet!"

"Little Joy—you will find as you go on, that the greatest ones will always be the easiest and kindest before whom to sing. I shall write her a letter and she will send you word at the Belmont when to come."

Jerry announced that she was going also.

"We can get Felicie, too," she said; "It's about time she went over to see Greg again."

Joy wrote her father for money for the trip and his answering check and letter came when the three girls were all in Jerry's room. Joy read the letter with half her attention on Felicie's bewitchingness when suddenly a name on the page caught her attention. She read the paragraph again:

"I hope while you are in New York that you will see your cousin Mrs. Eustace Drew, who was Mabel Lancaster. The Lancasters of whom you may have heard me speak; they were your mother's cousins once removed, and we have not kept up the relationship as she would have wished. I have written Mabel that you are coming, and she will undoubtedly call on you at the Belmont."

Mabel Lancaster! She who had come into Charlette's for her trousseau, with her brother, Phil Lancaster—of whom Jerry still thought with unquenchable flame. Her first impulse was to show Jerry the letter. Then she held herself back. What if cousin Mabel would forget to call upon her—what if she wasn't the same one, after all—Joy had forgotten the married name Jerry had given. So she tore the letter into tiny bits.

* * * * *

In New York, Joy sang for Pa Graham's "baby." The latter became quiet, judicial. "Pa Graham is right. The greatest of teachers are not always right—when the pupil has beauty which dazzles and deafens the beholder—but Pa is right with you. You have everything, everything and to spare, in equipment! Now it is the question of the years of preparation. Many young girls start out as you, with high hopes and encouragement. Many do not finish—of their own fault and choosing. Are you of a steadfast mind?"

"I will let nothing come in my way," said Joy breathlessly, "not even love—"

"That is the thing that may end all. . . . And perhaps you may be glad that all is over, if you love greatly." She looked down at the gorgeous rings on her fingers, and there was a little silence before she continued. "But most loves are not the great loves of which we sing and act; they are not the blazing altar fires of which we dream; love comes down to a hearth fire, after marriage. And we who sing are not content with heatr hfires. Remember that always, little one; we who sing are not content with hearth fires."

Joy returned to their hotel to find Jerry was sitting by the window, looking out into the darkness; a desolate Jerry with her hair pulled back into a brush, leaving her white face without shading.

"New York's getting under my skin," she said. "It spells Phil Lancaster to me, and a lot of other things that do me no good to think about; I've got to get out of here."

Joy put down her music roll before coming nearer, and as Jerry's eyes fell on it, she jumped up. "I'm a selfish fool! Tell me all about it—quick!"

Joy had nearly finished her thrilling story when Jerry interrupted her. "Here's a note they pushed under the door. I forgot to give it to you before."

It was a little hotel envelope containing the information that Mrs. Eustace Drew had called and would call again at six-thirty. Joy looked at her watch wildly. It was that now.

Joy went down to the lobby and found cousin Mabel a pretty woman in her late twenties, dainty and luxurious-looking in her sables.

"I have been trying to get you for so long, my dear," she said after they had exchanged amenities. "Is it too late for you to run up to dine informally with us tonight? My big brother will be there, and my husband and one or two others."

Joy stood with opened mouth. Mabel's big brother—

"I didn't know I had more cousins that I hadn't heard about," she said heavily.

"Oh, yes, Phil! Getting to be a more hard-and-fast bachelor every year. "It's even difficult to get him to dine with us, so you really must come tonight!"

Felicie was dining out that night, so it was agreed that Joy should bring Jerry to Cousin Mabel.

Joy went slowly back to the room where Jerry stared out of the window. She was overwhelmed by misgivings. It did not seem possible that a love could have endured so long upon so little!

And how could Jerry hold her own in the house of Mabel Lancaster Drew? What would Mabel think, when she saw Jerry—But Joy put away that thought.

What should she tell Jerry? It was hard not to tell her the incredible truth: it was the fair, square way that Jerry would have taken. But it might be better for Jerry to be unprepared.

Mabel's car called for them and set them down in front of a large red sandstone house just off Fifth avenue in the Fifties, which brought a whistle from Jerry: "Say, Joy—what are you getting us into? The nearest I've been to this sort of stuff is the movies!"

It did not add to their composure to have a butler admit them, to be elevatored to one floor to take off their wraps and elevatored to another floor to meet Mabel. They were ushered into the drawing-room candlelight, which was the only illumination affected.

Mabel came forward to greet them. Joy could not know, as the East-Side gamin answered her cousin's greeting, that poor little Jerry had assumed the atmosphere of the successful designer at Charlette's conferring with a desirable patron.

Then Joy met Phil. Weary blue eyes that settled on her without interest; a dark, beautiful face with hard lines carving manliness into it and softer marks etching bitternesses around the eyes and mouth; a man who, even Joy could sense, had been too inquisitive of life and found nothing worthy of his young curiosity.

She fell aside and looked back at Jerry. Jerry was never pretty; she could not sink to that level; tonight she was at the height of her fascination.

No one could wear bobbed hair quite like Jerry; it fluffed around her face, adding to the shimmering lights of expression; those lights that always seemed dancing to the surface, yet which by not being transmuted into speech and action, lent her subtlety, which is the essence of charm.

She came through to them, stately, gracious, with always that moonshine of charm flickering in her face.

"You look very much like someone I met a long time ago," he said

"A very long time ago?" murmured Jerry.

"Oh, very. At least four years—which means it was war times, and those times seem hundreds of years behind us now."

"There you go. Old Crow's-feet!" Mabel was hanging on his arm and smiling up at him. "These war heroes think everyone forgets pretty quickly, but we don't, do we?"

"War hero!" Joy cried. Jerry said nothing with fierce intensity of question.

"Why, yes," said Mabel. "Stop nudging me, Phil, and I will if I want to!—He was over for a long time, and brought back millions of those little citation ribbons which he gave me with instructions to bury—stop, Phil!"

At dinner Joy watched Phil Lancaster, who kept his eyes fixed on Jerry across the table.

"Is—is the resemblance so very striking?" she probed gently.

"Not so very, after the first look." He took his eyes away from Jerry with a jolt and landed them on Joy for one perfunctory second. "Your friend is quite a different type." His eyes found Jerry again; and Jerry's thick lashes quivered.

He drew his eyes back to Joy. "No; she's a Bryn Mawr girl, one of Mabel's proteges. Mabel's awfully keen on younger girls."

"You don't like 'younger girls,' do you?" His tone had been descriptive. "I think you ought to tell me why."

"To tell you why—would not make dinner conversation. But a young girl flaunting her conscious beauty and youth does not interest me, any more than I would give other than a passing look to a billboard."

"And how about older women?" she asked.

"Magnolia."

(Coming to Atlanta.)

There is an interesting story back of the approaching appearance of Leo Carrillo at the Atlanta theater on Monday night, October 1, for an engagement of three nights and Wednesday matinee in Booth Tarkington's comedy, "Magnolia." Mr. Tarkington had written the play after much study and research. The scenes are laid in and near Natchez, Miss., in the forties. Several of the leading producers bid for it, but Mr. Tarkington said he was going to hold on to it until he found the right actor to play the leading role. One day he went to see "Lombardi, Ltd.," at English's opera house in Indianapolis. For the first time he saw Leo Carrillo and in him found the man that he had been looking for. After the performance he called on him in his dressing room and the next day they had luncheon together and talked over "Magnolia." Then and there Carrillo was selected to play Tom Rumford in "Magnolia." In the course of time the firm of Alfred E. Aarons, Inc., was formed to produce this play and later others. Mr. Aarons has long been the general manager for A. L. Erlanger. Seats for the local engagement are selling rapidly. The box office is open daily from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

(At Forsyth.)

Atlanta surrendered Thursday night to the forces of Walsh and Ellis—these forces being included in their act of supreme vaudevil'e which they offer as the headliner at the Forsyth theatre for the last part of the week.

Never has an offering of a vaudeville team been accorded more genuine arobation in Atlanta and never, perhaps, has a team given an Atlanta audience more cause for its applause as was presented in the racing, breezy turn of songs and dances and patter.

The girl—Miss Marie Walsh—is a dancer who put every inch of herself into her efforts. Every bit of her sparkling personality is reflected in her novel steps and in addition she is very pretty and very graceful.

Then there is the act of Harry Ames and company in "Shoe Echoes" that is in itself a miniature musical comedy, possessing the artistry that only talented performers can insure. It is primarily a dancing act, but it contains some songs that are highly pleasing and there are two girls that are unusually pretty and are good dancers.

Margaret Ford had Monday's audiences guessing whether she really was a girl or a very clever female impersonator, because of the constant changing in her voice from a deep base to the high falsetto.

Booth and Nina in a "Twentieth Century Novelty" have a good cycling act, and Nina is clever on the banjo. Bob, Bobbie and Bob—"Two Tramps and a Dog"—are jugglers of no mean ability, including the dog.

Loew Vaudeville.

(At Loew's Grand.)

Atlanta people are evincing wide interest in the exhibition of thought transference at Loew's Grand theater given by Leona LaMar, "The Girl With a Thousand Eyes."

Miss LaMar is amazing thousands with her work, which has been pronounced as astonishing. She is puzzling experts in all professions. She readily answers any question asked her from the audience and at no time has she returned the wrong answer.

Evelyn Phillips and company present another high-class act which wins the highest approval. Other notable turns on the bill are Selma Braatz, a woman juggler who excels most male jugglers with her work; Bob Fisher and Sam Sheppard, two resourceful funmakers, and Nick and Gladys Verga, able singers.

(At Howard.)

Approximately 3,500 toy balloons, in one scene! No wonder there were no balloons sold on the Los Angeles streets the day they shot the big Oriental fete scene at Paramount's west coast studio for "The Cheat," starring Pola Negri, which is now showing at the Howard.

The overture by the Howard Wonder Orchestra with Enrico Leide and Alex Keese conducting, is "Excerpts from Faust" and is a very good number which pleases immensely.

Alice Brady.

(At Rialto.)

George Webber, who photographed Alice Brady's latest Paramount picture, "The Snow Bride," under the direction of Henry Kolker and which is playing at the Rialto theater this week, had his share of difficulties while on location in Canada where the exterior scenes were made. The temperature at Lake Temiskeming was so cold at times that it was impossible to wind back the film in the camera for a lap dissolve. When he attempted to rewind the film cracked to bits from the cold. It was, therefore, necessary to fade in and fade out on his scenes, instead of making what is technically known as "overlapping dissolves."

"Garrison's Finish."

At the Metropolitan.

Jack Pickford has returned to screen stardom in a blaze of luminous glory. The vehicle in which he rides back to the top crest of popular favor is "Garrison's Finish," an Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation release, and it is certainly an ideal beginning for a new series of Jack Pickford pictures.

This unusual feature is now playing at the Metropolitan theater.

"My Sweetie Went Away"
mourns deliciously as fox-trotted by the California Ramblers. And how bluefully Dolly Kay can sing it!

U. S. TAKES STEPS TO COMBAT REDS

Atlantic City, N. J., September 27. The federal government has in the past week taken steps to combat the spread of Russian soviet propaganda in this country, James M. Beck, solicitor general today told the American Bankers' association convention. He urged adequate immigration laws to meet the situation.

The federal government has not been indifferent to the spread of propaganda and the attorney general has asked the cooperation of the state authorities in establishing more effective supervision of the revolutionary and criminal element, he declared.

"The next congress is not likely to be indifferent to the danger which too many men have minimized," said Mr. Beck. "Two bills will be urged for passage. One will provide for the registration of all aliens in the country and the other would make it a crime to conspire to overthrow the government by force and violence.

"Today it may be doubted whether there is any specific federal statute which enables the federal authorities to arrest an alien even though he is carrying a bomb to blow up a custom house. The registration of aliens would probably cause a welcome hegira of alien communists who are now under cover and plotting every day."

Urges Dry Repeal.

Repeal of the prohibition amendment was advocated today before the association by Waldo Newcomer, president of the national bank division.

The constitution of the United States was never intended to be a code of criminal law but was meant to lay down the respective rights of the national and state governments, he said.

"I regret that the question of prohibition was introduced into our constitution," Mr. Newcomer said, "because it opens the way for the introduction of other amendments covering all crimes and misdemeanors. One of the greatest evils of the present day is the enormous number of laws being passed and it has been charged that there is a deliberate bolshevik influence at work to increase the laws so that they will be so numerous they can't possibly be enforced.

Code Is Cumbersome.

"The tendency to regulate everything by law has the effect of making the code so cumbersome that nobody can keep up with it. It makes people more contemptuous of law itself."

Mr. Newcomer said he understood that if the New York city police were conscientiously determined to enforce every law, they would be compelled to be familiar with 16,000 ordinances.

He said he thought it inadvisable that congress should make any changes in the Esch-Cummins railroad bill at this time and that if congress is determined on such action strong pressure should be brought to bear to prevent "such a catastrophe."

B. F. STIGALL HELD FOR ALLEGED DRY LAW VIOLATION

B. F. Stigall, 28, alleged whisky hauler, was arrested just before midnight Thursday under charges of violating the prohibition laws.

Stigall, who gave his address as 95 Peachtree place, was captured after an exciting race down Simpson street towards Peachtree. During the race he made three unsuccessful attempts to wreck the automobile of the officers as they pursued him, it is claimed.

Officers John Crankshaw, Max Denton, G. E. Williams and E. S. Acree made the arrest. His bond was fixed at $500.

No whisky was found in his machine Thursday. Officers say, however, that 18 gallons of corn whisky was found in his auto a few days ago by Officer H. E. King. Stigall did not show up at police barracks to claim his car.

Babies Mixed; One Is Missing, Suspect Death

Detroit, September 27.—Police today began digging about the premises of the home of Alfonse Vlemminck for the body of a three weeks old infant following discovery that in a mix-up of babies Vlemmick had been given the wrong child by nurses at the Evangelical Deaconness hospital where his daughter had become a mother, August 29. Police say their theory that the child may have been killed is strengthened by the discovery of parts of the infant's clothes found at Vlemmick's home.

Meanwhile, William Greatrex, father of the missing boy, is distracted, and the Vlemmick baby lies cooing in his cradle at the hospital.

Mrs. Greatrex, mother of the baby, died September 17, just eleven days after the child was born. On September 24 Greatrex telephoned hospital authorities that he would be out to get his baby. Shortly afterward Vlemmick called for the offspring of his 18-year-old daughter, Eva Vlemmick, and a nurse, under the impression that he was Greatrex, gave him the latter's boy. The error was found latter when Greatrex called for his child.

Vlemmick explained he had given the infant to a stranger he had met at a saloon.

Following discovery of the baby clothes at the Vlemmick home today, Vlemmick altered his story by saying that after the stranger had asked to take the baby, they had gone to the Vlemmick home and changed the infant's clothing.

Hill's Election Is Straw in Wind For Dem. Victory

Washington, September 27.—Election of Samuel B. Hill, democrat, in the fifth congressional district of Washington, was said by Cordell Hull, democratic national chairman, today to be "another forecast of a presidential victory in 1924."

"This election," said a statement by Mr. Hull, "was recognized by republican managers, state and national, as a test of popular political preference, and was emphasized by their speakers and workers in a desperate effort to prevent a repudiation of the national administration. The democratic victory is significant also in that it was achieved in a district whose population represents a cross section of the west, including wage workers and farmers in about equal numbers. The result may be taken as an index of western political sentiment generally."

Spratlin and Watts Attend Rotary Club Instruction School

St. Augustine, Fla., September 27. Eighty presidents and secretaries of Rotary clubs in Georgia and Florida, comprising the thirty-ninth district of the international organization, met in St. Augustine this morning for a two-day school of instructions with District Governor S. Kendrick Guernsey, of Orlando, presiding, and several past governors and international officers in attendance.

The Atlanta Rotary club is represented at the St. Augustine conference by Frank M. Spartlin, of Spratlin, Harrington & Thomas, secretary, and George Watts, of the Duff Manufacturing company, chairman of the sunshine committee. President W. H. Glenn was unable to attend.

Harris Withdraws New Court Test Of Alimony Pact

New York, September 27.—Beverly D. Harris, former vice-president of the National City bank, who is suing for annullment of his marriage to Eleanor D. Harris, formerly of Memphis, Tenn., today withdrew a motion made a week ago in the supreme court to test the validity of an agreement entered into with his wife.

In a separation agreement, Mr. Harris agreed to pay Mrs. Harris $1,000 monthly until they were divorced. He maintained that Mrs. Harris agreed verbally as part of the separation agreement to seek a divorce within a year. When she did not do so, Mr. Harris instituted action to test the validity of their agreement. This was the action withdrawn today.

Mrs. Harris paid a visit to Atlanta recently, registering at a downtown hotel under an assumed name. She created quite a sensation during her first two or three days' stay here, becoming known as the "mystery woman." Shortly before her departure she issued a statement in which she declared herself confident that she would vindicate her name of the charges made against her by her husband in his suit.

Work To Start On Jacob Elsas Annex to Grady

Work on the Jacob Elsas outpatient clinic annex to Grady hospital is to start at once following the signing of the final contract Thursday by Mayor Walter A. Sims. The $50,000 gift of Mr. Elsas will build and equip the clinic to attend to patients who are not ill enough to be confined to their beds.

Paul Wesley was awarded the general building contract, which was approved and signed recently, and the final step to authorize the work to begin was the affixing of the mayor's signature to the plumbing contract with Loftis Plumbing company Thursday.

Hentz, Reid & Adler designed the building in which will be a department for orthepedics, x-ray, men's and women's surgical, obstetrics, men's and women's medical, children's medical, dermatology, genito urinary, and eye, ear, nose and throat.

A large waiting room and dispensary will be located centrally with the new department, with separate waiting rooms for various departments.

In addition to the operating rooms in connection with the eye, ear, nose and throat and the surgical department, a large emergency room will be provided.

WOMAN BADLY CUT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. Laura Allewine, 39, of 60 West Cain street, was badly cut and bruised about the face and body late Thursday night when the automobile in which she was riding turned turtle on Marietta street near the Inman yards. A man, whose name police have been unable to learn, was driving the machine, it was reported. Mrs. Allewine was treated at Grady hospital. She was dismissed shortly after her wounds had been dressed.

No witnesses to the accident could be found, and county police are investigating. An ambulance from Awtry & Lowndes made a record run to the scene, bringing the injured women to the hospital.

News, Views And Reviews

STOCK LETTER.

New York, September 27.—Today's stock market consisted of many mixed movements and was for the most part very confusing.

Tobacco Products gained about 3½ points, while Jones Tea was declining for a loss of 9 points. U. S. Steel, Studebaker, Baldwin and CAN were weak in early trading, but under short covering advanced in the final hour. The rails held well with Baltimore & Ohio again responding to the dividend announcement reaching 57, which at the present rate of 5 per cent is considered cheap.

The bear side has looked overcrowded for the past few days, and as long as they are unable to get the averages through the lows of July, it may be possible that a fair-sized rally is under way. There are other dividend possibilities among the rails and this market may develop into a real rail market before many days.—Fenner & Beane.

GRAIN LETTER.

Chicago, September 27.—Wheat—A lower trend developed late with the reaction in corn a factor as the early advance in that grain was instrumental in the bulge that followed the opening. Shorts got pretty well covered on the first upturn and later market lacked important buying support. Cash trading basis was shade higher for red and easy on the hard. The German political situation was also regarded as unfavorable for early increase in foreign buying, although it was reported in some quarters that German buying of lard showed considerable improvement.

Corn—Met with heavy profit-taking sales throughout the day. The market was well supported early, but the selling finally resulted in a gradual recession in values.

Provisions—There was some significant buying of nearby deliveries of lard, and it was reported that Germany was in the market for liberal quantities of the fresh product. Hogs 10c lower, top $8.30.—Fenner & Beane.

COTTON LETTER.

New Orleans, September 27.—Scalpers and ring traders accepted the report of the weather bureau saying the storm had changed its course northward, indicating that danger from it was over, and sold freely during the early trading. Later in the day the market was stimulated by reports that Premier Baldwin, of England, had made a speech saying England and France were working closer together than ever. The statement from Secretary Mellon to the effect that the United States will approve a loan to Germany was another helpful influence.

Prospects of rainy weather in the west over-night from a low in the northwest followed by cold and rumors of forthcoming crop estimates under 10,000,000 bales, caused some covering and lifted prices 45 points. A further rally is expected if bad weather materializes as now it appears likely.—Fenner & Beane.

COTTON LETTER.

New York, September 27.—There was more than enough trade and speculative buying today to allow all the market to absorb hedge sales and sales in liquidation to advance prices moderately and close the market with a showing of strength over last night's final figures. The possibility of storms coming into the belt, while apparently lessened, nevertheless had influence upon sentiment. What, however, persists in the encouragement of purchases is the belief that the trade is a potential underlying power in the market awaiting sharp weakness to fix prices. The market faces the next reports on condition and ginning, which are expected to sustain last month's indication of a crop of 10,788,000 bales, and at the same time showing importantly heavy ginning figures. They will compare with 1,141,000 for the period to September 1 this year and 3,864,000 for the period to September 25 last year. January Liverpool due Friday, 15.54.—Orvis Brothers & Co.

COTTON LETTER.

New York, September 27.—Broadly speaking, the trade is as a whole against the market on the idea that better weather in the western belt will increase the movement during the next week or ten days and the market will not absorb this cotton. We think they failed to realize the fact that the biggest percentage of the cotton sold this year has been sold on call and a comparatively small portion of it has been bought in. It would seem, therefore, that after such a demonstration of strength as the market gave on its advance to 30c that any selling pressure which might develop from the early movement would be readily absorbed by those who had missed the opportunity to previously fix prices. Consequently, the pressure will not be as great as anticipated. Futures are due in Liverpool tomorrow. October 16.05c; January 15.54.—Hubbard Bros & Co.

STOCK LETTER.

New York, September 27.—Fundamental trade conditions are not changed. In fact the majority of trade reports still indicate that full business is below normal and also below the rate of production in various industries. We therefore do not believe that conditions are as yet such as to warrant much of an advance. In fact, think that after some further rally, selling will again be resumed and that prices will gradually work lower again.

The steel trade continues to be the interesting feature of the trade situation. The weekly reviews yesterday still reported a waiting attitude on the part of the public although consumers' stocks are running low. Eventually we believe this situation will result in somewhat lower steel prices. Moreover the steel trade is representative of business in general.—Livingston & Co.

New York, September 27.—I still think stocks are a better sale on rallies than they are a purchase on declines.—H. K. Evans of Livingston & Co.

COTTON LETTER.

New Orleans, September 27.—According to the latest news the tropical storm has entered upon a course which would keep it out of the cotton region, so that anxiety on that score was somewhat relieved. However, uncertainty over the bureau prevents aggressiveness on either side for the present. We look for scalping markets until the official report is out of the way.—E. B. Norman & Co.

COTTON LETTER.

New Orleans, September 27.—The tropical disturbance, which was reported as moving towards the Florida and Georgia coast, brought about a small advance on the call, which was not long maintained, due to hedge selling and further liquidation. While later advices indicate that the storm will probably move out into the Atlantic, still it is thought that it is likely to cause unsettled weather in the eastern belt. A rumor that Secretary Melon would approve a loan to Germany for reconstruction and rehabilitation had a steadying effect. Advices from the interior reported a better demand at a higher basis and the advance in the later trading seemed to create a more favorable sentiment. Pending the issuance of the government's condition report on Tuesday we are likely to have an irregular market, but do not anticipate any decided change in values.—J. D. Hayward & Sons.

COTTON LETTER.

New York, September 27.—The chief ailment of the market at present is the lack of broad vigorous demand, which will hardly be seen until the price of goods comes closer to a parity with the cost of production than it is at present. Speculative activity discounting the probability of that might be stimulated by developments serving to further impair the supply outlook, but the essential preliminary to a broader legitimate demand is an insurance that raw material can be turned into goods and distributed, if not at a profit, then at least, without a too severe loss. Many inquiries are reported in goods markets, but buyers are evidently shopping around still hopeful that something will turn up to provide them with a more favorable opportunity to buy. Further reduction in the supply outlook might transmute these inquiries into orders, but for the present what business is being done is on the old basis before the last part of the advance took place and new business on an up-to-date basis is very limited. On any easy market scale-down buying to fix prices is met and in that way a large quantity of contracts has lately been taken out of the market, but that demand still balks on advances. Only a nervous irregular trading market looks probable until the reports are out on Tuesday. What the reports will show is impossible to forecast, but private reports suggest that deterioration the past month has been about the average which would imply a condition under, rather than, over 50 and a crop on the low side of 11,000,000. Few think that such an amount would fully meet total requirements even if the hand-to-mouth policy is followed, and while there is some reactionary sentiment, the best opinion seems that the constructive side on moderate reactions is the safer. The late market was firmer on covering by scattered local shorts with offerings less.—Post & Flagg.

COTTON LETTER.

New Orleans, September 27.—Apparently the tropical storm is less threatening for the cotton region but the market was sustained by predictions for unfavorable weather in the southwest and by a private forecast for probable frost in Oklahoma. While it will likely be cooler in the southwest there are no indications at present for frost in the northern portion of the western belt. Sentiment and market remains nervous and responsive to talk of unfavorable climatic conditions while favorable weather seems to make no impression on traders. Returns to Giles averaged condition 51.1 indicating yield based on government acreage of 11,300,000 bales. Compared with last season exports from U. S. today were 15,000 vs. 53,000; since Friday 96,000 vs. 100,000; since August 1st 670,000 compared with 526,000. Aside of the uncertainty of the weather, the trade has to reckon with the unknown size of the indicated crop to be forecasted by the government next Tuesday, on which day ginnings to September 25th will be announced. New York, September 27.—Between the tropical storm threat and a disposition to even up commitments in advance of next week's government crop report, the cotton market showed continued nervousness and irregularity today. After selling at 28.50 at the start, December broke to 28.15 but later rallied to 28.56 or 31 points net higher. December closed at 28.42 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 15 to 20 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 16 to 22 points on reports that the tropical disturbance was central about 150 miles east of Florida and was moving northwestward. Its course caused a fear that it would bring rains to Georgia and the Carolinas, and the opening advance was also promoted by relatively firm Liverpool cables. As soon as the initial buying orders had been supplied, however, the market eased off under a renewal of scattering liquidation, attributed chiefly to uncertainty as to the showing of end-September crop figures. There also appeared to be a feeling that the strong high barometer reported over north Atlantic states might prevent the tropical storm striking inland, and except for the storm situation, the weather map was considered favorable. October broke from 28.75 to 28.38 and January from 28.00 to 27.68 or about 10 to 12 points net lower, but the market firmed up again during the afternoon on a favorable view on the political news from Europe, apprehensions of less favorable weather in the southwest and rumors of more bullish private conditions figures. October rallied to 28.79 and January to 28.07, making net advances of about 27 to 31 points, but the close was several points off from the best under renewed realizing. The two private crop reports published today were about in line with recent figures, one of them making the condition 51.1 and the indicated crop 11,300,000 bales based on the government's acreage. The other showed a condition of 48.2 and a crop indication of 10,748,000. Exports today 15,276 making 690,489 so far this season. Port receipts 39,171. United States port stocks 500,880.

SMALL GAINS AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, September 27.—An easier feeling regarding weather conditions over the belt and less anxiety because of the hurricane off the Florida coast caused moderate declines in the early part of the session in cotton today, but later on shorts covered in a large way and the market rose again. From declines under yesterday's close of 16 to 21 points there was an advance to 18 to 25 points over, the market finally closing at net gains on the day of 8 to 16 points. December traded as low as 27.53 cents a pound, as high as 27.98 and closed at a range of 27.89 to 27.91.

Much less rain than expected was shown on the weather map and the hurricane appeared to be moving parallel to the Atlantic coast rather than toward the cotton region. While the storm area in the northwest threatened the belt it caused no rain overnight and some of the long cotton taken on yesterday in anticipation of wet weather was thrown overboard. A private crop report, putting the indicated yield to 11,300,000 bales, increased the selling.

Much attention was paid to English dispatches which pictured more friendly relations between England and France and this caused a heavy covering movement among shorts on which the declines were recovered and the market moved up to the highest levels of the day. Steadiness lasted well into the late trading but just on the close offerings increased sufficiently to cause small recessions again.

DAILY STOCK FEATURE

Over Fenner & Beane's Private Leased Wire

BALTIMORE & OHIO: Baltimore & Ohio stock sold at 57 on the opening, but encountered such a wave of selling orders as to preclude any further advance for the time being. However, this issue should eventually sell in the 60s since it is now the cheapest $5 dividend stock in the railroad group.

TOBACCO PRODUCTS: Tobacco Products was extremely active, and under the impetus of heavy buying orders, advanced into new high territory during the forenoon. This issue is one of the most attractive on the list, considered from the standpoint of yield and safety.

JONES TEA: Jones Tea broke 8⅝ points and sold as low as 36 during the fourth hour. An extremely professional market with few buying orders in the market at any figure was responsible for thet sharp decline. Issues which are subject to such erratic price tendencies shoud be avoided by the discriminating trader.

Marked Irregularity Seen In Stock Mart Thursday

Twenty industrials averaged 88.53 net, unchanged.

High, 1923, 90.51; low 79.58.

Failure of operators on the long side of the market to follow up the recovery started just before the close yesterday by Baltimore & Ohio's constructive dividend action led to a renewal of bear pressure after a buoyant opening. Speculators for the decline succeeded in uncovering several weak spots, such as Jones Brothers Tea, which broke more than 9 points to 35 1-2, a new low for the year, but the usual leaders offered good resistance and prices turned upward again in the late dealings.

Cable reports indicating serious differences between Bavaria and the German reich were generally regarded as a disturbing factor and undoubtedly were responsible for the reactionary trend in foreign exchange. Demand sterling dropped more than half a cent to around $4.55. French francs slipped back 5 points to 6.15 cents and German marks were off 14 points at 68 cents a hundred million.

Baltimore & Ohio was again the most active stock on the board, nearly 80,000 shares changing hands during the day. The stock touched 57 and then eased off to 56 3-8, where it was up 1 1-2 on the day. The preferred advanced 1 1-4 to 5 1-4. Most of the other rails improved fractionally, the car loadings for the week ending September 15 again exceeding the million mark, despite the suspension of hard coal mining in that period.

A good inquiry developed for the tobacco shares, including rather extensive short covering and resulting in some sharp gains in that group. Gains of 2 or more points were recorded by Tobacco Products A and B and American Tobacco. Lorillard jumped 4 3-4.

Some of the other strong spots in the industrial division were American Beet Sugar, Beechnut Packing, Eastman Kodak, Inland Steel, New York Dock & Foundation Company, all up 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 points.

Union Pacific went through a sinking spell, getting down to 127 1-8 after having sold 2 points higher, but snapping back to 128 1-2 for a slight fractional loss on the day.

Houses which make a practice of loaning stocks to cover short commitments reported a heavy demand for all classes.

Call money opened at 5 1-2 per cent, but eased off to 5 before the close. Time money notes were unchanged with more business being done at the 5 1-2 per cent rate for the longer maturities. Brokers continue to bid 5 1-4 for all dates. Only a moderate amount of new commercial paper is coming into the market, the ruling rate being 5 1-4 per cent.

BLUNDER CORRECTED

This menu includes too many creamed dishes. The meal is not only too rich in its preparation, but its soft consistency makes it monotonous and not as appetizing as a meal made up of dishes that combine soft foods with crisp ones.

Live Near Agnes Scott College and Emory University

IF you have sons and daughters to educate, think of living in walking distance of two of the greatest educational institutions in the south—AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE and EMORY UNIVERSITY, and all of your loved ones under the parental roof at night, free from the snares of temptations. A home near Harvard and Vassar is beyond the bounds of possibility, yet in Decatur, a home within walking distance of both Agnes Scott and Emory is not beyond the reach of the average family of ordinary means—think of the enhancement of such property during the next few years.

I AM offering a 6-room red brick bungalow, large front porch, red tile floor to match, porte cochere, brick garage to match house, modern in every sense of the word—the last word in house craft—located just off Clairemont avenue, on paved street, next door neighbors Agnes Scott professors and just in front Emory professor. Best and most classic section around Atlanta.

AN ideal home, of which to be proud. Also an investment which can be turned at any time with good profit. Terms if desired.
THE owner will show Friday afternoon and Saturday afternoon.

Phone DEcatur 0739 and make an engagement.

MUCH NEEDED TRAFFIC AIDS

Ignorance of the traffic laws is one of the most common causes of their violation. Comparatively few people have ever read them and strangers passing through can hardly be expected to know them.

Numbers of cities have signs designating "NO PARKING" areas, "RIGHT TURN" and "LEFT TURN" points, and other like regulations to be observed. These no doubt greatly lessen the difficulties and dangers of the situation.

We are glad to note that our City Council contemplates this for Atlanta.

We hope it will be done and as quickly as possible.

RUSH ARMY CHIEF TO BLOCK RIOTS

Raleigh, N. C., September 27.—Governor Cameron Morrison late this afternoon directed Adjutant General Metts to proceed to Spruce Pine in Mitchell county at once to handle a serious race situation which is reported to have arisen there as a result of an alleged assault on a white woman by a negro.

Reports received by the governor indicated that a concerted attempt is under way to drive all negro labor from the Spruce Pine section. The executive immediately wired authorities that he would afford the community ample protection and would see that rights of both races were protected.

The governor's telegram addressed to two officials of Spruce Pine and to two citizens is as follows:

"Please call on local authorities to uphold the law and protect everybody in their rights, including the colored people. I am directing Adjutant General Metts to leave for Spruce Pine tonight. I will afford all protection the local authorities may require."

Negro Assailant Of White Woman Hunted in Swamp

Savannah, Ga., September 27.—County police are tracking an unidentified negro throughout surrounding swamps, following an attempted assault upon a white woman here shortly before noon today. The attempted assault occured in a store, located three miles out on the Ogeechee road.

The near victim will be able to identify the negro, according to her statement to the county police who arrived shortly after the attack was made.

The woman describes the negro as being young, coal black, wearing grey pants, grey vest and a light striped shirt. He also wore a collar and tie.

The woman's husband was in the city attending business when the attack was made. He is now aiding in the search.

Rossville Marshal In Jail on Charge Of Killing Prisoner

It is charged that yesterday afternoon when Brandon placed Martin under arrest on a charge of being drunk, the youth in an effort to escape, jerked loose, and ran. The officer fired his revolver, striking the boy in the back, death resulting.

At the preliminary hearing Brandon stated that he did not fire at the boy but that when he fired his revolver to frighten his prisoner, Brandon stumbled, and almost fell. This he says caused the bullet to strike the boy. The charge lodged against the officer is murder.

It has been estimated that there is now in India more than $2,500,000,000 in gold, representing an accumulation of 7,000 years.

Six Are Drowned When Blast Sets Fire to Launch

Pointe a la Hache, La., September 27.—Six men were drowned to night when they were forced to leap into the Mississippi river after an explosion in the engineroom of the power boat Reliance, plying between New Orleans and the lower coast.

After the explosion flames spread quickly over the craft and all on board were forced to jump into the water. John Antivitch, of New Orleans, master of the boat, two pilots and seven negro roustabouts were rescued.

The dead are:

Four unidentified negro roustabouts.

Evans, who was an expert swimmer, lost his life while attempting to assist others. Following the explosion he swam ashore but re-entered the water and returned to the burning boat from which he did not return.

PLATS NOW READY

We have ready for distribution plats showing lots to be sold for the estate of W. B. Lowe, which sale takes place next Tuesday (Legal Sale Day), at the Courthouse door. Three of the lots to be sold front on Highland Avenue; one of them adjoins the residence of H. H. Harris, No. 308 Highland Avenue, and the other two are located just beyond the residence of Henry F. Garrett, No. 310 Highland Avenue.

There will also be sold seven lots located on Kendall Street, just off of Sampson Street. This is the last remaining property belonging to the estate of William B. Lowe and the lots must be sold in order to make final disposition of the estate. The necessary Court Order authorizing the sale has been obtained by the executrix, Reble Lowe Rosenkrantz, and all legal requirements have been complied with.

The lots should be examined before the day of sale and we will gladly give plats to any one interested. Terms have been made very attractive; namely, one-fourth cash, balance in three annual payments with only 6 per cent interest on notes. There will be NO BY BIDDERS and the lots will be sold without any limit.
